New Relief Bill Started on Way Through Congress

Calls for $1,477,000,000 to Finance WPA for Next Year

SPONSORS ASSERT IT ELIMINATES SWINDLING

Passage Friday Evening Is Apparently Assured

Washington, June 14 (AP) — A new relief bill, ordering extensive changes in WPA practices and appropriating $1,477,000,000 to finance the agency through another year, started through Congress today as the culmination of months of fighting over relief policies and expenditures.

Presenting the measure to the House on behalf of the Appropriations Committee, Representative Woodrum (D-V) was roundly cheered when he said it would "clean up WPA," eliminate "the relief racketeer," and make the nation's relief dollar assist a greater number of people.

The Republican minority of the committee, Representative Taber of New York asserted that the majority had "tried as far as they could to improve the administrative setup and method of operation of WPA," but should, instead, have brought in a bill decentralizing relief by turning its administration over to the states and localities.

Bill Likely to Pass

With these developments, the House began a three-day battle over the measure, a contest which all concede will result some time Friday evening in passage of the bill, but which is expected to bring several sharp conflicts over its individual provisions.

No difficulty was expected over the amount appropriated, for the committee recommended exactly the sum requested by President Roosevelt. The controversies were expected to arise over restrictions the measure places upon the spending of the money.

Foremost among these, to judge by today's debate was a limitation of $25,000 upon the total cost of any WPA project. This stipulation was intended to force localities to go to the publicworks administration for the financing of large projects. PWA requires that the localities chip in 45 percent of the cost, while WPA calls for varying, but much lower, local contributions.

Another was an outright prohibition upon all projects wholly financed by the federal government. Related to this was another order that the federal theater project be discontinued on July 1, and that the federal arts projects, the writers project and the historical docu-

Judge Condemns Marriage Mills, Hasty Divorces

Lois Mary McBride Addresses Women Attending University

College Park, Md., June 14 (AP) — State laws that permit "marriage mills and hasty divorces" were condemned today by Judge Lois Mary McBride of the Allegheny county court, Pittsburgh, in an address before women attending the rural short course at the University of Maryland.

Counseling the group to support any movement for uniform marriage laws in the states, Judge McBride asserted "there are 49 grounds for divorce in the laws of this country. It is the only legal action in which only one side may be presented."

"We do not dignify marriage," she added. "Divorces make news—not happy homes."

No Place for Family

Judge McBride said in totalitarian states "there is no place for the family.

"After the world war, European states sought to establish Democracies, but they failed to realize that Democracy is based on the home... the world is looking for the democracy of the United States to save it, but we have not stood up and said 'look what we have in America.' "

The influence of nerves on the life of the average individual was described by Dr. Esther L. Richards, associate professor of psychiatry at the Johns Hopkins University.

" 'nerves' merely is a state of mind in ourselves or caused by our environment — and it gets our goats," she said. "People break in the direction in which they have a tendency to bend, and the place to begin with these tendencies is with children."

She called "the idea of an inferiority complex" as "old as the hills" and declared "the silly part is to let it get our goat."

Dr. Richards detailed the work of psychiatry clinics held yearly in Maryland counties, and asked her audience to lend its support and encouragement to the plan.

Associated Press Man Speaks

Another speaker was Charles Stephenson Smith of La Plata, Md., formerly with the foreign service of the Associated Press.

In totalitarian states, he said, "everyone has a job but no one gets any pay.

"The government is set up as a fetish that all must worship. All physical property belongs to the government; if a man fails to cultivate the land, he can be charged with having misused government property. He may even be put to death."

Japanese Serve Drastic Notice On Great Britain

Say They Will Tighten Blockade on Tientsin Concessions

BY J. D. WHITE

Tientsin, June 15 (Thursday) (AP) —Japanese officers tightening their blockade on Tientsin's British and French concessions served notice today they would keep those areas isolated until Britain yielded to new and wider demands.

Apparently given a free hand by Tokyo in this tense Far Eastern showdown, the officers rejected British mediation attempts, imposed five new conditions for amicable settlement, and declared bluntly in a statement:

"We will not cease our present measures until the British reverse their policy and afford us complete cooperation."

The dispute, which started with refusal of British authorities to hand over to Japanese four Chinese accused of terrorism, appeared more firmly deadlocked than when the Japanese army started its blockade early yesterday.

Population Lacks Food

The 120,000 population of the British and French concessions (including 5,000 foreigners) was virtually cut off from food and all other supplies. Prices soared. Provisions were scarce.

British passing Japanese barriers to enter or leave the blockaded areas were forced to undergo thorough searches, in many cases submitting to removal of shoes and stockings.

Traffic of foreign and commercial steamers to Tientsin was stopped completely. The vessels halted instead at the seacost, down the Hai river from Tientsin, and discharged their cargoes at Tangku.

New conditions stipulated by Japanese, in addition to surrender of the four Chinese suspected of the slaying of a Tientsin official, were that the British:

1. Quit protecting anti-Japanese and Communistic elements;

2. Quit supporting Chinese currency;

3. Quit "hoarding goods in Tientsin, thereby causing price increases";

4.Quit using "unregistered radio stations in Tientsin; (apparently referring to diplomatic and naval radio);

5. Allow the use of Japanese-prepared schoolbooks in the British concession.

Soldiers on Duty

A total of 2,250 French and British troops were on duty in the concessions. Japan has a large army

500 Delegates at Church Conference

Westminster, Md., June 14 (AP)—Approximately 500 delegates, the largest attendance in recent history, registered today for the 111th—and last—Maryland annual conference of the Methodist Protestant church.

The conference, as such, will pass out of existence under the unification program of the three Methodist branches, and what group will succeed it has not been determined.

The conference sermon, by the Rev. J. Leas Green of Salisbury, and the report of the president, Dr. Edgar A. Sexsmith, featured today's opening session.

Dr. Sexsmith said the year had brought an increae in conversions and membership; helpful financial bequests and valuable improvements in church roperty. His recommendation that committees be named to consider matters involving other branches of the unified church was approved by delegates.

Auxiliary officers elected today were: W. F. Wright, secretary; H. C. Staley, agent president's parsonage; members of standing district committee: E. C. Makosky, E. D. Stone, W. H. Litsinger, W. C. Scott, J. H. Barker and T. M. Benson; committee on appeals: E. T. Read, E. L. Bunce, J. N. Link, N. J. Parks, R. S. Jett and J. P. Moore.

Roads Commission To Enforce Truck Law

Baltimore, June 14. (AP)—State Roads Commission Chairman Ezra B. Whitman said today commission employes would begin enforcement of truck weight laws "within a week."

Bad condition of several main highways could be blamed on the former commission's three-year failure to enforce the laws prohibiting overloading of trucks, Whitman added. The new commission intends to enforce the statute to the limit, he asserted.

Costs of enforcement of the law would be repaid, Whitman predicted, in damage saved on the highways.

Commission crews with portable scales will handle the weighing, touring from place to place to set up the equipment

NO. 1 CADET GETS DIPLOMA

Stanley Walter Dziuban, top honor man of the graduating class of the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, receives his diploma from President Roosevelt. The Commander-in-Chief handed out commissions as second lieutenants to 456 seniors. In his address to tomorrow's generals he asked for an America "safe, strong and at peace." Brig. Gen. J. L. Benedict, superintendent of the academy, is in center.

Ralph Pulitzer Dies Following An Operation

Retired Newspaper Editor Succumbs in New York Hospital

New York, June 14 (AP)—Ralph Pulitzer, 60, retired newspaper editor and son of the late Joseph Pulitzer who founded a newspaper dynasty, died tonight of complications following an abdominal operation.

Pulitzer, a vice president of the Pulitzer Publishing Company which operates the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and once ran the famous New York World papers, was operated upon in Harkness pavilion of the Presbyterian hospital on May 1.

Funeral services will be held Friday.

He was born in St. Louis, Mo., and educated there and abroad by private tutors. He spent four years traveling abroad during his youth. Later he attended St. Mark's school at Southboro, Mass., and Harvard, from which he graduated.

Pulitzer married Frederica Vanderbilt Webb of New York in 1905. They were later divorced and he married Margaret K. Leech, the author, 11 years ago.

Pulitzer began newspaper work on the New York World in 1900, and from 1906 to 1908 was vice president of the Press Publishing Company. He became president in 1911 and served for 19 years in that capacity.

Sen. Holt To Make More Speeches on WPA

Washington, June 14 (AP)—Senator Holt (D-WVa) may make a series of addresses in West Virginia on the Works Progress Administration.

Holt, long a critic of the WPA which he has charged with wasteful administration, said today:

"My speech in Ripley Saturday on the WPA in Jackson county, probably will be just the first of a series of speeches to discuss the WPA in various districts of the state."

He said he would present payroll figures for Jackson county WPA employees in his talk at Ripley.

Baby Taken from Carriage, Thrown Into Small Creek

No Clue to Identity of Slayer of Ohio 10-Weeks Old Boy

By ARTHUR S. BOSTWICK

Clyde, O., June 14. (AP)—A dog that failed to bark and a "mysterious stranger" gave authorities scanty clues tonight to a cold-blooded killer who snatched a tiny, sleeping baby from his carriage and tossed him into a small creek to drown.

The baby, Haldon Fink, 10 weeks old, was found dead today in Green Creek, seven miles from the Clyde home whence he was stolen 12 hours earlier.

"We haven't found anything to indicate that I could make an arrest tonight," said Sheriff H. L. Myers after he and a G-man, J. R. O'Hara spent three hours questioning the baby's mother, her brother Edwin and her parents.

Stranger Suspected

Asked about a stranger who, the baby's mother said, approached her near her home Tuesday night and inquired directions to a neighbor's, Sheriff Myers commented:

"He should be in the picture. He seems to fit in very well."

The mother, Mrs. Velma Baker Fink, was in collapse both before and after her baby was found dead, but she regained her composure late today.

Her brother Edwin, 20, expressed belief the family dog "Rags" would have barked if a stranger entered the house to seize the child. He said the dog was in either the dining room or living room of the house when the child disappeared from the parlor.

Irvin Fink, the baby's father—divorced last week by the mother—exclaimed "Oh, it can't be true" when he got the first word the body had been found.

Sheriff Myers asserted Fink, 23, a foundry worker, could throw no light on the theft of the baby. He deferred questioning the attractive, brunette mother, 22, who collapsed.

Death From Drowning

"Death evidently was from drowning," said Coroner D. W. Philo.

Four Separate Probes Launched In Branding of a Jewish Pupil

Baltimore Observes Flag Day As Investigations Get Under Way

Baltimore, June 14 (AP)—City schools observed flag day today while federal and city authorities launched four separate investigations of the alleged branding of a Jewish pupil and parents of students suspended in the case threatened court action to force their reinstatement.

Citywide Americanism ceremonies were observed in the schools almost at the hour the Congressional committee on unAmerican activities announced plans to investigate the branding of Melvin Bridge, 14, Jewish student at Gwynn's Falls junior high school.

Murray McNabb, attorney, coincidentally announced he would file mandamus proceedings to force reinstatement of Don Jans, Harry Ebberts and Carroll Phillips, three of 18 Gwynn's Falls boys suspended, unless Dr. David Weglein, superintendent of schools, orders reinstatement of the boys tomorrow.

Bridge has said that 40 youths

Lewis Says A.F.L. And C.I.O. Peace Is "Impossible"

Declares He Cannot Deal with Present Negotiating Committee

Plans National Campaign for $60 a Month Pensions for All over 60

Washington, June 14 (AP) — Prospects for further negotiations to end labor's civil war seemed to vanish tonight as John L. Lewis, CIO leader, flatly asserted it was "impossible" to deal with the present of AFL negotiating committee.

"The AF of L is still under the control of a small group, firmly entrenched and reactionary in their attitude toward public questions, who are tolerant of many evil conditions existing in the federation," he told reporters.

He spoke after a day-long session of the CIO executive board at which a report of the CIO peace negotiating committee was received. The committee, at the behest of President Roosevelt, discussed peace with an AF of L committee but the talks were broken off months ago.

Lewis said the leadership of the AFL was working with industrial and financial interests in an attempt to emasculate the CIO "and bring about crystalization of Anti-New Deal sentiment in the country.

He characterized AFL policy as one of "rule or ruin" and said the federation had threatened to defeat a Congressional appropriation for United States participation in the international labor organization at Geneva unless it was given all the labor representatives.

The CIO, Lewis added, will push ahead with its organizing campaign among non-union workers, and will hold its second annual convention at San Francisco October 10.

Earlier the CIO, bidding for a powerful working alliance with aged persons striving for higher pensions, decided to stage a nation-wide campaign for $60 a month for needy individuals past 60 of age and $90 for married couples.

The campaign, as approved by the executive board, will be carried on "in cooperation with old age and progressive groups." The groups were not mentioned by name.

The board criticized the present federal-state social security system as "utterly inadequate." The pensions it suggested would add, it was estimated, $600,000,000 a year to the cost of the existing system.

Commission May Buy Ohio Bridge

Columbus, O., June 14 (AP) — A 1589-foot bridge across the Ohio river between East Liverpool, O., and Newell, W. Va., was offered to the State Bridge Commission today at purchase prices of $840,000 and $700,000.

Chairman Nick Stevens said the offers would be taken under consideration, but that it would be impossible to accede to requests of the Newell Bridge and Railroad Company, owners, that negotiations be completed before July 1.

Offers are to be received tomorrow on the Market street bridge in Steubenville, which also may be taken over by the state commission. The state already owns one bridge over the Ohio river between Steubenville and Weirton, W. Va., and another between Chester, W. Va., and East Liverpool. The latter was taken over in September, 1938, at a cost of $2,135,000.

A report of State Examiner John H. Turner showed average gross revenue from the East Liverpool-Newell bridge during the last five years of $86,687. He said income had dropped somewhat since the state took over the East Liverpool-Chester span.

F. B. Lawrence, secretary-treasurer of the Newell bridge and Railroad company, said the firm would accept $840,000 for the structure and pay cost of printing and issuing revenue bonds; reinforcing the structure to conform with state requirements, and all legal, engineering and accounting costs involved, or accept $700,000, provided incidental expense was borne by the commission. In either case 1939 taxes would be shared by both parties on a pro rata basis.

Three New Air Routes Planned in Detroit

Chicago, June 14 (AP)—Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., announced today it would file application with the Civil Aeronautics Authority in Washington for three new routes for air mail, passenger and express service.

The routes would fan out from Detroit and connect with the existing TWA system. They include:

From Detroit to Washington, by way of Columbus and Wheeling, W. Va., 487 route miles.

Marlene Dietrich Puts up $100,000 In U. S. Tax Case

Actress's Luggage Seized on the Liner Normandie

New York, June 14 (AP)—Marlene Dietrich's luggage was seized on the liner Normandie today, but was soon released when she gave up $100,000 worth of jewels as assurance that she would return to face the government's charge of nonpaymnt of $284,000 income tax in 1936-37.

Government agents appeared suddenly and, brushing aside autograph-seekers, had all her vacation finery—except the modish clothes she wore—removed to the pier. There were 34 pieces of luggage and they were shuttled from her suite to the pier so often they had the porters dizzy.

Finally, after the big liner's departure was delayed 40 minutes and the tide was turning unfavorable for the launching, Miss Dietrich sailed with plenty of clothes—but a bit short of brilliants.

Least perturbed in the little drama was Miss Dietrich herself. The German-born actress who recently became an American citizen, said "it's all a riddle to me."

"This is the first time I am sailing as an American citizen," she said. "So far as I know I have paid my income tax in full each year and it has been about the same amount, $105,000. As an alien, I had to show that my income tax was paid in order to get a sailing permit."

Eleanor Holm To Wed Rose Sept. 19

Los Angeles, June 14 (AP)—Swimmer Eleanor Holm is free to marry but Bill Rose will not be able to marry her at once.

Miss Holm said in New York today she and Billy would step up to the altar Sept. 19, a day after Billy's divorce from Fanny Brice becomes final.

Former Judge Dr. W. L. Stumbo and Former Mayor A. C. Carter Charged with Planning Murder of Enemies

Both Alleged to Have Hatched Plot To Kill Two Men They Blame for Conviction of Mail Fraud Conspiracy

Prestonsburg, Ky., June 14. (AP)—A prison-hatched "murder plot" was charged to a former Floyd county judge and a former mayor or this eastern Kentucky mountain town in warrants issued today by County Judge Edward P. Hill.

Judge Hill said six affidavits, two of them signed by a man who claimed he was hired to do the killing, accused Dr. W. L. Stumbo, former county judge, and A. C. Carter, former mayor of Prestonsburg.

Stumbo and Carter, among 16 Floyd county men convicted in September, 1935, of using the mails to defraud the federal government of relief money, were released on parole from the Atlanta Federal prison last September after serving half of their two-year sentences.

"Hired" To Commit Murders

Judge Hill said Robert Ison, 32, of Gate City, Va., made affidavits claiming he was "hired" for the role of slayer while serving a term in the Atlanta penitentiary with the men.

Intended victims, the warrants charged, were Henry Porter of nearby Allen, Ky., and H. C. Francis Prestonsburg storekeeper, both of whom played a part, Judge Hill said, in the relief fraud investigation.

County Attorney Forrest D. Short said he was informed Stumbo and Carter were "coming in tomorrow to answer the warrants."

Informs Authorities

In his affidavits, Ison said he decided to inform authorities of the "plot" because Stumbo and Carter did not furnish bail to release him from a Bristol, Va., jail on a counterfeiting charge.

Ison said in the affidavits he was en route to Prestonsburg to carry out the "plot" when arrested at Bristol.

Judge Hill said other afidavits were signed by Ison's mother, Mrs. Cornelia V. Ison of Gate City, Va., his wife, his brother-in-law, T. N. Bell of Gate City, and Paul G. Rouse, Bristol, Va., attorney who said most of the affidavits were made in his presence.

Wheat Allotment for Allegany County Is Announced for 1940

College Park, Md., June 14 (AP)—Maryland wheat farmers plotted their 1940 acreage today following announcement by the agricultural adjustment administration that the year's allotment would be 384,403 acres, a 9.54 per cent increase over the 1939 figure.

The figures were released by R. O. Stelzer executive officer of the state AAA. He said receipt of the allotment two months earlier than last year would permit farmers to plan their acreage well in advance of the winter planting season.

In this manner, he said, farmers may plan their operations to become eligible for conservation payments, price adjustment payments, wheat loans and crop insurance.

County allotments include:

Tobacco Planters Put in Their Crops

College Park, Md., June 14. (AP)—Whole families—father, mother and the kids—took to the tobacco fields of southern Maryland today for tobacco planting, made possible for the first time in weeks by last night's soaking rains.

Crop experts at the University of Maryland said they had received reports that on scores of farms growers worked feverishly to get plants in the ground before dry weather returns.

Meanwhile, Dr. Ernest Walker, plant pathologist of the university's extension service, dispelled fears that Marylanders crop would be damaged by blue mold.

"Tobacco blue mold has been no problem since May 27," he declared. "That date marked the arrival of extreme hot weather, followed by cool weather, which killed the mold."

Walker said the recent hot and dry weather had caused "No particular damage" to tobacco crops, although the yield may be late because of the planting delay.

Prohibition Sought in Resolution Adopted by the Reformed Church

Frederick, Md., June 14. (AP)—The return of national prohibition can be attained by local option and temperance education, delegates to the Potomac synod of the Reformed church declared in a resolution today.

The resolution was adopted after a report of the Temperance committee, prepared by the Rev. Oliver Maurer, Red Lion, Pa.; Rev. A. M. Glick, Martinsburg, W. Va.; Rev. William E. Lampe, Philadelphia; Rev. Lee J. Peeler, Staunton, Va., and Rev. B. J. Peller, Lexington, N. C.

The 300 delegates also were informed of a perpetual endowment fund of $5,000 for the education of young women, presented to the general synod by the Potomac group's Women's Missionary society. The women will be available for Hood College, Frederick, and Catawba College, Salisbury, N. C.

Tomorrow's session will be featured by the presence of Dr. Louis W. Goebel of Chicago, president of the united Evangelical and Reformed church. At this meeting, the synod will be reorganized in conformity with the recent merger of the Evangelican and Reformed churches.

Names of new officers to serve with the president, the Rev. Ralph E. Hartman of Frederick, were announced today as follows:

Dr. Charles F. Rice, York, Pa., vice-president; Rev. Joshua Levens, North Carolina, secretary; Rev. Paul Kehm, Baltimore, reading clerk and J. Travers Thomas, Frederick, treasurer.

They, with Rev. Hartman, who was elected earlier, will serve until the 1940 meeting at Lancaster, Pa.

Dancer's Memory Vague on Liquor Parties To Influence Legislation

New York, June 14 (AP)—A pretty dancer who went with a promoter to Washington on what the government calls a "beauty lobby" supplied with "enough liquor to make a regiment drunk" described the junket in federal court today as only a dim memory. She said she didn't recall whom she met.

Then, red-haired, freckled Noel Carter, the first prosecution witness at the trial of William P. Buckner, Jr., and others for mail fraud in the alleged manipulation of Philippine railway bonds, raced out of the courtroom.

Speeded through her brief testimony, she was able to catch a liner bound for Europe, where she will join the London company of the Broadway hit show "Hellzapoppin."

Thus the beginning of the trial held to the same fast pace the government attributes to Buckner, a satellite of the Hollywood moving star colony, in the alleged skying of defaulted railway bonds of the far away Philippines.

Nothing was lacking except footlights and curtain for the melodrama which opened in the courtroom with an international all-star cast from stage, screen and radio, as they say — not to mention politics, society and finance.

Produced by the government, the piece was written around Buckner, a dapper young financier, night clubber, and friend of Loretta Young.

In a prelude, assistant U. S. Attorney William P. Maloney charged that Buckner and a co-defendant, William J. Gillespie, a broker, took a "lobby of lovely ladies" to Washington and used large amounts of liquor in an effort to influence legislation in belief of their scheme.

Miss Carter said that in 1937,

Say They Will Tighten Blockade on Tientsin Concessions

BY J. D. WHITE

Tientsin, June 15 (Thursday) (AP) —Japanese officers tightening their blockade on Tientsin's British and French concessions served notice today they would keep those areas isolated until Britain yielded to new and wider demands.

Population Lacks Food

The 120,000 population of the British and French concessions (including 5,000 foreigners) was virtually cut off from food and all other supplies. Prices soared. Provisions were scarce.

British passing Japanese barriers to enter or leave the blockaded areas were forced to undergo thorough searches, in many cases submitting to removal of shoes and stockings.

Traffic of foreign and commercial steamers to Tientsin was stopped completely. The vessels halted instead at the seacost, down the Hai river from Tientsin, and discharged their cargoes at Tangku.

New conditions stipulated by Japanese, in addition to surrender of the four Chinese suspected of the slaying of a Tientsin official, were that the British:

1. Quit protecting anti-Japanese and Communistic elements;
2. Quit supporting Chinese currency;
3. Quit "hoarding goods in Tientsin, thereby causing price increases";
4. Quit using "unregistered radio stations in Tientsin; (apparently referring to diplomatic and naval radio);
5. Allow the use of Japanese-prepared schoolbooks in the British concession.

Soldiers on Duty

A total of 2,250 French and British troops were on duty in the concessions. Japan has a large army

500 Delegates at Church Conference

Westminster, Md., June 14 (AP)—Approximately 500 delegates, the largest attendance in recent history, registered today for the 111th—and last—Maryland annual conference of the Methodist Protestant church.

The conference, as such, will pass out of existence under the unification program of the three Methodist branches, and what group will succeed it has not been determined.

The conference sermon, by the Rev. J. Leas Green of Salisbury, and the report of the president, Dr. Edgar A. Sexsmith, featured today's opening session.

Dr. Sexsmith said the year had brought an increae in conversions and membership; helpful financial bequests and valuable improvements in church roperty. His recommendation that committees be named to consider matters involving other branches of the unified church was approved by delegates.

Auxiliary officers elected today were: W. F. Wright, secretary; H. C. Staley, agent president's parsonage; members of standing district committee: E. C. Makosky, E. D. Stone, W. H. Litsinger, W. C. Scott, J. H. Barker and T. M. Benson; committee on appeals: E. T. Read, E. L. Bunce, J. N. Link, N. J. Parks, R. S. Jett and J. P. Moore.

Roads Commission To Enforce Truck Law

Baltimore, June 14. (AP)—State Roads Commission Chairman Ezra B. Whitman said today commission employes would begin enforcement of truck weight laws "within a week."

Bad condition of several main highways could be blamed on the former commission's three-year failure to enforce the laws prohibiting overloading of trucks, Whitman added. The new commission intends to enforce the statute to the limit, he asserted.

Costs of enforcement of the law would be repaid, Whitman predicted, in damage saved on the highways.

Prohibition Sought in Resolution Adopted by the Reformed Church

Frederick, Md., June 14. (AP)—The return of national prohibition can be attained by local option and temperance education, delegates to the Potomac synod of the Reformed church declared in a resolution today.

The resolution was adopted after a report of the Temperance committee, prepared by the Rev. Oliver Maurer, Red Lion, Pa.; Rev. A. M. Gluck, Martinsburg, W. Va.; Rev. William E. Lampe, Philadelphia; Rev. Lee J. Peeler, Staunton, Va., and Rev. B. J. Peller, Lexington, N. C.

The 300 delegates also were informed of a perpetual endowment fund of $5,000 for the education of young women, presented to the general synod by the Potomac group's Women's Missionary society. The women will be available for Hood College, Frederick, and Catawba College, Salisbury, N. C.

Tomorrow's session will be featured by the presence of Dr. Louis W. Goebel of Chicago, president of the united Evangelical and Reformed church. At this meeting, the synod will be reorganized in conformity with the recent merger of the Evangelican and Reformed churches.

Names of new officers to serve with the president, the Rev. Ralph E. Hartman of Frederick, were announced today as follows:

Dr. Charles F. Rice, York, Pa., vice-president; Rev. Joshua Levens, North Carolina, secretary; Rev. Paul Kehm, Baltimore, reading clerk and J. Travers Thomas, Frederick, treasurer.

They, with Rev. Hartman, who was elected earlier, will serve until the 1940 meeting at Lancaster, Pa.

Retired Newspaper Editor Succumbs in New York Hospital

New York, June 14 (AP)—Ralph Pulitzer, 60, retired newspaper editor and son of the late Joseph Pulitzer who founded a newspaper dynasty, died tonight of complications following an abdominal operation.

Pulitzer, a vice president of the Pulitzer Publishing Company which operates the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and once ran the famous New York World papers, was operated upon in Harkness pavilion of the Presbyterian hospital on May 1.

Funeral services will be held Friday.

He was born in St. Louis, Mo., and educated there and abroad by private tutors. He spent four years traveling abroad during his youth. Later he attended St. Mark's school at Southboro, Mass., and Harvard, from which he graduated.

Pulitzer married Frederica Vanderbilt Webb of New York in 1905. They were later divorced and he married Margaret K. Leech, the author, 11 years ago.

Pulitzer began newspaper work on the New York World in 1900, and from 1906 to 1908 was vice president of the Press Publishing Company. He became president in 1911 and served for 19 years in that capacity.

Sen. Holt To Make More Speeches on WPA

Washington, June 14 (AP)—Senator Holt (D-WVa) may make a series of addresses in West Virginia on the Works Progress Administration.

Holt, long a critic of the WPA which he has charged with wasteful administration, said today:

"My speech in Ripley Saturday on the WPA in Jackson county, probably will be just the first of a series of speeches to discuss the WPA in various districts of the state."

He said he would present payroll figures for Jackson county WPA employees in his talk at Ripley.

Baby Taken from Carriage, Thrown Into Small Creek

No Clue to Identity of Slayer of Ohio 10-Weeks Old Boy

By ARTHUR S. BOSTWICK

Clyde, O., June 14. (AP)—A dog that failed to bark and a "mysterious stranger" gave authorities scanty clues tonight to a cold-blooded killer who snatched a tiny, sleeping baby from his carriage and tossed him into a small creek to drown.

The baby, Haldon Pink, 10 weeks old, was found dead today in Green Creek, seven miles from the Clyde home whence he was stolen 12 hours earlier.

"We haven't found anything to indicate that I could make an arrest tonight," said Sheriff H. L. Myers after he and a G-man, J. R. O'Hara spent three hours questioning the baby's mother, her brother Edwin and her parents.

Stranger Suspected

Asked about a stranger who, the baby's mother said, approached her near her home Tuesday night and inquired directions to a neighbor's, Sheriff Myers commented:

"He should be in the picture. He seems to fit in very well."

The mother, Mrs. Velma Baker Fink, was in collapse both before and after her baby was found dead, but she regained her composure late today.

Her brother Edwin, 20, expressed belief the family dog "Rags" would have barked if a stranger entered the house to seize the child. He said the dog was in either the dining room or living room of the house when the child disappeared from the parlor.

Irvin Fink, the baby's father—divorced last week by the mother—exclaimed "Oh, it can't be true" when he got the first word the body had been found.

Sheriff Myers asserted Fink, 23, a foundry worker, could throw no light on the theft of the baby. He deferred questioning the attractive, brunette mother, 22, who collapsed.

Death From Drowning

Baltimore Observes Flag Day As Investigations Get Under Way

Baltimore, June 14 (AP)—City schools observed flag day today while federal and city authorities launched four separate investigations of the alleged branding of a Jewish pupil and parents of students suspended in the case threatened court action to force their reinstatement.

Citywide Americanism ceremonies were observed in the schools almost at the hour the Congressional committee on unAmerican activities announced plans to investigate the branding of Melvin Bridge, 14, Jewish student at Gwynn's Falls junior high school.

Murray McNabb, attorney, coincidentally announced he would file mandamus proceedings to force reinstatement of Don Jans, Harry Ebberts and Carroll Phillips, three of 18 Gwynn's Falls boys suspended, unless Dr. David Weglein, superintendent of schools, orders reinstatement of the boys tomorrow.

Lewis Says A.F.L. And C.I.O. Peace Is "Impossible"

Declares He Cannot Deal with Present Negotiating Committee

Plans National Campaign for $60 a Month Pensions for All over 60

Washington, June 14 (AP) — Prospects for further negotiations to end labor's civil war seemed to vanish tonight as John L. Lewis, CIO leader, flatly asserted it was "impossible" to deal with the present of AFL negotiating committee.

"The AF of L is still under the control of a small group, firmly entrenched and reactionary in their attitude toward public questions, who are tolerant of many evil conditions existing in the federation," he told reporters.

He spoke after a day-long session of the CIO executive board at which a report of the CIO peace negotiating committee was received. The committee, at the behest of President Roosevelt, discussed peace with an AF of L committee but the talks were broken off months ago.

Lewis said the leadership of the AFL was working with industrial and financial interests in an attempt to emasculate the CIO "and bring about crystalization of Anti-New Deal sentiment in the country.

He characterized AFL policy as one of "rule or ruin" and said the federation had threatened to defeat a Congressional appropriation for United States participation in the international labor organization at Geneva unless it was given all the labor representatives.

The CIO, Lewis added, will push ahead with its organizing campaign among non-union workers, and will hold its second annual convention at San Francisco October 10.

Earlier the CIO, bidding for a powerful working alliance with aged persons striving for higher pensions, decided to stage a nation-wide campaign for $60 a month for needy individuals past 60 of age and $90 for married couples.

The campaign, as approved by the executive board, will be carried on "in cooperation with old age and progressive groups." The groups were not mentioned by name.

The board criticized the present federal-state social security system as "utterly inadequate." The pensions it suggested would add, it was estimated, $600,000,000 a year to the cost of the existing system.

Commission May Buy Ohio Bridge

Columbus, O., June 14 (AP) — A 1589-foot bridge across the Ohio river between East Liverpool, O., and Newell, W. Va., was offered to the State Bridge Commission today at purchase prices of $840,000 and $700,000.

Chairman Nick Stevens said the offers would be taken under consideration, but that it would be impossible to accede to requests of the Newell Bridge and Railroad Company, owners, that negotiations be completed before July 1.

Offers are to be received tomorrow on the Market street bridge in Steubenville, which also may be taken over by the state commission. The state already owns one bridge over the Ohio river between Steubenville and Weirton, W. Va., and another between Chester, W. Va., and East Liverpool. The latter was taken over in September, 1938, at a cost of $2,135,000.

A report of State Examiner John H. Turner showed average gross revenue from the East Liverpool-Newell bridge during the last five years of $86,687. He said income had dropped somewhat since the state took over the East Liverpool-Chester span.

F. B. Lawrence, secretary-treasurer of the Newell bridge and Railroad company, said the firm would accept $840,000 for the structure and pay cost of printing and issuing revenue bonds; reinforcing the structure to conform with state requirements, and all legal, engineering and accounting costs involved, or accept $700,000, provided incidental expense was borne by the commission. In either case 1939 taxes would be shared by both parties on a pro rata basis.

Three New Air Routes Planned in Detroit

From Detroit to Washington, by way of Columbus and Wheeling, W. Va., 487 route miles.

Both Alleged to Have Hatched Plot To Kill Two Men They Blame for Conviction of Mail Fraud Conspiracy

Prestonsburg, Ky., June 14. (AP)—A prison-hatched "murder plot" was charged to a former Floyd county judge and a former mayor or this eastern Kentucky mountain town in warrants issued today by County Judge Edward P. Hill.

Judge Hill said six affidavits, two of them signed by a man who claimed he was hired to do the killing, accused Dr. W. L. Stumbo, former county judge, and A. C. Carter, former mayor of Prestonsburg.

Stumbo and Carter, among 16 Floyd county men convicted in September, 1935, of using the mails to defraud the federal government of relief money, were released on parole from the Atlanta Federal prison last September after serving half of their two-year sentences.

"Hired" To Commit Murders

Judge Hill said Robert Ison, 32, of Gate City, Va., made affidavits claiming he was "hired" for the role of slayer while serving a term in the Atlanta penitentiary with the men.

Intended victims, the warrants charged, were Henry Porter of nearby Allen, Ky., and H. C. Francis Prestonsburg storekeeper, both of whom played a part, Judge Hill said, in the relief fraud investigation.

County Attorney Forrest D. Short said he was informed Stumbo and Carter were "coming in tomorrow to answer the warrants."

Informs Authorities

In his affidavits, Ison said he decided to inform authorities of the "plot" because Stumbo and Carter did not furnish bail to release him from a Bristol, Va., jail on a counterfeiting charge.

Ison said in the affidavits he was en route to Prestonsburg to carry out the "plot" when arrested at Bristol.

Judge Hill said other afidavits were signed by Ison's mother, Mrs. Cornelia V. Ison of Gate City, Va., his wife, his brother-in-law, T. N. Bell of Gate City, and Paul G. Rouse, Bristol, Va., attorney who said most of the affidavits were made in his presence.

Marlene Dietrich Puts up $100,000 In U. S. Tax Case

Actress's Luggage Seized on the Liner Normandie

New York, June 14 (AP)—Marlene Dietrich's luggage was seized on the liner Normandie today, but was soon released when she gave up $100,000 worth of jewels as assurance that she would return to face the government's charge of nonpaymnt of $284,000 income tax in 1936-37.

Government agents appeared suddenly and, brushing aside autograph-seekers, had all her vacation finery—except the modish clothes she wore—removed to the pier. There were 34 pieces of luggage and they were shuttled from her suite to the pier so often they had the porters dizzy.

Finally, after the big liner's departure was delayed 40 minutes and the tide was turning unfavorable for the launching, Miss Dietrich sailed with plenty of clothes—but a bit short of brilliants.

Least perturbed in the little drama was Miss Dietrich herself. The German-born actress who recently became an American citizen, said "it's all a riddle to me."

"This is the first time I am sailing as an American citizen," she said. "So far as I know I have paid my income tax in full each year and it has been about the same amount, $105,000. As an alien, I had to show that my income tax was paid in order to get a sailing permit."

Eleanor Holm To Wed Rose Sept. 19

Los Angeles, June 14 (AP)—Swimmer Eleanor Holm is free to marry but Bill Rose will not be able to marry her at once.

Miss Holm said in New York today she and Billy would step up to the altar Sept. 19, a day after Billy's divorce from Fanny Brice becomes final.

Wheat Allotment for Allegany County Is Announced for 1940

College Park, Md., June 14 (AP)—Maryland wheat farmers plotted their 1940 acreage today following announcement by the agricultural adjustment administration that the year's allotment would be 384,403 acres, a 9.54 per cent increase over the 1939 figure.

The figures were released by R. O. Stelzer executive officer of the state AAA. He said receipt of the allotment two months earlier than last year would permit farmers to plan their acreage well in advance of the winter planting season.

In this manner, he said, farmers may plan their operations to become eligible for conservation payments, price adjustment payments, wheat loans and crop insurance.

County allotments include:

Dancer's Memory Vague on Liquor Parties To Influence Legislation

New York, June 14 (AP)—A pretty dancer who went with a promoter to Washington on what the government calls a "beauty lobby" supplied with "enough liquor to make a regiment drunk" described the junket in federal court today as only a dim memory. She said she didn't recall whom she met.

Then, red-haired, freckled Noel Carter, the first prosecution witness at the trial of William P. Buckner, Jr., and others for mail fraud in the alleged manipulation of Philippine railway bonds, raced out of the courtroom.

Speeded through her brief testimony, she was able to catch a liner bound for Europe, where she will join the London company of the Broadway hit show "Helizapoppin."

Thus the beginning of the trial held to the same fast pace the government attributes to Buckner, a satellite of the Hollywood moving star colony, in the alleged skying of defaulted railway bonds of the far away Philippines.

Nothing was lacking except footlights and curtain for the melodrama which opened in the courtroom with an international all-star cast from stage, screen and radio, as they say — not to mention politics, society and finance.

Produced by the government, the piece was written around Buckner, a dapper young financier, night clubber, and friend of Loretta Young.

In a prelude, assistant U. S. Attorney William P. Maloney charged that Buckner and a co-defendant, William J. Gillespie, a broker, took a "lobby of lovely ladies" to Washington and used large amounts of liquor in an effort to influence legislation in belief of their scheme.

Miss Carter said that in 1937,

Slovakia Fears Hitler Plans To Divide Country

German - Hungarian Agreement Said To Be Sought in Near Future

Bratislava, Slovakia, June 14 (AP)—Disquieting reports of a German-Hungarian agreement for dividing what remains of this little, nominally-independent country circulated today from the halls of government to the smallest peasant village.

Even the most optimistic Slovak nationalists were alarmed by rumors of Chancellor Hitler's prospective visit to Budapest—officially denied but still believed in many quarters to be arranged for early July; by a deepening economic depression since March, with factories closing down and the currency rapidly losing its value; and by German troop movements on the Slovak-Polish border.

(Official quarters in Berlin denied reports that Germany was negotiating with Hungary for dismemberment of Slovakia and that there were any "abnormal" movements of German troops. Foreign sources in Berlin, however, expressed the belief Germany and Hungary would take over the little state "by force of circumstances.")

Some Slovaks believed the country's economic plight would force their government to agree to a union with Hungary, with this capital and the Vag valley—which the Nazis have fortified since March—under German control.

(Slovakia is in the eastern half of what was the Czechoslovak republic, whose dismemberment began with the four-power Munich conference last Sept. 29, after which Hungary got 4,566 square miles of Czecho-Slovakia, with a population of 1,027,450. On April 8 Hungarian troops occupied 386 square miles more of Slovakia, with 45,000 inhabitants. Slovakia declared its independence on March 14 and on March 16 Chancellor Hitler undertook to "protect" the Slovak Republic. Two days later in Vienna a German-Slovak treaty was signed by which Germany guaranteed to protect Slovak boundaries for 25 years.)

Bratislava circles charged unofficially that Hungary had closed her doors to Slovak goods in an effort to hasten economic collapse. Foreign trade has come to a standstill.

As reported here, pressure would be brought on Slovak leaders to "ask" Slovakia's return to its pre-World war Magyar (Hungarian) rule. By such a formula, it was said, Germany would "avoid" breaking the pledge of 25 years' independence.

Japanese Serve Drastic Notice On Great Britain

of occupation in this north China area, which came under Japanese domination in the first months of the Chinese-Japanese war that started July 7, 1937.

There were unconfirmed reports that Japanese were to parade today through the British concession to graves of Japanese killed in the Boxer Rebellion of 1900. They were said to be planning to deposit wreaths on the graves, which are inside the concession.

The Japanese, whose announced goal in the China conflict is creation of a "new order" in eastern Asia, said in turning down the British mediation offer that further negotiation would be fruitless and that it was necessary to isolate the concessions as a "nest of intrigue and plots."

One British subject, Eric Mayell, a cameraman for Fox Movietone Newsreel, was arrested while taking photographs of the Japanese barricades. When he protested that the bridge on which he was standing was international, Japanese gendarmes placed him in a guardhouse in the Japanese-occupied area. This correspondent was denied permission to see him.

Mayell was arrested, the Japanese said, because he was taking pictures of Japanese controlled areas —"which is prohibited."

The 200 United States marines here were ordered by Lieut.-Col. William G. Halthorne to wear their uniforms at all times since Japanese agreed to pass U. S. Marines in uniform without search or questioning. The American barracks are in the former German concession, adjacent to the British zone.

Technically, Japanese have not barred the passage of foodstuffs into the British and French concessions. However, Chinese carriers, fearing charges of anti-Japanism, refused to transport the supplies.

Automobile traffic over the international bridge which links the French concession with the main railway station was stopped. Hotels indicated they had about one week's supply of food on hand. An ice shortage, however was imminent.

Except for British nationals, most foreigners were permitted to pass barricades at the five entrances into the concessions which were open to traffic. They had only to show a special stamp on their passport. The stamps were obtained at consulates, where they were received from the Japanese consulate.

Japanese who examined the clothing of the British said they were looking for prohibited Chinese banknotes, which Japanese have accused the British of "bootlegging."

Automobiles were stopped and searched thoroughly. In some cases door linings were ripped open.

ments projects be undertaken only when sponsored and partly paid for by states or local governments.

New Distribution Formula

Debate also touched frequently upon a new formula for distributing relief funds among the various sections of the country. Instead of giving WPA wide discretion, the bills calls for distribution to states according to this formula: 45 percent on the basis of population; 45 percent on the basis of the number of unemployed; and 10 percent at WPA's discretion.

In addition the bill would:

Supplant the present WPA administrator with a bi-partisan board of three members;

Provide for a "rotation" of WPA workers so that project workers would be dropped after 18 months work, giving work to others in need for a while. Those dropped would be subject to reemployment subsequently.

Probe Every Six Months

Provide for an investigation every six months of the rolls of relief employes to determine whether all are in need of help.

Change the present prevailing wage provision by permitting the new board to establish a working month of 130 hours at such a wage as would make no material change in WPA's present average labor cost per worker. This, legislators said, means more hours of work per month at no greater pay for many WPA workers.

Strengthen the present prohibition on political activity by forbidding administrative and supervisory employes to attend political conventions.

Require all supervisory personnel to swear to uphold the constitution.

In addition to the $1,477,000,000 for WPA, the bill makes appropriations for other agencies, such as the National Youth Administration and the Farm Security Administration. These bring the total of the measure up to $1,716,600,000. The total was $823,205,000 less than appropriated for the current year and $45,000,000 less than requested by President Roosevelt.

The Youth Administration fund was cut from the $123,000,000 asked by the president to $81,000,000. The committee said that even with the cut the agency would have $6,000,000 more than was appropriated for its activities this year.

Paden City, W. Va., June 14 (AP)—Mrs. Martha A. Mitchell, this Wetzel county town's oldest resident, died at the age of 98.

She was a native of Waynesburg, Pa., and lived for fifty-four years in West Virginia.

Two Husbands Win Divorces

Three New Suits Filed In Circuit Court Here

A husband who said his wife "did not care to stay at home" was one of two persons granted absolute divorces in Circuit court as three new suits were filed.

The decree, signed by Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan, gave Earnest S. Knippenberg his marital freedom from Mrs. Margaret A. Knippenberg.

The couple was married at Oakland in 1926 and lived together until 1934, the testimony showed.

The decree awarded Knippenberg custody of a son, 12, and a daughter, 8, and Mrs. Knippenberg the custody of a daughter 6. Mrs. Knippenberg was represented by Attorney George L. Williamson.

'Tired of Marriage'

A divorce was also granted a husband who quoted his wife as saying she was "tired of married life."

The plaintiff was William E. Stottlemyer, who was granted an absolute divorce from Mrs. Florence Stottlemyer on grounds of desertion in a decree signed by Judge Sloan.

"My wife just got up and took her personal belongings and our child and left me and went home to live with her people," Stottlemyer told a court examiner. He said he provided a good home for her, "she was not satisfied with that and wanted to go home. She said she was tired of married life and never intended to live with me again."

The couple was married in Keyser, W. Va., in September, 1923, and separated Christmas Eve, 1932, according to the testimony.

Husband Locked Her Out

Stottlemyer was represented by Attorney Clarence Shutter, while Attorney Morris Baron was counsel for Mrs. Stottlemyer.

Meanwhile, three new suits for divorce were docketed. In one, a wife said that her husband had locked her out of their house on the Mt. Savage Road, obtained a temporary injunction restraining him from entering the house.

The plaintiff is Mrs. Margaret Ray, who seeks a partial divorce from William J. Ray on grounds of cruelty.

The bill of complaint filed by Attorney Edward J. Ryan, charges that Ray treated his wife with "great cruelty" and "threatened, cursed, and swore at her." He "struck her on a number of different occasions" and locked her out of the house, it adds.

Health Impaired Is Claim

The defendant so conducted himself that his wife's health is "greatly impaired" and she is "in constant fear of bodily harm," according to the complaint.

The couple was married here in August, 1920, the suit says, asking custody of an eighteen-year-old daughter and payment of alimony.

Cruelty is also charged by Mrs. Thelma Rice in a suit asking a partial divorce from Robert L. Rice.

The bill of complaint, docketed by Attorney Ryan, says that the couple was married in July, 1930, and accuses the husband of cursing and swearing at his wife and treating her with great cruelty. Her health has been impaired and she is in fear of bodily injury, the bill claims.

Separated Twenty Years

Custody of a three-year-old son, and payment of alimony and counsel fees are asked.

Desertion for more than twenty years is alleged by Mrs. Elsie D. Lehr in a suit for an absolute divorce from H. Clifton Lehr.

The bill of complaint, filed by Attorney Ryan states that the couple was married here in June 18, 1914, and that Lehr deserted his wife in July, 1918. The couple has two sons, now 23 and 21, according to the bill.

British Government Plans to Take Action

London, June 14 (AP) — The British government indicated today it would take "appropriate measures" in retaliation for Japanese blockade of the British concession at Tientsin.

This disclosure was made in the House of Commons by R. A. Butler, foreign undersecretary, after the cabinet discussed the tense Far Eastern situation growing out of Japanese demands for surrender of four Chinese, accused of terrorism, who are detained in the British concession.

The United States and French governments, he added, were in close touch with Britain and were kept informed of all developments. The French concession also was blockaded.

Informed sources said that any British reprisals probably would be economic. In the House of Commons, Conservative Adrian Moreing suggested that Britain bar Japanese vessels from her Far Eastern ports of Hongkong, Singapore and Penang.

France to Back Britain

Reuters, British news agency, said "it is not expected that the government will submit tamely to the Japanese blockade," and expressed a belief that France would support Britain "in any measures deemed necessary."

Reuters said the question was being considered by several British government departments including the board of trade, "under which the Anglo-Japanese trade agreement operates."

"Japanese preferences in British colonies and imperial markets are other matters understood to be within the circle of review now taking place," Reuters stated.

Hopes of quick settlement of the dispute received a sharp setback when Japanese officers at Tientsin rejected Britain's proposal to place the question before a three-man tribunal of a Britain, Japanese and neutral.

Blame Chinese for Slaying

A foreign office spokesman stated new evidence implicated the four Chinese in the slaying of S. G. Cheng, official of the Japanese-sponsored North China bank at Tientsin, April 9. The evidence was insufficient to warrant surrender of the men to Japanese, he added.

British official circles expressed a belief that the question at stake was much more far-reaching than a mere dispute over suspected terrorists.

"It seems quite clear from semi-official Japanese statements," said the foreign office spokesman, "that the four men are being used as a pretext for aggressive measures with the object of giving Japanese economic and political control over the concession."

Butler charged that Japanese elements were active in stirring up labor disturbances in British-owned mills around Shanghai. R. M. Tinkler, a British business man, was killed by a Japanese landing party in one such dispute.

Attorney General Murphy Asserts Way Can Be Found To Aid Business

Cleveland, June 14 (AP)—Attorney General Frank Murphy declared today "the blueprints can be found" for a "reconstructed economic system" which will solve the nation's problems.

"The drawing of them is a task for the businessmen, the industrialists, the engineers, and the economists, working with those who represent all the people," he said in an address prepared for the National Catholic Social Action Congress.

"Whatever exact plan the reconstruction follows, we want our essential institutions preserved. We want to keep every civil liberty. We do not want government to run business. We only want business to run itself—with any help from government that may be necessary—in a way that will provide for the 'good of all'."

The attorney general lauded "untiring and devoted efforts of that perennial minority we know as 'the progressives'," credited them with "bringing about an understanding of the new, positive role of government" and added:

"Always in our history, the Progressives have made their fight under tremendous handicaps and against powerful opposition. Consistently, they have been shelled and bombarded with the ancient epithets of 'communist' and 'radical' that today are still being used by a misguided few in the familiar attempts to prevent the institutions of Democracy from being put to their right use."

Commission Asks Authority over 'Phone Industry

Federal Board Wants To Have More Power To Rule Communications

Washington, June 14. (AP)—Sharply criticizing certain practices of the Bell Telephone System, the Federal Communications Commission asked Congress today for more authority over the entire telephone industry.

The commission's report, based on a two-year report of the $6,000,000,000 industry, contained less drastic recommendations, however, than those previously made by Commissioner Paul A. Walker, who directed the inquiry.

In New York, Walter S. Gifford, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, contended that the commission's investigation was "ex-parte and one sided."

He added that his company was denied the right to present its own witnesses or cross-examine commission witnesses and investigators.

Informed members of Congress said there was little chance of Congressional action on the report at this session.

The commission asked Congress, among other things:

For authority to prescribe basic cost accounting methods for the Western Electric Company, wholly-owned manufacturing subsidy of the A. T. & T., and other manufacturers supplying materials or equipment to operating telephone companies.

To make it "clear by specific language, instead of by implication that practices, classifications, regulations and facilities, as well as services and charges, in connection with the use of wires in chain broadcasting shall be subject to regulation by this commission."

Raskob's Daughter Weds Californian

Centreville, Md., June 14 (AP) — Nina Barbara Raskob, 21, star boat enthusiast and ninth of John Raskob's ten children, was married today to Charles Wesley Lyons, Jr., 23, Beverly Hills, Calif.

A handful of guests, including former Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York, witnessed the ceremony in the chapel of Raskob's 1,800 acre Pioneer Point estate. The nuptial mass was celebrated by the most Rev. Edmund J. Fitzmaurice, Catholic bishop of the Wilmington diocese.

Lyons, a graduate Monday from the University of Virginia law school, and Mrs. Lyons left by automobile for Beverly Hills where they will live. His father is an attorney in Los Angeles.

The bride wore a green and white chiffon gown and was attended by her sister, Miss Patsy Raskob. Herbert Bigelow of Minneapolis was best man.

Other guests included Mrs. Charles Wesley Lyons, Sr., the mother, Miss Nancy Lyons and Frank Lyons, sister and brother of the bridegroom.

The third floor of the mansion, where the ceremony was performed, is given over entirely to a chapel. Assisting the Rev. Fitzmaurice was the Rev. Fr. Francis J. Fisher, pastor of the Mother of Sorrows church in Centreville, where the Raskobs worship.

Mrs. Lyons, a graduate of Mt. St. Vincent's school in New York city for several years has been one of this section's most ardent sailing enthuisasts. Her star class sailboat, Nina B., has competed in numerous regattas.

Baby Taken from Carriage, Thrown Into Small Creek

"There were no apparent signs of physical violence."

The mouth was slightly bloody, but Dr. Philo said this might have resulted when the baby struck the water. He and Sheriff's officers theorized the child was thrown from a bridge 15 feet above the creek, perhaps from a speeding motor car.

The body was found 71 feet downstream, three feet from shore, floating in a clump of willow branches.

The child disappeared between 10 and 11 p. m. Tuesday from the Baker home, where Mrs. Fink had been living with her parents. The grandfather said both Mrs. Baker and Mrs. Fink left the house for a short time Tuesday night, and the baby apparently was taken while they were away.

He said the young mother told him on her return she had been stopped at their doorstep by a stranger who asked the way to their next-door neighbors. Baker asserted he had no other theory as to who might have entered the Bakers' parlor—apparently through their front door—and taken the child.

Separate Pacts To Be Signed by Harlan Operators

Harlan, Ky., June 14. (AP)—George Titler, secretary-treasurer of the Harlan district of the United Mine Workers of America (CIO), said today the union had been notified by the Harlan County Coal Operators' Association that its 21 member companies had been permitted to negotiate separate contracts.

Previous group negotiations failed.

Titler said William Turnblazer, U.M.W. district president, after receiving the notification, immediately wrote the companies inviting them to open negotiations.

Titler said no replies had yet been received because "we haven't had time to hear from them."

Both Titler and George S. Ward, association secretary predicted conferences would begin shortly.

Ward said the association reached its decision after approving activities of its three-member negotiating committee and discharging it because "we found we could not get anywhere with negotiations by 3-man committees."

Committees representing the association and the U.M.W. began negotiations May 15 and ended them recently in a "deadlock."

The association has been resisting the U.M.W.'s "union shop" demand, but most of the member-firms have been operating for more than a month with national guardsmen on duty.

The association is the last major holdout against the union shop. Mines here closed with others throughout the eight-state Appalachian area April 1 on expiration of the old contract. All other groups subsequently signed up.

Titler said 10 non-association companies, employing about 7,400 of the approximately 14,000 miners in the county, had signed new union contracts.

Paroles for Men Convicted with Lawson Ordered

Baltimore, June 14 (AP) — Parole Director Herman M. Moser ordered paroles today for three men convicted with Former Police Commissioner William P. Lawson on the grounds they "are definitely not potential menaces to the lives and property of their fellow citizens."

Vincent L. Clisham, Frank Mueller and his brother Frederick have served five months of one-year sentences for conspiring to misrepresent the condition of companies whose stock was sold by Lawson's brokerage house. Lawson, who took responsibility for the concealment, is serving a three-year term.

Moser said the judge and some of the jurors who had convicted the three approved the parole. He added:

"There is more than a reasonable probability that they will not again become involved in any serious conflict with the law, and it is obvious that their interests will be best subserved by their release. Their continued confinement is not essential to the protection of the community."

The three stock salesmen have jobs awaiting them when they leave prison, Moser was told. Their salaries will range from $15 to $35 a week.

Moser ordered paroles for eight other prisoners of the 31 who applied. One of these was Edward Deal, serving a five-year term for manslaughter in Snow Hill, who was described to the commissioner as "the best farm hand" ever committed to the penal farm. Former Magistrate W. W. Price said there was some doubt in his mind Deal had killed his wife, the crime for which he was sentenced, and that he was deserving of the parole.

Others freed were Walter Clemens, serving 18 months for larceny in Baltimore; Marion Dale, serving 18 months for carrying weapons in Worchester county; Richard H. Dyson one year, assault and battery, St. Mary's county; and Arol C. Petters, five years for perjury, Baltimore county.

Moser said that in all except the latter case, the committing judges had approved paroles. Peters, he explained, had a good prison record and his parole was not opposed. None of those freed had any previous criminal record.

Sen. Harrison Hopes To Prevent Increase in Taxes for the Present

Washington, June 14. (AP)—In the face of presidential insistence that Congress should provide additional taxes if it passes a farm appropriation in excess of budget estimates, Senator Harrison (D-Miss) expressed hope today that the pending tax bill would be confined to corporate tax revision and extension of so-called nuisance levies.

Harrison, chairman of the powerful Senate Finance Committee, told reporters:

"I am hopeful that the bill will be confined to the question of continuing the excise (nuisance) taxes and to revision of the corporate tax structure. Other ideas the treasury may have to present, touching upon administrative features and the like, may be considered later in preparation for action at the next session."

It is the Mississippian's intention to expedite committee consideration of the tax bill, which in its present forms repeals the undistributed profits tax and extends the so-called nuisance levies, immediately after it is acted upon by the House.

The measure appears likely to come up in the House next Monday or Tuesday. Chairman Doughton (D-NC), of the House Ways and Means Committee, said today there was no chance that the bill would include new safeguards which President Roosevelt has said should be erected against tax evasion and avoidance.

He explained that haste was imperative because the excise taxes involved would expire June 30.

The stomach should digest two pounds of food daily. When you eat heavy, greasy, coarse or rich foods or when you are nervous, hurried or chew poorly—your stomach often pours out too much fluid. Your food doesn't digest and you have gas, heartburn, nausea, pain or sour stomach. You feel sour, sick and upset all over.
Doctors say never take a laxative for stomach pain. It is dangerous and foolish. # Slovakia Fears Hitler Plans To Divide Country

German - Hungarian Agreement Said To Be Sought in Near Future

Bratislava, Slovakia, June 14 (AP)—Disquieting reports of a German-Hungarian agreement for dividing what remains of this little, nominally-independent country circulated today from the halls of government to the smallest peasant village.

Even the most optimistic Slovak nationalists were alarmed by rumors of Chancellor Hitler's prospective visit to Budapest—officially denied but still believed in many quarters to be arranged for early July; by a deepening economic depression since March, with factories closing down and the currency rapidly losing its value; and by German troop movements on the Slovak-Polish border.

(Official quarters in Berlin denied reports that Germany was negotiating with Hungary for dismemberment of Slovakia and that there were any "abnormal" movements of German troops. Foreign sources in Berlin, however, expressed the belief Germany and Hungary would take over the little state "by force of circumstances.")

Some Slovaks believed the country's economic plight would force their government to agree to a union with Hungary, with this capital and the Vag valley—which the Nazis have fortified since March—under German control.

(Slovakia is in the eastern half of what was the Czechoslovak republic, whose dismemberment began with the four-power Munich conference last Sept. 29, after which Hungary got 4,566 square miles of Czecho-Slovakia, with a population of 1,027,450. On April 8 Hungarian troops occupied 386 square miles more of Slovakia, with 45,000 inhabitants. Slovakia declared its independence on March 14 and on March 16 Chancellor Hitler undertook to "protect" the Slovak Republic. Two days later in Vienna a German-Slovak treaty was signed by which Germany guaranteed to protect Slovak boundaries for 25 years.)

Bratislava circles charged unofficially that Hungary had closed her doors to Slovak goods in an effort to hasten economic collapse. Foreign trade has come to a standstill.

As reported here, pressure would be brought on Slovak leaders to "ask" Slovakia's return to its pre-World war Magyar (Hungarian) rule. By such a formula, it was said, Germany would "avoid" breaking the pledge of 25 years' independence.

Japanese Serve Drastic Notice On Great Britain

of occupation in this north China area, which came under Japanese domination in the first months of the Chinese-Japanese war that started July 7, 1937.

There were unconfirmed reports that Japanese were to parade today through the British concession to graves of Japanese killed in the Boxer Rebellion of 1900. They were said to be planning to deposit wreaths on the graves, which are inside the concession.

The Japanese, whose announced goal in the China conflict is creation of a "new order" in eastern Asia, said in turning down the British mediation offer that further negotiation would be fruitless and that it was necessary to isolate the concessions as a "nest of intrigue and plots."

One British subject, Eric Mayell, a cameraman for Fox Movietone Newsreel, was arrested while taking photographs of the Japanese barricades. When he protested that the bridge on which he was standing was international, Japanese gendarmes placed him in a guardhouse in the Japanese-occupied area. This correspondent was denied permission to see him.

Mayell was arrested, the Japanese said, because he was taking pictures of Japanese controlled areas —"which is prohibited."

The 200 United States marines here were ordered by Lieut.-Col. William G. Halthorne to wear their uniforms at all times since Japanese agreed to pass U. S. Marines in uniform without search or questioning. The American barracks are in the former German concession, adjacent to the British zone.

Technically, Japanese have not barred the passage of foodstuffs into the British and French concessions. However, Chinese carriers, fearing charges of anti-Japanism, refused to transport the supplies.

Automobile traffic over the international bridge which links the French concession with the main railway station was stopped. Hotels indicated they had about one week's supply of food on hand. An ice shortage, however was imminent.

Except for British nationals, most foreigners were permitted to pass barricades at the five entrances into the concessions which were open to traffic. They had only to show a special stamp on their passport. The stamps were obtained at consulates, where they were received from the Japanese consulate.

Japanese who examined the clothing of the British said they were looking for prohibited Chinese banknotes, which Japanese have accused the British of "bootlegging."

Automobiles were stopped and searched thoroughly. In some cases door linings were ripped open.

cabinet discussed the tense Far Eastern situation growing out of Japanese demands for surrender of four Chinese, accused of terrorism, who are detained in the British concession.

The United States and French governments, he added, were in close touch with Britain and were kept informed of all developments. The French concession also was blockaded.

Informed sources said that any British reprisals probably would be economic. In the House of Commons, Conservative Adrian Moreing suggested that Britain bar Japanese vessels from her Far Eastern ports of Hongkong, Singapore and Penang.

France to Back Britain

Reuters, British news agency, said "it is not expected that the government will submit tamely to the Japanese blockade," and expressed a belief that France would support Britain "in any measures deemed necessary."

Reuters said the question was being considered by several British government departments including the board of trade, "under which the Anglo-Japanese trade agreement operates."

"Japanese preferences in British colonies and imperial markets are other matters understood to be within the circle of review now taking place," Reuters stated.

Hopes of quick settlement of the dispute received a sharp setback when Japanese officers at Tientsin rejected Britain's proposal to place the question before a three-man tribunal of a Britain, Japanese and neutral.

Blame Chinese for Slaying

A foreign office spokesman stated new evidence implicated the four Chinese in the slaying of S. G. Cheng, official of the Japanese-sponsored North China bank at Tientsin, April 9. The evidence was insufficient to warrant surrender of the men to Japanese, he added.

British official circles expressed a belief that the question at stake was much more far-reaching than a mere dispute over suspected terrorists.

"It seems quite clear from semi-official Japanese statements," said the foreign office spokesman, "that the four men are being used as a pretext for aggressive measures with the object of giving Japanese economic and political control over the concession."

Butler charged that Japanese elements were active in stirring up labor disturbances in British-owned mills around Shanghai. R. M. Tinkler, a British business man, was killed by a Japanese landing party in one such dispute.

Two Husbands Win Divorces

Three New Suits Filed In Circuit Court Here

A husband who said his wife "did not care to stay at home" was one of two persons granted absolute divorces in Circuit court as three new suits were filed.

The decree, signed by Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan, gave Earnest S. Knippenberg his marital freedom from Mrs. Margaret A. Knippenberg.

The couple was married at Oakland in 1926 and lived together until 1934, the testimony showed.

The decree awarded Knippenberg custody of a son, 12, and a daughter, 8, and Mrs. Knippenberg the custody of a daughter 6. Mrs. Knippenberg was represented by Attorney George L. Williamson.

'Tired of Marriage'

A divorce was also granted a husband who quoted his wife as saying she was "tired of married life."

The plaintiff was William E. Stottlemyer, who was granted an absolute divorce from Mrs. Florence Stottlemyer on grounds of desertion in a decree signed by Judge Sloan.

"My wife just got up and took her personal belongings and our child and left me and went home to live with her people," Stottlemyer told a court examiner. He said he provided a good home for her, "she was not satisfied with that and wanted to go home. She said she was tired of married life and never intended to live with me again."

The couple was married in Keyser, W. Va., in September, 1923, and separated Christmas Eve, 1932, according to the testimony.

Husband Locked Her Out

Stottlemyer was represented by Attorney Clarence Shutter, while Attorney Morris Baron was counsel for Mrs. Stottlemyer.

Meanwhile, three new suits for divorce were docketed. In one, a wife said that her husband had locked her out of their house on the Mt. Savage Road, obtained a temporary injunction restraining him from entering the house.

The plaintiff is Mrs. Margaret Ray, who seeks a partial divorce from William J. Ray on grounds of cruelty.

The bill of complaint filed by Attorney Edward J. Ryan, charges that Ray treated his wife with "great cruelty" and "threatened, cursed, and swore at her." He "struck her on a number of different occasions" and locked her out of the house, it adds.

Health Impaired Is Claim

The defendant so conducted himself that his wife's health is "greatly impaired" and she is "in constant fear of bodily harm," according to the complaint.

The couple was married here in August, 1920, the suit says, asking custody of an eighteen-year-old daughter and payment of alimony.

Cruelty is also charged by Mrs. Thelma Rice in a suit asking a partial divorce from Robert L. Rice.

The bill of complaint, docketed by Attorney Ryan, says that the couple was married in July, 1930, and accuses the husband of cursing and swearing at his wife and treating her with great cruelty. Her health has been impaired and she is in fear of bodily injury, the bill claims.

Separated Twenty Years

Custody of a three-year-old son, and payment of alimony and counsel fees are asked.

Desertion for more than twenty years is alleged by Mrs. Elsie D. Lehr in a suit for an absolute divorce from H. Clifton Lehr.

The bill of complaint, filed by Attorney Ryan states that the couple was married here in June 18, 1914, and that Lehr deserted his wife in July, 1918. The couple has two sons, now 23 and 21, according to the bill.

Tropical Storm Sweeps Florida

Apalachicola, Fla., June 14 (AP)—Heavy rain, high tides and mounting wind along the northwest Florida coast tonight heralded a tropical storm expected to pass inland between here and Pensacola around midnight.

Storm warnings were ordered up from Tampa, Fla., to Mobile, Ala., and persons in low exposed areas were advised to seek higher ground but meteorologists predicted nothing worse than gale winds of 50 to 60 miles an hour, substantially below the minimum hurricane velocity of 75 miles.

Baby Taken from Carriage, Thrown Into Small Creek

"There were no apparent signs of physical violence."

The mouth was slightly bloody, but Dr. Philo said this might have resulted when the baby struck the water. He and Sheriff's officers theorized the child was thrown from a bridge 15 feet above the creek, perhaps from a speeding motor car.

The body was found 71 feet downstream, three feet from shore, floating in a clump of willow branches.

The child disappeared between 10 and 11 p. m. Tuesday from the Baker home, where Mrs. Fink had been living with her parents. The grandfather said both Mrs. Baker and Mrs. Fink left the house for a short time Tuesday night, and the baby apparently was taken while they were away.

He said the young mother told him on her return she had been stopped at their doorstep by a stranger who asked the way to their next-door neighbors. Baker asserted he had no other theory as to who might have entered the Bakers' parlor—apparently through their front door—and taken the child.

New Relief Bill Started on Way Through Congress

ments projects be undertaken only when sponsored and partly paid for by states or local governments.

New Distribution Formula

Debate also touched frequently upon a new formula for distributing relief funds among the various sections of the country. Instead of giving WPA wide discretion, the bills calls for distribution to states according to this formula: 45 percent on the basis of population; 45 percent on the basis of the number of unemployed; and 10 percent at WPA's discretion.

In addition the bill would:

Supplant the present WPA administrator with a bi-partisan board of three members;

Provide for a "rotation" of WPA workers so that project workers would be dropped after 18 months work, giving work to others in need for a while. Those dropped would be subject to reemployment subsequently.

Probe Every Six Months

Provide for an investigation every six months of the rolls of relief employes to determine whether all are in need of help.

Change the present prevailing wage provision by permitting the new board to establish a working month of 130 hours at such a wage as would make no material change in WPA's present average labor cost per worker. This, legislators said, means more hours of work per month at no greater pay for many WPA workers.

Strengthen the present prohibition on political activity by forbidding administrative and supervisory employes to attend political conventions.

Require all supervisory personnel to swear to uphold the constitution.

In addition to the $1,477,000,000 for WPA, the bill makes appropriations for other agencies, such as the National Youth Administration and the Farm Security Administration. These bring the total of the measure up to $1,716,600,000. The total was $823,205,000 less than appropriated for the current year and $45,000,000 less than requested by President Roosevelt.

The Youth Administration fund was cut from the $123,000,000 asked by the president to $81,000,000. The committee said that even with the cut the agency would have $6,000,000 more than was appropriated for its activities this year.

Attorney General Murphy Asserts Way Can Be Found To Aid Business

Cleveland, June 14 (AP)—Attorney General Frank Murphy declared today "the blueprints can be found" for a "reconstructed economic system" which will solve the nation's problems.

"The drawing of them is a task for the businessmen, the industrialists, the engineers, and the economists, working with those who represent all the people," he said in an address prepared for the National Catholic Social Action Congress.

"Whatever exact plan the reconstruction follows, we want our essential institutions preserved. We want to keep every civil liberty. We do not want government to run business. We only want business to run itself—with any help from government that may be necessary—in a way that will provide for the 'good of all'."

The attorney general lauded "untiring and devoted efforts of that perennial minority we know as 'the progressives'," credited them with "bringing about an understanding of the new, positive role of government" and added:

"Always in our history, the Progressives have made their fight under tremendous handicaps and against powerful opposition. Consistently, they have been shelled and bombarded with the ancient epithets of 'communist' and 'radical' that today are still being used by a misguided few in the familiar attempts to prevent the institutions of Democracy from being put to their right use."

Sen. Harrison Hopes To Prevent Increase in Taxes for the Present

Washington, June 14. (AP)—In the face of presidential insistence that Congress should provide additional taxes if it passes a farm appropriation in excess of budget estimates, Senator Harrison (D-Miss) expressed hope today that the pending tax bill would be confined to corporate tax revision and extension of so-called nuisance levies.

Harrison, chairman of the powerful Senate Finance Committee, told reporters:

"I am hopeful that the bill will be confined to the question of continuing the excise (nuisance) taxes and to revision of the corporate tax structure. Other ideas the treasury may have to present, touching upon administrative features and the like, may be considered later in preparation for action at the next session."

It is the Mississippian's intention to expedite committee consideration of the tax bill, which in its present forms repeals the undistributed profits tax and extends the so-called nuisance levies, immediately after it is acted upon by the House.

The measure appears likely to come up in the House next Monday or Tuesday. Chairman Doughton (D-NC), of the House Ways and Means Committee, said today there was no chance that the bill would include new safeguards which President Roosevelt has said should be erected against tax evasion and avoidance.

He explained that haste was imperative because the excise taxes involved would expire June 30.

HELP STOMACH DIGEST FOOD
Without Laxatives—and You'll Eat Everything from Soup to Nuts
The stomach should digest two pounds of food daily. When you eat heavy, greasy, coarse or rich foods or when you are nervous, hurried or chew poorly—your stomach often pours out too much fluid. Your food doesn't digest and you have gas, heartburn, nausea, pain or sour stomach. You feel sour, sick and upset all over.
Doctors say never take a laxative for stomach pain. It is dangerous and foolish. It takes those little black tablets called Bell-ans for Indigestion to make the excess stomach fluids harmless, relieve distress in no time and put you back on your feet. Relief is so quick it is amazing and one 25c package proves it. Ask for Bell-ans for Indigestion.

Worthy Effort

JUNIOR COMMERCE CHAMBER MEMBERS deserve a pat on the back for their plan to carry on a city-wide clean-up and fix-up campaign.

This is something always in order, and there is good opportunity for it right now in Cumberland. More, perhaps, can be done in fixing up than in cleaning up, although here and there is cleaning up to be done.

Cumberland has not been neglectful about the latter, as through efforts of the senior commerce chamber a gratifying step for the better was taken in bringing about better arrangements for weekly removal of debris, trash and discarded household stuff through the health department in place of the former annual clean-up week.

Then, too, many trees have been set out and parking spots here and there have been beautified by the city.

But, there is much yet that could be done throughout the city and it is good, indeed, to see these enterprising and forward-looking young business men going after it, as they can be expected to put enough steam in the movement to accomplish some notable results.

Citizens generally should give these young men their hearty encouragement and support in this fine civic movement. Let us make Cumberland so superlatively attractive that it will be talked about.

Social Security Revision

WHEN the Social Security act was passed, it was recognized by some of its advocates and all of its foes as legislative experimentation with a scheme which would have to be developed along lines suggested by experience. Already a number of things have been demonstrated, and a committee of "experts" set up under the act has reported its recommendations.

The surprising thing is that when these recommendations came to the House of Representatives, they were adopted as they stood, with one minor change, only two congressmen voting "nay." Congressional independence was non-existent as the House approved the proposed changes.

From the standpoint of business the most important change in the act is that which rescinds the increase in old age insurance taxes on employers and employes from one to one and a half per cent. The present figure of one per cent will remain until 1942 when the rate jjumps to two per cent. Lopping off the one-half per cent during the next three years will save contributors an estimated $825,000,000. Another quarter of a billion dollars will be shaved off state unemployment levies.

In spite of the decrease in revenue from these taxes it has been found possible to "liberalize" the Social Security act to include more than one million additional persons under the old age provisions, principally seamen and bank employes. It should be noted that the proposal to bring in domestics and agricultural workers—roughly another ten million—was not approved by the committee of experts. That may come later, for reserves have been piling up more swiftly than anticipated; but the present policy is to make haste slowly.

When this first revision of the Social Security act goes to the Senate, attempts will be made to put through amendments defeated by the House but the main features of the bill are expected to be passed.

Flying to Europe

COMMERCIAL AIRPLANE PASSENGER SERVICE between the United States and Europe will become a reality this month. The airliners, flying from Port Washington, L. I., to Marseilles, France, by way of the Azores, a distance of 4650 miles, will require forty-four hours for the trip, including an over-night stop at Lisbon, Portugal.

The giant airliners, to be operated by the Pan American Airways System, will commence service June 28, with the first flight from Port Washington. The fare will be 5375, one way, with passengers allowed fifty-five pounds of baggage. Planes will have a capacity of seventy-four passengers. They will leave Port Washington each Wednesday, with more frequent trips planned for the near future.

Weekly air mail flights to England by way of Canada and Newfoundland will be inaugurated by the same company June 24.

A few years ago an event so epochal as air passenger service to Europe would have provoked rhapsodical comment in every newspaper in the world. Today it is accepted as a natural development of aviation, with occasional comment that it certainly took a long time to bring it about.

Make It Safe and Sane

THERE IS trouble enough in the world these days without adding to it the tragedy of children being killed or blinded by fireworks and firearms on the Fourth of July, says Mrs. Eleanor Brown Merrill, Executive Director of the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness, in a message asking nationwide cooperation in the campaign to make the Fourth of July really safe and sane.

As a substitute for the old-fashioned custom of celebrating the Fourth of July with fireworks in the hands of individuals, the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness advocates community celebrations which include pyrotechnic displays under the supervision of experts.

Records of the American Medical Association show that at least twenty-five deaths and nearly 8,000 serious injuries of all kinds resulted from fireworks accidents during the observance of Independence day last year. These included approximately 300 eye injuries, forty-three of which resulted in blindness in one or both eyes.

In Maryland last year there were 201 reported Fourth of July accidents resulting in injuries from the use of fireworks and other explosives. In one case there was loss of vision in one or both eyes, in two cases injuries to the eyes, in two cases a loss of a finger, hand or other member, and in three cases internal injury, fracture or other serious hurts. The record was somewhat better than for the preceding year when there was a total of 123 accidents.

The deaths of little children, the loss of sight, the disfigurement of boys and girls, as the result of playing with fireworks or other explosives, is too high a price to pay year after year. It is the duty of everyone who values the safety of children to see that laws prohibiting the sale of explosives are widely enacted and strictly enforced.

Reductions in the number of Fourth of July accidents have been brought about in hundreds of cities and towns throughout the United States which now have laws prohibiting the sale of fireworks. But the answer to the problem is the control of the manufacture and sale of fireworks through national and state legislation.

Nearly every city that has a fireworks ordinance is surrounded by good roads leading to suburban towns where fireworks are sold openly and legally. A few states have overcome this situation through stringent state laws; real progress in making the Fourth of July a safe holiday can be achieved only by such state-wide or national legislation.

Budgets

THIS is the time of year when we who are somewhat lax in the handling of our own personal financial affairs, if not downright improvident, realize all too suddenly that vacation time is in the immediate offing and the exchecquer shows no fund worthy of the name with which to defray the expense of two weeks play.

Probably we are all pretty much alike in that we sit ourselves down at the dining room table with pencil and paper and, determined of eye and with high resolution, lay out a budget promising all and sundry, high and low that another year will find us in such financial shape that at hand will be a huge sum which will easily cover that trip to the seashore, that horseback ride over the Rockies, or anything else the gods of Vacationland decree.

The only hitch to the evening's work is that no matter how hard we figure, no matter how thin we slice it, there is still no money with which to finance a real vacation this year. So, with a doleful sigh, we tighten our mental belts, and plan on dropping out to Mother's where it won't cost much.

We have only to add that no matter how thin the New Deal—the president or any other New Dealer in the entire setup in the Roosevelt administration in Washington—slices it, no matter how hard they figure, the national budget is out of whack. It's out of whack because the New Deal has given us our ride and now it has to be paid for. Wouldn't it be grand if we could all hop off on a vacation like that, without worrying about when it is paid for nor about who does the paying? But, friend, life ain't like that and no amount of radio crooning can make it so.

Do Women Stand Pain Better Than Men?

By MARSHALL MASLIN

I think they do.

Can I prove that statement? I think I can . . . I can prove it to myself, anyway.

Little things suggest to me that women stand pain better than the men. . . . A man picks up a hot plate—and drops it. His pain is more important to him than the plate. A woman picks up a plate that is just as hot—and hangs onto it. She does not feel the pain as much, a man retorts, but my own opinion is that a woman doesn't see why she should drop a good plate just because it is hot.

Marshall Maslin

A man cuts his finger and rushes into the house to disinfect it and to imagine all sorts of terrible things from blood poisoning to lockjaw. A woman, more often than not, bandages her finger, too, but not until she has the children's lunch ready.

If a man feels ill, nine out of ten times the entire family knows about it. He tells them all and demands attention. (I write this, even while I remember how bravely some men I knew endured suffering during the war).

But if a woman wakes in the morning so sick she doesn't see how she'll ever get out of bed, she gets up anyway. She drags herself about the house, insisting that she has better things to do than stay in bed. And sometimes it's days before the rest of the family realizes that mother was terribly sick one day last week. (I write this even though doctors' nurses and hospital nurses have told me that women are more trouble than men. . . . When a woman finally goes to a doctor or into a hospital she wants the attention she is paying for).

But when I say that men fuss about pain, I do not mean all men. And when I say that most women endure pain without complaint, I do not men all women. There are men who grit their teeth in silence; there are women who weep selfishly and whine. But men in general endure pain more noisily because THEY THINK MORE ABOUT THEMSELVES THAN WOMEN DO. Men dread diseases that will kill THEM; women worry about diseases that are dangerous to their CHILDREN. . . . So they stand their own pain better than me do.

P. S. Well, mothers do!

The Human Side Of the News

By EDWIN C. HILL

Edwin C. Hill

Out in Oklahoma, the smoke of barbecues rises all over the fair land. Even Io, the poor Indian dons his glad feathers and, if he owns a car, deigns to drive the squaw and papooses to see the sights and hear the band play. For Oklahoma, all 70,000 square miles of her, and her three million people are celebrating the 150th anniversary start as a white man's country.

The thoughts of her proud citizens go back to that breath-taking day, fifty years ago, when by act of Congress two million acres of the old Indian Territory were opened up to settlers; to that thrilling day when a hundred thousand men and hundreds of plucky women surged across the prairie in a furious, breakneck race where the prizes were rich claims in the best of the free government lands.

There was never anything quite like the drama of that epic rush for free land, that headlong, hell-for-leather race, afoot, ahorse-back, in every sort of wheeled and horse-drawn vehicle. For days trains spilling over with adventurers had dumped people down at the edge of the free land about to be opened. For days long thousands milled along the border, gambling and drinking and dancing to brass bands and hurdy-gurdies. Sideshows and wandering minstrels entertained the crowds under smoky torches.

Thrilling Hour

Then came the opening day and the thrilling hour—noon—as land-hungry people set themselves on horseback, in buggies, surries, road-carts, farm-wagons and covered wagons for the great land race. Promptly on the stroke of noon, United States Cavalry officers stationed all along the strip fired off their pistols. Off somewhere a cannon roared. It was the signal to go in that great race for free land and a home.

They were off with a roar. Racing thoroughbreds out in the lead, buggy horses under the whip, covered wagons—all leaped across the prairie under the lash of screaming drivers. The trains clanked off into the green landscape, whistling for the right of way over steeds and wagons; shedding passengers who knew the claims they were going to, at each curve in the prairie swells.

By nightfall came a transformation unbelievable. Banks were open; newspapers were publishing, post offices, and jails were functioning and 60,000 at least, were sleeping in tents or shacks or under stars, or covered wagons.

It was just fifty years ago, also, three months after this great land-rush, that oil was struck.

Little Excitement Then

Nobody was much excited at the time. Automobiles were not yet invented. But, in 1897, drillers for the "Packing king," Michael Cudahy of Omaha, struck a 150-barrel well in the far northwest corner of the old Indian Territory. Then the boom began as the automobile rode over the horizon. And it all goes back to that flashing spring day when the great land rush swept over the prairies where once only the deer and the antelope played—to that day when the infant star of a new state first gleamed faintly in the firmament of the American union.

They say that there are no more frontiers left, no more invitations to the American spirit of adventure. But the United States director of Territorial affairs, Dr. Gruening, does not agree. He looks to the bottom of the world and asks Congress to raise the Stars and Stripes over a huge segment of the Antarctic continent, a region perhaps half as large as the United States itself.

Dr. Gruening is asking Congress for authorization and for funds to pay for an expedition using airplanes, tractors, and dog sledges. A White House pronouncement is looked for.

The penguins of Antarctica will see strange sights. They will see aluminum crates, each holding a drugged sledge dog loaded into huge planes for delivery at some distant base. Opiates must be used on the dogs because man's greatest friend will fearlessly follow everywhere but into the air. The roar and strangeness of plane flight drives these dogs insane with terror.

The expedition, moving toward the South Pole on fixed schedule, will deliver by tractors gasoline, fuel oil and food at designated airplane depots.

Already John Bull has claimed at least two thirds of the unknown, ice-bound Antarctic continent, but there's a huge slice left for Uncle Sam. But why, you may ask, get so excited about a cake of ice. Well, you may recall that Voltaire, one of the greatest intellects who ever lived, could envision Canada as nothing but a frozen morass, endless acres covered with snow. You may recall how Secretary Seward was ridiculed for paying a few million dollars to Russia for Alaska—"Seward's Folly", they called that inspired bargain. And Jefferson almost sank his political career when he bought Louisiana from Napoleon.

Well, we know that under the ice and snow of Antarctica there are coal-fields and probably oil. There may be gold and other valuable minerals. For an age ago Antarctica was a region of gracious climate, covered with vegetation and heavy forests. The geologists believe that the ice, in future centuries, may go as it came, and that Antarctica may again become a favored land. A great dream, such as the whole tale of man's adventure on earth, a thrilling gamble with nature.—Copyright, 1939, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

ALL QUIET ALONG THE POTOMAC, BUT--

Business Climbs Somewhat but Many Are Still Worried over Unemployment

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

Business has been a bit better of late. There's no boom. Still, since about mid-May big industries have sped up production somewhat, suggesting that there must be an increasing demand for their goods. Trade figures bear this suggestion out. More buying evidently is being done—not a lot more, but enough more, you'd think, to be mildly encouraging. Commercial statisticians generally agree on all this.

Senator O'Mahoney

Curiously enough, however, they also agree that businessmen are fully as pessimistic as ever, or even more so.

There's no let-up in demands on Congress for relief.

Witnesses before Senator O'Mahoney's economic investigating committee continue to be profoundly glum. In fact, they're glummer than they were when business was worse.

Why?

As nearly as I can discover from chats with a considerable number of these witnesses, with labor leaders and with government economists, the reason is that the apparent business improvement is unaccommpanied by any appreciable decrease in unemployment or by any evidence that miscellaneous distressed groups in the population are any less distressed than they were.

Doubts Are Expressed

If business improvement doesn't do any all-around good, commentators are inclined to ask, "Oh, what's the use?" Indeed, they express doubts that business improvement itself can last long in the face of such a situation.

They're bewildering, too. The thing's paradoxical. Usually when an unpleasant state of economic affairs exists plenty of remedies for it are offered. But this time the remedy vendors, maybe with the exception of Dr. Townsend, are up a stump. Plenty of medicine has been tried. If it hadn't had any effect at all the economic specialists might feel a certain urge to think up something else. But seemingly it HAS had the effect of relieving the business symptom a little, without having much effect on the underlying disease. And what the specialists are afraid of is that presently it will wear off as to the business symptoms also, and that THAT shortly will begin to hurt again as much as before.

Doc O'Mahoney, Diagnostician

Perhaps Senator O'Mahoney is on the right trail. He's endeavoring to diagnose the fundmental complaint.

Just before he started his investigation I heard him explain what its objective was going to be. He said frankly that he didn't know just what ailed the patient, but asserted that he meant to find out. The New World, he pointed out, started as a child, growing and gaining oodles of strength as it went along. It had occasional fits of depression, but it shook 'em off and resumed prospering. Now, however, it's grown up—hasn't its former recuperative powers, and he said he had his suspicions that those depression fits had become chronic.

What to do about 'em?

Well, to put it in another way, he fancied that some vitamin was lacking.

Nobody knows just what a vitamin is, but you have to have it or you'll croak. There's a vitamin in certain fruits and vegetables. Without it you get scurvy. There's a vitamin in unshuckled rice, without which you get beri-beri. There's a red meat vitamin, without which you get pellagra. It takes a deal of experimenting to hit on these various vitamins. There probably are plenty of them unaccounted for.

Senator O'Mahoney undertook the job of locating our economic vitamin.

Big and Little Business

Some of the experts the senator has questioned say that a little business vitamin is what's needed. Big business gets its financial vitamin from such agencies as the Reconstruction Finance corporation, but little business, it's contended, is starving to death—for that's what vitaminlessness amounts to.

Other experts maintain that what's required is a huge new industry, like automobiles. Yeah, but that vitamin's got to be INVENTED. Maybe it will be; maybe it won't.

Then there's Dr. Townsend's prescription.

The New Deal urges a whole pharmacopia of them, but thus far it hasn't been demonstrated how well they'll take. Possibly they will in the long run. To date, as Doc O'Mahoney assesses them, they're only palliatives—not sure enough vitamins.

A Wedge Driven Deep

From the Cincinnati Times-Star

Harold Ickes, Secretary of the Interior in the cabinet of the President, is a major liability of his chief. How loud is the liability fairly shouts from this passage in his article urging a third term for Mr. Roosevelt in the current issue of the magazine Look:

> This is no time for a candidate whose "qualifications" consist of the fact that he has been chirruping weak opposition to everything the world's greatest Democratic leader has done, or a candidate whose claim to office consists of the traitorous knifing in the back of the Commander in Chief to whom he has sworn fealty, or whose "strength" is that of knowing nothing, saying nothing, doing nothing.

Though Ickes names no names, it is to be inferred that his attack is on Vice President Garner and perhaps on ex-Governor McNutt of Indiana. But it might apply also to almost any conspicuous American who is a Democrat but not a New Dealer. It is a wedge driven into the splitting timber of Democratic solidarity by a man who, though now a member of the President's official family, was a Republican of sorts when he entered it.

Did the head of that family see this article before it was printed, and is this his own left-handed attack on his runing mate in two campaigns? If so—and his own less blunt but not less vindictive utterances on other occasions make it seem quite likely—the Democratic party will be the poorest of bets in the 1940 election.

Auto Owner Is Still Tax Goat

From the Johnstown, Pa., Democrat

The United States Bureau of Public Roads recently reported on the amount of gasoline taxes collected by the states of the Union in 1938. The report shows that American motorists paid a total of $766,853,000 in such taxes last year, a slight increase over the cost of state gasoline taxes in 1937. This aggregate of more than three-quarters of a billion dollars does not include the duplicating federal tax on motor fuel; it is the amount collected by the states alone.

New York led the states in its collection of gasoline tax receipts, that state's total from this source being $66,132,000. Pennsylvania was second, California was third, Ohio was fourth, and Texas was fifth. Motorists of Texas paid $42,720,000 in state gasoline taxes during the year, according to the report of the Bureau of Public Roads.

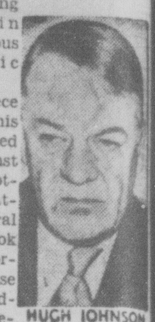

The gasoline tax has not yet come of age. It was 20 years old in February of this year, the first such tax having become effective in Oregon in 1919. In spite of its comparative youth, however, the gasoline tax is full grown. Since Oregon passed the first motor fuel tax law, something like $8,000,000 in gasoline taxes have been collected by state and federal governments. For the last 10 years all of the 48 states have levied taxes on motor fuel, and since 1932 the federal government has collected a tax of one cent per gallon. The gasoline tax won's reach man's estate until next February, but motorists are hoping its growing days are over. They have reason.

Less Cause for Group Conflict

By HUGH JOHNSON

HUGH JOHNSON

Washington, D. C.—June 14—Fan mail is no sure-shot dope on fashions in public thinking. But when a lot of it points the same way, it is worth some study. Mine seems to show a growing sensitiveness in racial, religious and economic groups.

I wrote a piece suggesting, in his well-advertised crusade against political corruption, the new attorney-general also take a look at political corruption in the use of federal "spending money" in relief. Came a good many dear-sir-you-cur letters charging that this could come only from a prejudice against the Roman Catholic church because Mr. Murphy is of that faith.

General Moseley was pretty severely needled here for being taken for a sap by chap Kluxer professional patrioteers and induced to make an ass of himself before the Dies committee. That drew a flock of almost identical letters saying that I am known to be "in the pay" of the "International Jews" and that Barney Baruch "supports your mother."

Famous Retort Recalled

Another column surmized the state of mind in which soldiers would come home from any new excursion "over there"—especially toward any pressure groups that had been responsible for getting us mixed up in any such adventure. It referred to Jimmy Gerard's famous retort when the Kaiser warned him that if we butted into the World war, we would have to reckon with 20,000,000 German-Americans here who he erroneously thought would not be loyal. Jimmy replied: "Well, we've got 20,000,000 lamp-posts." That column brought about the biggest flood of contradictory mail, charging that it was blood-thirsty propaganda (1) against the Jews (2) against Germans.

Earlier I had written a warm appreciation of the late Pope. The mail on that one said I had taken the "road to Rome" under the influence of "two or three Catholic priests who are well known to have written many of your columns."

Both Pro and Con

That about completes the cycle. I am both pro and con and anti-Catholic, Jews, Nazis, Communists and even non-Nazi Germans. None of that is important. But what does seem significant is the heat and volume of these instantaneous responses to columns which in no single instance, except Nazis and Communists, were attacks on any of these groups. In each case the "criticism" was inferred or deduced from words in which there was no shadow of such implication. These people were rushing to put on shoes that did not fit them. This super-sensitive class-consciousness is plainly growing. It is a very evil thing.

This administration is not guiltless in speeding this tendency and I am free to confess, neither are its critics—including this one. It is helped along by contests in picturesque nomenclature—not identifying individuals but labelling whole groups as "the underprivileged," "economic royalists," "the ill-fed third," "copper-heads," "Southern feudalists," "Communists," "Tories" and other devices designed to make one group or class distrust and even despise another.

Always Expect It

It has gone so far and been done so often that, as in the story told here, some people expect it always and rush to arms even without provocation. In a dangerous world where harmony is so essential we are splitting up into jumpy resentful groups, ready to fight each other at the drop of a hat.

On the plain facts, there is less occasion here than ever for sentiment, anti-Catholic, anti-Jew, anti-capital, anti-labor or anti-any other group of Americans. In spite of surface political bickering and some questions of major national policy as yet undecided by our people, there is less real cause for group conflict and there is more unity on national aims than we have known for a long time. Both the Communists and Nazi threats to this country are over-publicized bugaboos. Anti-Catholicism is played out. There would be no anti-Semitism here is it were not for the drum-thumping of an infinitesimal screwball minority on the one hand and the too-sensitive and too much publicized resentment of it on the other. Of the two causes, the latter is far more effective.—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Worthy Effort

JUNIOR COMMERCE CHAMBER MEMBERS deserve a pat on the back for their plan to carry on a city-wide clean-up and fix-up campaign.

This is something always in order, and there is good opportunity for it right now in Cumberland. More, perhaps, can be done in fixing up than in cleaning up, although here and there is cleaning up to be done.

Cumberland has not been neglectful about the latter, as through efforts of the senior commerce chamber a gratifying step for the better was taken in bringing about better arrangements for weekly removal of debris, trash and discarded household stuff through the health department in place of the former annual clean-up week.

Then, too, many trees have been set out and parking spots here and there have been beautified by the city.

But, there is much yet that could be done throughout the city and it is good, indeed, to see these enterprising and forward-looking young business men going after it, as they can be expected to put enough steam in the movement to accomplish some notable results.

Citizens generally should give these young men their hearty encouragement and support in this fine civic movement. Let us make Cumberland so superlatively attractive that it will be talked about.

Social Security Revision

WHEN the Social Security act was passed, it was recognized by some of its advocates and all of its foes as legislative experimentation with a scheme which would have to be developed along lines suggested by experience. Already a number of things have been demonstrated, and a committee of "experts" set up under the act has reported its recommendations.

The surprising thing is that when these recommendations came to the House of Representatives, they were adopted as they stood, with one minor change, only two congressmen voting "nay." Congressional independence was non-existent as the House approved the proposed changes.

From the standpoint of business the most important change in the act is that which rescinds the increase in old age insurance taxes on employers and employes from one to one and a half per cent. The present figure of one per cent will remain until 1942 when the rate jjumps to two per cent. Lopping off the one-half per cent during the next three years will save contributors an estimated $825,000,000. Another quarter of a billion dollars will be shaved off state unemployment levies.

In spite of the decrease in revenue from these taxes it has been found possible to "liberalize" the Social Security act to include more than one million additional persons under the old age provisions, principally seamen and bank employes. It should be noted that the proposal to bring in domestics and agricultural workers—roughly another ten million—was not approved by the committee of experts. That may come later, for reserves have been piling up more swiftly than anticipated; but the present policy is to make haste slowly.

When this first revision of the Social Security act goes to the Senate, attempts will be made to put through amendments defeated by the House, but the main features of the bill are expected to be passed.

Flying to Europe

COMMERCIAL AIRPLANE PASSENGER SERVICE between the United States and Europe will become a reality this month. The airliners, flying from Port Washington, L. I., to Marseilles, France, by way of the Azores, a distance of 4650 miles, will require forty-four hours for the trip, including an over-night stop at Lisbon, Portugal.

The giant airliners, to be operated by the Pan American Airways System, will commence service June 28, with the first flight from Port Washington. The fare will be 5375, one way, with passengers allowed fifty-five pounds of baggage. Planes will have a capacity of seventy-four passengers. They will leave Port Washington each Wednesday, with more frequent trips planned for the near future.

Weekly air mail flights to England by way of Canada and Newfoundland will be inaugurated by the same company June 24.

A few years ago an event so epochal as air passenger service to Europe would have provoked rhapsodical comment in every newspaper in the world. Today it is accepted as a natural development of aviation, with occasional comment that it certainly took a long time to bring it about.

Make It Safe and Sane

THERE IS trouble enough in the world these days without adding to it the tragedy of children being killed or blinded by fireworks and firearms on the Fourth of July, says Mrs. Eleanor Brown Merrill, Executive Director of the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness, in a message asking nationwide cooperation in the campaign to make the Fourth of July really safe and sane.

As a substitute for the old-fashioned custom of celebrating the Fourth of July with fireworks in the hands of individuals, the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness advocates community celebrations which include pyrotechnic displays under the supervision of experts.

Records of the American Medical Association show that at least twenty-five deaths and nearly 8,000 serious injuries of all kinds resulted from fireworks accidents during the observance of Independence day last year. These included approximately 300 eye injuries, forty-three of which resulted in blindness in one or both eyes.

In Maryland last year there were 201 reported Fourth of July accidents resulting in injuries from the use of fireworks and other explosives. In one case there was loss of vision in one or both eyes, in two cases injuries to the eyes, in two cases a loss of a finger, hand or other member, and in three cases internal injury, fracture or other serious hurts. The record was somewhat better than for the preceding year when there was a total of 123 accidents.

The deaths of little children, the loss of sight, the disfigurement of boys and girls, as the result of playing with fireworks or other explosives, is too high a price to pay year after year. It is the duty of everyone who values the safety of children to see that laws prohibiting the sale of explosives are widely enacted and strictly enforced.

Reductions in the number of Fourth of July accidents have been brought about in hundreds of cities and towns throughout the United States which now have laws prohibiting the sale of fireworks. But the answer to the problem is the control of the manufacture and sale of fireworks through national and state legislation.

Nearly every city that has a fireworks ordinance is surrounded by good roads leading to suburban towns where fireworks are sold openly and legally. A few states have overcome this situation through stringent state laws; real progress in making the Fourth of July a safe holiday can be achieved only by such state-wide or national legislation.

Budgets

THIS is the time of year when we who are somewhat lax in the handling of our own personal financial affairs, if not downright improvident, realize all too suddenly that vacation time is in the immediate offing and the exchecquer shows no fund worthy of the name with which to defray the expense of two weeks play.

Probably we are all pretty much alike in that we sit ourselves down at the dining room table with pencil and paper and, determined of eye and with high resolution, lay out a budget promising all and sundry, high and low that another year will find us in such financial shape that at hand will be a huge sum which will easily cover that trip to the seashore, that horseback ride over the Rockies, or anything else the gods of Vacationland decree.

The only hitch to the evening's work is that no matter how hard we figure, no matter how thin we slice it, there is still no money with which to finance a real vacation this year. So, with a doleful sigh, we tighten our mental belts, and plan on dropping out to Mother's where it won't cost much.

We have only to add that no matter how thin the New Deal—the president or any other New Dealer in the entire setup in the Roosevelt administration in Washington—slices it, no matter how hard they figure, the national budget is out of whack. It's out of whack because the New Deal has given us our ride and now it has to be paid for. Wouldn't it be grand if we could all hop off on a vacation like that, without worrying about when it is paid for nor about who does the paying? But, friend, life ain't like that and no amount of radio crooning can make it so.

Do Women Stand Pain Better Than Men?

By MARSHALL MASLIN

I think they do.

Can I prove that statement? I think I can . . . I can prove it to myself, anyway.

Little things suggest to me that women stand pain better than the men. . . . A man picks up a hot plate—and drops it. His pain is more important to him than the plate. A woman picks up a plate that is just as hot—and hangs onto it. She does not feel the pain as much, a man retorts, but my own opinion is that a woman doesn't see why she should drop a good plate just because it is hot.

Marshall Maslin

A man cuts his finger and rushes into the house to disinfect it and to imagine all sorts of terrible things from blood poisoning to lockjaw. A woman, more often than not, bandages her finger, too, but not until she has the children's lunch ready.

If a man feels ill, nine out of ten times the entire family knows about it. He tells them all and demands attention. (I write this, even while I remember how bravely some men I knew endured suffering during the war).

But if a woman wakes in the morning so sick she doesn't see how she'll ever get out of bed, she gets up anyway. She drags herself about the house, insisting that she has better things to do than stay in bed. And sometimes it's days before the rest of the family realizes that mother was terribly sick one day last week. (I write this even though doctors' nurses and hospital nurses have told me that women are more trouble than men. . . . When a woman finally goes to a doctor or into a hospital she wants the attention she is paying for).

But when I say that men fuss about pain, I do not mean all men. And when I say that most women endure pain without complaint, I do not men all women. There are men who grit their teeth in silence; there are women who weep selfishly and whine. But men in general endure pain more noisily because THEY THINK MORE ABOUT THEMSELVES THAN WOMEN DO. Men dread diseases that will kill THEM; women worry about diseases that are dangerous to their CHILDREN. . . . So they stand their own pain better than me do.

P. S. Well, mothers do!

The Human Side Of the News

Edwin C. Hill

Out in Oklahoma, the smoke of barbecues rises all over the fair land. Even io, the poor Indian dons his glad feathers and, if he owns a car, deigns to drive the squaw and papooses to see the sights and hear the band play. For Oklahoma, all 70,000 square miles of her, and her three million people are celebrating the 150th anniversary start as a white man's country.

The thoughts of her proud citizens go back to that breath-taking day, fifty years ago, when by act of Congress two million acres of the old Indian Territory were opened up to settlers; to that thrilling day when a hundred thousand men and hundreds of plucky women surged across the prairie in a furious, breakneck race where the prizes were rich claims in the best of the free government lands.

There was never anything quite like the drama of that epic rush for free land, that headlong, hell-for-leather race, afoot, ahorse-back, in every sort of wheeled and horse-drawn vehicle. For days trains spilling over with adventurers had dumped people down at the edge of the free land about to be opened. For days long thousands milled along the border, gambling and drinking and dancing to brass bands and hurdy-gurdies. Sideshows and wandering minstrels entertained the crowds under smoky torches.

Thrilling Hour

Then came the opening day and the thrilling hour—noon—as land-hungry people set themselves on horseback, in buggies, surries, road-carts, farm-wagons and covered wagons for the great land race. Promptly on the stroke of noon, United States Cavalry officers stationed all along the strip fired off their pistols. Off somewhere a cannon roared. It was the signal to go in that great race for free land and a home.

They were off with a roar. Racing thoroughbreds out in the lead, buggy horses under the whip, covered wagons—all leaped across the prairie under the lash of screaming drivers. The trains clanked off into the green landscape, whistling for the right of way over steeds and wagons; shedding passengers who knew the claims they were going to, at each curve in the prairie swells.

By nightfall came a transformation unbelievable. Banks were open; newspapers were publishing, post offices, and jails were functioning and 60,000 at least, were sleeping in tents or shacks or under stars, or covered wagons.

It was just fifty years ago, also, three months after this great land-rush, that oil was struck.

Little Excitement Then

Nobody was much excited at the time. Automobiles were not yet invented. But, in 1897, drillers for the "Packing king," Michael Cudahy of Omaha, struck a 150-barrel well in the far northwest corner of the old Indian Territory. Then the boom began as the automobile rode over the horizon. And it all goes back to that flashing spring day when the great land rush swept over the prairies where once only the deer and the antelope played—to that day when the infant star of a new state first gleamed faintly in the firmament of the American union.

They say that there are no more frontiers left, no more invitations to the American spirit of adventure. But the United States director of Territorial affairs, Dr. Gruening, does not agree. He looks to the bottom of the world and asks Congress to raise the Stars and Stripes over a huge segment of the Antarctic continent, a region perhaps half as large as the United States itself.

Dr. Gruening is asking Congress for authorization and for funds to pay for an expedition using airplanes, tractors, and dog sledges. A White House pronouncement is looked for.

The penguins of Antarctica will see strange sights. They will see aluminum crates, each holding a drugged sledge dog loaded into huge planes for delivery at some distant base. Opiates must be used on the dogs because man's greatest friend will fearlessly follow everywhere but into the air. The roar and strangeness of plane flight drives these dogs insane with terror.

The expedition, moving toward the South Pole on fixed schedule, will deliver by tractors gasoline, fuel oil and food at designated airplane depots.

Already John Bull has claimed at least two thirds of the unknown, ice-bound Antarctic continent, but there's a huge slice left for Uncle Sam. But why, you may ask, get so excited about a cake of ice. Well, you may recall that Voltaire, one of the greatest intellects who ever lived, could envision Canada as nothing but a frozen morass, endless acres covered with snow. You may recall how Secretary Seward was ridiculed for paying a few million dollars to Russia for Alaska—"Seward's Folly", they called that inspired bargain. And Jefferson almost sank his political career when he bought Louisiana from Napoleon.

Well, we know that under the ice and snow of Antarctica there are coal-fields and probably oil. There may be gold and other valuable minerals. For an age ago Antarctica was a region of gracious climate, covered with vegetation and heavy forests. The geologists believe that the ice, in future centuries, may go as it came, and that Antarctica may again become a favored land. A great dream, such as the whole tale of man's adventure on earth, a thrilling gamble with nature.—Copyright, 1939, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

ALL QUIET ALONG THE POTOMAC, BUT--

Business Climbs Somewhat but Many Are Still Worried over Unemployment

Central Press Columnist

Business has been a bit better of late. There's no boom. Still, since about mid-May big industries have sped up production somewhat, suggesting that there must be an increasing demand for their goods. Trade figures bear this suggestion out. More buying evidently is being done—not a lot more, but enough more, you'd think, to be mildly encouraging. Commercial statisticians generally agree on all this.

Senator O'Mahoney

Curiously enough, however, they also agree that businessmen are fully as pessimistic as ever, or even more so.

There's no let-up in demands on Congress for relief.

Witnesses before Senator O'Mahoney's economic investigating committee continue to be profoundly glum. In fact, they're glummer than they were when business was worse.

Why?

As nearly as I can discover from chats with a considerable number of these witnesses, with labor leaders and with government economists, the reason is that the apparent business improvement is unaccommpanied by any appreciable decrease in unemployment or by any evidence that miscellaneous distressed groups in the population are any less distressed than they were.

Doubts Are Expressed

If business improvement doesn't do any all-around good, commentators are inclined to ask, "Oh, what's the use?" Indeed, they express doubts that business improvement itself can last long in the face of such a situation.

They're bewildering, too. The thing's paradoxical. Usually when an unpleasant state of economic affairs exists plenty of remedies for it are offered. But this time the remedy vendors, maybe with the exception of Dr. Townsend, are up a stump. Plenty of medicine has been tried. If it hadn't had any effect at all the economic specialists might feel a certain urge to think up something else. But seemingly it HAS had the effect of relieving the business symptom a little, without having much effect on the underlying disease. And what the specialists are afraid of is that presently it will wear off as to the business symptoms also, and that THAT shortly will begin to hurt again as much as before.

Doc O'Mahoney, Diagnostician

Perhaps Senator O'Mahoney is on the right trail. He's endeavoring to diagnose the fundmental complaint.

Just before he started his investigation I heard him explain what its objective was going to be. He said frankly that he didn't know just what ailed the patient, but asserted that he meant to find out. The New World, he pointed out, started as a child, growing and gaining oodles of strength as it went along. It had occasional fits of depression, but it shook 'em off and resumed prospering. Now, however, it's grown up—hasn't its former recuperative powers, and he said he had his suspicions that those depression fits had become chronic.

What to do about 'em?

Well, to put it in another way, he fancied that some vitamin was lacking.

Nobody knows just what a vitamin is, but you have to have it or you'll croak. There's a vitamin in certain fruits and vegetables. Without it you get scurvy. There's a vitamin in unshuckled rice, without which you get beri-beri. There's a red meat vitamin, without which you get pellagra. It takes a deal of experimenting to hit on these various vitamins. There probably are plenty of them unaccounted for.

Senator O'Mahoney undertook the job of locating our economic vitamin.

Big and Little Business

Some of the experts the senator has questioned say that a little business vitamin is what's needed. Big business gets its financial vitamin from such agencies as the Reconstruction Finance corporation, but little business, it's contended, is starving to death—for that's what vitaminlessness amounts to.

Other experts maintain that what's required is a huge new industry, like automobiles. Yeah, but that vitamin's got to be INVENTED. Maybe it will be; maybe it won't.

Then there's Dr. Townsend's prescription.

The New Deal urges a whole pharmacopia of them, but thus far it hasn't been demonstrated how well they'll take. Possibly they will in the long run. To date, as Doc O'Mahoney assesses them, they're only palliatives—not sure enough vitamins.

A Wedge Driven Deep

From the Cincinnati Times-Star

Harold Ickes, Secretary of the Interior in the cabinet of the President, is a major liability of his chief. How loud is the liability fairly shouts from this passage in his article urging a third term for Mr. Roosevelt in the current issue of the magazine Look:

> This is no time for a candidate whose "qualifications" consist of the fact that he has been chirruping weak opposition to everything the world's greatest Democratic leader has done, or a candidate whose claim to office consists of the traitorous knifing in the back of the Commander in Chief to whom he has sworn fealty, or whose "strength" is that of knowing nothing, saying nothing, doing nothing.

Though Ickes names no names, it is to be inferred that his attack is on Vice President Garner and perhaps on ex-Governor McNutt of Indiana. But it might apply also to almost any conspicuous American who is a Democrat but not a New Dealer. It is a wedge driven into the splitting timber of Democratic solidarity by a man who, though now a member of the President's official family, was a Republican of sorts when he entered it.

Did the head of that family see this article before it was printed, and is this his own left-handed attack on his runing mate in two campaigns? If so—and his own less blunt but not less vindictive utterances on other occasions make it seem quite likely—the Democratic party will be the poorest of bets in the 1940 election.

Auto Owner Is Still Tax Goat

From the Johnstown, Pa., Democrat

The United States Bureau of Public Roads recently reported on the amount of gasoline taxes collected by the states of the Union in 1938. The report shows that American motorists paid a total of $766,853,000 in such taxes last year, a slight increase over the cost of state gasoline taxes in 1937. This aggregate of more than three-quarters of a billion dollars does not include the duplicating federal tax on motor fuel; it is the amount collected by the states alone.

New York led the states in its collection of gasoline tax receipts, that state's total from this source being $66,132,000. Pennsylvania was second, California was third, Ohio was fourth, and Texas was fifth. Motorists of Texas paid $42,720,000 in state gasoline taxes during the year, according to the report of the Bureau of Public Roads.

The gasoline tax has not yet come of age. It was 20 years old in February of this year, the first such tax having become effective in Oregon in 1919. In spite of its comparative youth, however, the gasoline tax is full grown. Since Oregon passed the first motor fuel tax law, something like $8,000,000 in gasoline taxes have been collected by state and federal governments. For the last 10 years all of the 48 states have levied taxes on motor fuel, and since 1932 the federal government has collected a tax of one cent per gallon. The gasoline tax won's reach man's estate until next February, but motorists are hoping its growing days are over. They have reason.

Morning Motto

Surely there is something in the unruffled calm of nature that overawes our little anxieties and doubts: the sight of the deep-blue sky, and the clustering stars above, seem to impart a quiet to the mind.—JONATHAN EDWARDS.

Less Cause for Group Conflict

By HUGH JOHNSON

Washington, D. C.—June 14—Fan mail is no sure-shot dope on fash ions in public thinking. But when a lot of it points the same way, it is worth some study. Mine seems to show a growing sensitiveness in racial, religious and economic groups.

HUGH JOHNSON

I wrote a piece suggesting, in his well-advertised crusade against political corruption, the new attorney-general also take a look at political corruption in the use of federal "spending money" in relief. Came a good many dear-sir-you-cur letters charging that this could come only from a prejudice against the Roman Catholic church because Mr. Murphy is of that faith.

General Moseley was pretty severely needled here for being taken for a sap by chap Kluxer professional patrioteers and induced to make an ass of himself before the Dies committee. That drew a flock of almost identical letters saying that I am known to be "in the pay" of the "International Jews" and that Barney Baruch "supports your mother."

Famous Retort Recalled

Another column surmized the state of mind in which soldiers would come home from any new excursion "over there"—especially toward any pressure groups that had been responsible for getting us mixed up in any such adventure. It referred to Jimmy Gerard's famous retort when the Kaiser warned him that if we butted into the World war, we would have to reckon with 20,000,000 German-Americans here who he erroneously thought would not be loyal. Jimmy replied: "Well, we've got 20,000,000 lamp-posts." That column brought about the biggest flood of contradictory mail charging that it was blood-thirsty propaganda (1) against the Jews (2) against Germans.

Earlier I had written a warm appreciation of the late Pope. The mail on that one said I had taken the "road to Rome" under the influence of "two or three Catholic priests who are well known to have written many of your columns."

Both Pro and Con

That about completes the cycle. I am both pro and con and anti-Catholic, Jews, Nazis, Communists and even non-Nazi Germans. None of that is important. But what does seem significant is the heat and volume of these instantaneous responses to columns which in no single instance, except Nazis and Communists, were attacks on any of these groups. In each case the "criticism" was inferred or deduced from words in which there was no shadow of such implication. These people were rushing to put on shoes that did not fit them. This supersensitive class-consciousness is plainly growing. It is a very evil thing.

This administration is not guiltless in speeding this tendency and I am free to confess, neither are its critics—including this one. It is helped along by contests in picturesque nomenclature—not identifying individuals but labelling whole groups as "the underprivileged," "economic royalists," "the ill-fed third," "copper-heads," "Southern feudalists," "Communists," "Tories" and other devices designed to make one group or class distrust and even despise another.

Always Expect It

It has gone so far and been done so often that, as in the story told here, some people expect it always and rush to arms even without provocation. In a dangerous world where harmony is so essential we are splitting up into jumpy resentful groups, ready to fight each other at the drop of a hat.

On the plain facts, there is less occasion here than ever for sentiment, anti-Catholic, anti-Jew, anti-capital, anti-labor or anti-any other group of Americans. In spite of surface political bickering and some questions of major national policy as yet undecided by our people, there is less real cause for group conflict and there is more unity on national aims than we have known for a long time. Both the Communists and Nazi threats to this country are over-publicized bugaboos. Anti-Catholicism is played out. There would be no anti-Semitism here is it were not for the drum-thumping of an infinitesimal screwball minority on the one hand and the too-sensitive and too much publicized resentment of it on the other. Of the two causes, the latter is far more effective.—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Cuts Weight 244 Pounds On 600 Calories a Day!

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

About a year ago I saw a woman who had just applied for treatment for overweight in a New York clinic. She weighed a little over 400 pounds and was really a spectacle. I saw her again in the same clinic this spring, at which time she weighed 156 pounds. This was accomplished entirely by dieting.

A few years ago this woman undoubtedly would have been treated by some ductless gland product, such as thyroid or pituitary extract. The tendency nowadays is to reduce these cases entirely by diet on the basis that all overweight is due to excessive intake of food. This particular woman was put on a diet of approximately 600 calories a day. Her health remained excellent throughout the entire period of reduction and she did not complain of hunger.

Skin Contracts

A remarkable feature is that the skin contracts down to fit the new contours of the body. In some instances certain skin pads, especially on the abdomen, have to be removed by operation. That was the case in this particular patient.

The diet used (approximately 600 calories) is as follows:

FOOD ALLOWED DAILY

Milk—One pint; skim or buttermilk.

Eggs—Three times a week: Two eggs may be substituted for meat at one meal.

Meat and Fish

Meat and Fish—One-half pound of lean meat or fresh fish, boiled, broiled, roasted; no gravy.

Vegetables—As desired: asparagus, string beans, broccoli, cabbage, carrots, cauliflower, celery, chicory, cucumbers, escarolle, eggplant, lettuce, radishes, spinach, squash, tomatoes, tomato juice, turnips.

Fresh Fruits in Season—One portion of: blackberries, grapefruit, melon, orange, peach, pineapple, rapsberries, strawberries.

Beverage—Two Cups: coffee, tea, postum, Sanka.

Diet Arranged

This diet may be arranged as follows:

Breakfast

Fresh fruit—one portion
Skim milk—one cup
or beverage—one cup

Lunch

Meat or fish—one-fourth pound
Vegetables and salad from list as desired
Skim milk—one cup
or buttermilk—one cup
or beverage—one cup

Supper

Meat or fish—one-fourth pound (three times weekly, two eggs or one-fourth pound cottage or pot cheese)
Vegetables and salad from list as desired
Skim milk—one cup
or buttermilk—one cup

Non-Swimmer Rescues Boy and Wonders How

Cheyenne, Wyo. (AP)—Joseph Collins, 20, can't swim a stroke but he saved a six-year-old boy from drowning. Collins dived 18 feet from the top of a dam when he saw the boy floundering in the Laramie River. He doesn't know yet how he did it but he got the youngster to the side of the river, in shallow water, and then carried him to dry land. The boy was unconscious but revived.

In 1938 nearly 20,000 immigrants settled in Australia, a gain of 8,000 over the previous year.

Florida Newsies Know How To Sell Winter Visitors

Miami, Fla. (AP)—The winter tourist season is over, so ingenious Miami newsboys are back on local news again.

But when winter visitors are here in force, the newsies know how to make the greatest number of sales. There may be two brief paragraphs on page 16 about a bad automobile accident in Ohio, but he will locate it and Ohio visitors will hear it advertised at the top of his lungs. That goes for New York and other states' news, too.

One boy has a stock cry—he seldom calls anything except "More Bodies Found." Another on days lacking important news, shouts a list of comics his papers carry. His theory is that if a visitor followed a funny page character at home, he'll buy a Miami paper to see how things have developed.

But the visitors are gone now, so the boys are after home folks' nickels with shouted local headlines.

First 'Pay' Envelopes Come with Diplomas

Decatur, Neb., (AP) — The commencement exercises at Decatur High School were all but over when Superintendent H. S. Packwood distributed sealed envelopes to each graduate.

Thirty-one seniors lost all their nonchalance when they discovered crisp five dollar bills in each envelope, the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Evans, childless couple here who have maintained an interest in school work.

Where There's a Will--

Plymouth, England (AP) — To New York and back with a visit to the World's Fair and a ten-shilling profit to show on his half-crown capital is Roy Thwaites' achievement. He hitch-hiked, stowed away and begged.

Fresh--and Frozen--Fish

Brady, Tex (AP) — The fishing season's open so you can't believe everything you hear. Down on the San Saba river they are telling about a big rainstorm that washed hail stones into the stream. Big fish liked them and swallowed so many they were numbed. All the fishermen had to do was pull them into their boats when they floated to the surface.

Colt Gives Milk

Paoli, Okla. (AP)—A two-weeks-old filly on the farm of McAdoo Yoakum, near here, began giving milk recently. Yoakum called the State Department of Agriculture to ask what to do about the situation and they told him to milk her regularly. He obtained about one-half gallon of milk daily.

Cuts Weight 244 Pounds On 600 Calories a Day!

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

About a year ago I saw a woman who had just applied for treatment for overweight in a New York clinic. She weighed a little over 400 pounds and was really a spectacle. I saw her again in the same clinic this spring, at which time she weighed 156 pounds. This was accomplished entirely by dieting.

A few years ago this woman undoubtedly would have been treated by some ductless gland product, such as thyroid or pituitary extract. The tendency nowadays is to reduce these cases entirely by diet on the basis that all overweight is due to excessive intake of food. This particular woman was put on a diet of approximately 600 calories a day. Her health remained excellent throughout the entire period of reduction and she did not complain of hunger.

Skin Contracts

A remarkable feature is that the skin contracts down to fit the new contours of the body. In some instances certain skin pads, especially on the abdomen, have to be removed by operation. That was the case in this particular patient.

The diet used (approximately 600 calories) is as follows:

FOOD ALLOWED DAILY

Milk—One pint; skim or buttermilk.

Eggs—Three times a week: Two eggs may be substituted for meat at one meal.

Meat and Fish

Meat and Fish—One-half pound of lean meat or fresh fish, boiled, broiled, roasted; no gravy.

Vegetables—As desired: asparagus, string beans, broccoli, cabbage, carrots, cauliflower, celery, chicory, cucumbers, escarolle, eggplant, lettuce, radishes, spinach, squash, tomatoes, tomato juice, turnips.

Fresh Fruits in Season—One portion of: blackberries, grapefruit, melon, orange, peach, pineapple, rapsberries, strawberries.

Beverage—Two Cups: coffee, tea, postum, Sanka.

Diet Arranged

This diet may be arranged as follows:

Breakfast

Fresh fruit—one portion
Skim milk—one cup
or beverage—one cup

Lunch

Meat or fish—one-fourth pound
Vegetables and salad from list as desired
Skim milk—one cup
or buttermilk—one cup
or beverage—one cup

Supper

Meat or fish—one-fourth pound (three times weekly, two eggs or one-fourth pound cottage or pot cheese)
Vegetables and salad from list as desired
Skim milk—one cup
or buttermilk—one cup

Non-Swimmer Rescues Boy and Wonders How

Cheyenne, Wyo. (AP)—Joseph Collins, 20, can't swim a stroke but he saved a six-year-old boy from drowning. Collins dived 18 feet from the top of a dam when he saw the boy floundering in the Laramie River. He doesn't know yet how he did it but he got the youngster to the side of the river, in shallow water, and then carried him to dry land. The boy was unconscious but revived.

In 1938 nearly 20,000 immigrants settled in Australia, a gain of 8,000 over the previous year.

Florida Newsies Know How To Sell Winter Visitors

Miami, Fla. (AP)—The winter tourist season is over, so ingenious Miami newsboys are back on local news again.

But when winter visitors are here in force, the newsies know how to make the greatest number of sales. There may be two brief paragraphs on page 16 about a bad automobile accident in Ohio, but he will locate it and Ohio visitors will hear it advertised at the top of his lungs. That goes for New York and other states' news, too.

One boy has a stock cry—he seldom calls anything except "More Bodies Found." Another on days lacking important news, shouts a list of comics his papers carry. His theory is that if a visitor followed a funny page character at home, he'll buy a Miami paper to see how things have developed.

But the visitors are gone now, so the boys are after home folks' nickels with shouted local headlines.

First 'Pay' Envelopes Come with Diplomas

Decatur, Neb., (AP) — The commencement exercises at Decatur High School were all but over when Superintendent H. S. Packwood distributed sealed envelopes to each graduate.

Thirty-one seniors lost all their nonchalance when they discovered crisp five dollar bills in each envelope, the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Evans, childless couple here who have maintained an interest in school work.

Where There's a Will--

Plymouth, England (AP) — To New York and back with a visit to the World's Fair and a ten-shilling profit to show on his half-crown capital is Roy Thwaites' achievement. He hitch-hiked, stowed away and begged.

Fresh--and Frozen--Fish

Brady, Tex (AP) — The fishing season's open so you can't believe everything you hear. Down on the San Saba river they are telling about a big rainstorm that washed hail stones into the stream. Big fish liked them and swallowed so many they were numbed. All the fishermen had to do was pull them into their boats when they floated to the surface.

Colt Gives Milk

Paoli, Okla. (AP)—A two-weeks-old filly on the farm of McAdoo Yoakum, near here, began giving milk recently. Yoakum called the State Department of Agriculture to ask what to do about the situation and they told him to milk her regularly. He obtained about one-half gallon of milk daily.

Hint on Etiquet

The long white veil is only worn at her wedding when the bride is young and has never before been married.

The bride walks to the altar on the right arm of her father, holding her bouquet on her right arm, her left arm through his.

The bride being married for the second time should not wear white satin and bridal veil. She may choose any color but white.

When the altar is reached, the bride relinquishes the right arm of her father, changes her bouquet from her right to her left arm, and holds out her right hand to her groom.

Don't forget that other people use the public sidewalks. Therefore, if two or three of you are walking together, give the one wishing to pass you a chance by "breaking phalanx" when they meet or overtake you.

When the first strains of the bridal march sound at a wedding, the ushers march down the aisle two and two, followed by the bridesmaids, then the maid of honor, the flower girl, and last the bride alone or on the arm of her father, brother or other male relative.

Wings of Youth.

By HELEN WELSHIMER

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

SYNOPSIS

SARAH ANNE MELTON, minister's daughter and close friend of JUDITH DRAKE, daughter of luxury, had a childhood romance with JACK COURTNEY, who attains sudden fame by flying the Pacific. To Perryville flies BOB KENNEDY, close friend of Jack's, receiving a broken leg in a crash at the airport.

CHAPTER ELEVEN

THE THOUGHT came to Sarah Anne, standing at the bottom of the wide, white steps that led to Judith's veranda, that the lilac scent from the flowering bushes was unbearably sweet. Then she forgot the lilacs, for the man spoke again, and it was Jack. She knew it, though emotion, bewildered and revolting, hurt and seeking, discolored the tones until only traces of the voice she knew came through.

"But what's it all about, Judy? Why did this happen to us? God knows, we didn't want it, too!"

"Not for all the stars in the sky!" Judy's voice was breathless, low, infinitely sad, yet—yet joyful, too.

"I love you. I want to put it in words, Judy. But now that it's said, you must never think of it again, never remember I said it. We aren't going to hurt Sarah Anne!" His voice became rough in its fierce determination.

"I can get along with those three words—forever," Judy was saying proudly. "Go ahead, Jack, forget you said them. But I won't. And that will be enough."

Sarah Anne couldn't see Judy, but she knew how she must look: tall and fair and bright, her courage shining like a scimitar that you felt though you could not see it.

Judy—

And Jack—

"Ah, darinig!" The man's arms opened, and the girl at the foot of the steps drew nearer — near enough to see the other girl walk into their shelter.

Then she knew, swiftly and clearly, what she must do. Knew it just as though a still small voice had commanded her. It was as though she had been walking toward this moment for days.

She ran up the steps, treading firmly so her sandal heels would make a sound against the steps. Then she managed a low laugh.

"Jack . . . Judy . . . you darlings, is it REAL?"

They moved apart. She saw the amazement in their eyes. Saw the quickness with which each strove for a careless note, one that would make the kiss a casual farewell, given in laughter by a boy to a girl who had been nice to him for an evening.

She saw how they groped for the right words, and she spoke before they found them.

"I'm so glad! Nothing—not anything could make me happier! Oh, what a load you've rolled away from my shoulders!"

She sat down on the low balustrade. Not because she wanted to sit, but because her legs wouldn't support her.

"Burden?" Judy asked, moving toward her.

"You see, Jack and I had some sort of a schoolboy-and-girl romance. I guess it was all the glamor and fanfare and drums that got me. And then I woke up and found that I'd been mistaken."

"You mean you discovered that you don't want to marry me, Sarah Anne?" Jack asked curiously, as though he didn't like the idea that she had reached the conclusion though he held the same one.

She laughed again. "Something of the sort. And isn't it lucky you were getting your eyes opened, too? I can't think of anything more wonderful than you two—you and Judy!"

She stayed while the bewilderment and fear in their faces gave way to joy and calmness. She heard them tell her she would always be their closest friend.

"But what made you change your mind?" Judy asked with almost clairvoyant perception. "Something had to. Speak up, Sarah Anne."

An unseen motor was making her voice speak, her lips laugh, her hands gesture. She said: "It's—it's pretty much a secret. But it's Bob—Bob Kennedy! We were caught up just as you two were, only . . ."

"Bob? Why, the old—Sarah Anne, that's great!" There was no mistaking the exuberance in Jack's voice. "Stealing my girl from under my eyes!"

("The girl you didn't want when you grew up, grew famous," Sarah Anne said, but she kept the words in her heart.)

"But what about Bernice?" Jack asked. "Is that over? I never did care for the dame. I can cangratulate Bob twice—once on getting you and once on ending that."

Bernice! The girl who smiled from the leather picture frame. Well, Bob would be well and gone soon and this nightmare would be ended. She would have to tell him, warn him.

She managed to say a word now and then, and finally stood up to leave.

"Don't go, Sarah Anne darling!" Judy put her arms around the smaller girl. "Tell me something, when you asked me to take that place beside Jack tonight was it because you already were beginning to know that you shouldn't be there?"

"Yes," Sarah Anne lied. "Already I knew. Now I must run along. I just dropped by—to—to—"

She had just dropped by to ask where Jack was. Now she knew. "Goodnight," she called, and went down the walk, out of the gate, along the quiet street. She waited at the corners until the traffic lights swung red lanterns, and she spoke cordially to the people she passed. And always she had this sense of being ethereal, unreal. She must hold to it. Because if she didn't she would be ill, very ill, far worse than she had been that day at the flying field when Jack's ship had crashed.

There wasn't anything true, stable, lasting. Nothing you hold to firmly and forever. Not ever that evasive, intangible substance called love. She must remember that now. Always. It would not be difficult. Surely one couldn't feel this way a second time, or if one could the pain would be easier. You would know that after a while it would go away. Everything went away.

She came to the church, and without conscious intent she opened the large outer door. She blessed the janitor who so often forgot to lock it. She went into the dark, shadowy auditorium, dropped down in the last pew, put her head on her arms on the seat in front of her.

"Dear God, please don't let it hurt so. Make me brave—braver than this. Give me pride, something to help. Don't let anyone know!"

She got up finally and crossed the lawn to the parsonage.

"Sarah Anne, where's Jack?" her mother called. "Come on and join us, dear. Miss Anne's just back from the drug store with some maple ice cream and Mattie tried a new walnut sauce. It's delicious."

Ice cream. People could still eat ice cream! But she dipped a silver spoon into the creamy concoction and forced it down her throat in slow bites. She must go on with the pattern of living — eating, sleeping, reading, teaching, telling stories, calling on the sick, playing the piano for Christian Endeavor. And never again would she feel the beating of wings and smile as her heart looked upward.

True, sharp pain was brief. But maybe the dull agony which followed was harder to bear. She did not know. She would find out.

She took a warm shower, then let the cold needles beat against her slim body. She brushed her hair until it was a dark halo, and finally sat down on the flower cushioned window seat to think a little while. She must plan tomorrow. First she would ask Bob to guard her secret. She could see his gray eyes lifted quizzically. But she would be matter-of-fact about it all.

"Both Judy and Jack have some inane idea that I'm putting my heart through romantic cartwheels for the young airman. It's stupid! We're just friends, but to get them together I had to tell them that I was head over heels in love with somebody else. Sorry, but you were the only reliable victim!"

Then he'd say, "Humph! Second helping, is it?" or something of the sort. "So you aren't carrying a torch for the lad? Good! Now I have a clear coast."

Anyway, he would be gay and bantering about it and help her.

Only, when she told him the next afternoon, sitting quietly in a white iron chair with her curls dark at the nape of her white neck, and a yellow tennis dress making her divide her age in two, he didn't answer the way she expected him to. He gave a long, low whistle. Then he said: "My dear Miss Arranger, is this going to be good! You bet I'll play up—don't look so scared, honey—but we are about to encounter a danger, a threat, in short, a galloping cyclone!"

Then Sarah Anne knew, swiftly and clearly, what she must do.

Hint on Etiquet

The long white veil is only worn at her wedding when the bride is young and has never before been married.

The bride walks to the altar on the right arm of her father, holding her bouquet on her right arm, her left arm through his.

The bride being married for the second time should not wear white satin and bridal veil. She may choose any color but white.

When the altar is reached, the bride relinquishes the right arm of her father, changes her bouquet from her right to her left arm, and holds out her right hand to her groom.

Don't forget that other people use the public sidewalks. Therefore, if two or three of you are walking together, give the one wishing to pass you a chance by "breaking phalanx" when they meet or overtake you.

When the first strains of the bridal march sound at a wedding, the ushers march down the aisle two and two, followed by the bridesmaids, then the maid of honor, the flower girl, and last the bride alone or on the arm of her father, brother or other male relative.

Co-ed Coercion

London (AP)—At a universoty mock trial here two pretty co-eds were fined 50 shillings each for "making alluring gestures at the magistrate by blowing kisses to the embffarrassment of the court."

Can't Even Propose

Wings of Youth.

SYNOPSIS

SARAH ANNE MELTON, minister's daughter and close friend of JUDITH DRAKE, daughter of luxury, had a childhood romance with JACK COURTNEY, who attains sudden fame by flying the Pacific. To Perryville flies BOB KENNEDY, close friend of Jack's, receiving a broken leg in a crash at the airport.

CHAPTER ELEVEN

THE THOUGHT came to Sarah Anne, standing at the bottom of the wide, white steps that led to Judith's veranda, that the lilac scent from the flowering bushes was unbearably sweet. Then she forgot the lilacs, for the man spoke again, and it was Jack. She knew it, though emotion, bewildered and revolting, hurt and seeking, discolored the tones until only traces of the voice she knew came through.

"But what's it all about, Judy? Why did this happen to us? God knows, we didn't want it, too!"

"Not for all the stars in the sky!" Judy's voice was breathless, low, infinitely sad, yet—yet joyful, too.

"I love you. I want to put it in words, Judy. But now that it's said, you must never think of it again, never remember I said it. We aren't going to hurt Sarah Anne!" His voice became rough in its fierce determination.

"I can get along with those three words—forever," Judy was saying proudly. "Go ahead, Jack, forget you said them. But I won't. And that will be enough."

Sarah Anne couldn't see Judy, but she knew how she must look: tall and fair and bright, her courage shining like a scimitar that you felt though you could not see it.

Judy—

And Jack—

"Ah, darling!" The man's arms opened, and the girl at the foot of the steps drew nearer — near enough to see the other girl walk into their shelter.

Then she knew, swiftly and clearly, what she must do. Knew it just as though a still small voice had commanded her. It was as though she had been walking toward this moment for days.

She ran up the steps, treading firmly so her sandal heels would make a sound against the steps. Then she managed a low laugh.

"Jack . . . Judy . . . you darlings, is it REAL?"

They moved apart. She saw the amazement in their eyes. Saw the quickness with which each strove for a careless note, one that would make the kiss a casual farewell, given in laughter by a boy to a girl who had been nice to him for an evening.

She saw how they groped for the right words, and she spoke before they found them.

"I'm so glad! Nothing—not anything could make me happier! Oh, what a load you've rolled away from my shoulders!"

She sat down on the low balustrade. Not because she wanted to sit, but because her legs wouldn't support her.

"Burden?" Judy asked, moving toward her.

"You see, Jack and I had some sort of a schoolboy-and-girl romance. I guess it was all the glamor and fanfare and drums that got me. And then I woke up and found that I'd been mistaken."

"You mean you discovered that you don't want to marry me, Sarah Anne?" Jack asked curiously, as though he didn't like the idea that she had reached the conclusion though he held the same one.

She laughed again. "Something of the sort. And isn't it lucky you were getting your eyes opened, too? I can't think of anything more wonderful than you two—you and Judy!"

She stayed while the bewilderment and fear in their faces gave way to joy and calmness. She heard them tell her she would always be their closest friend.

"But what made you change your mind?" Judy asked with almost clairvoyant perception. "Something had to. Speak up, Sarah Anne."

Then Sarah Anne knew, swiftly and clearly, what she must do.

An unseen motor was making her voice speak, her lips laugh, her hands gesture. She said: "It's—it's pretty much a secret. But it's Bob—Bob Kennedy! We were caught up just as you two were, only . . ."

"Bob? Why, the old—Sarah Anne, that's great!" There was no mistaking the exuberance in Jack's voice. "Stealing my girl from under my eyes!"

("The girl you didn't want when you grew up, grew famous," Sarah Anne said, but she kept the words in her heart.)

"But what about Bernice?" Jack asked. "Is that over? I never did care for the dame. I can cangratulate Bob twice—once on getting you and once on ending that."

Bernice! The girl who smiled from the leather picture frame. Well, Bob would be well and gone soon and this nightmare would be ended. She would have to tell him, warn him.

She managed to say a word now and then, and finally stood up to leave.

"Don't go, Sarah Anne darling!" Judy put her arms around the smaller girl. "Tell me something, when you asked me to take that place beside Jack tonight was it because you already were beginning to know that you shouldn't be there?"

"Yes," Sarah Anne lied. "Already I knew. Now I must run along. I just dropped by—to—to—"

She had just dropped by to ask where Jack was. Now she knew. "Goodnight," she called, and went down the walk, out of the gate, along the quiet street. She waited at the corners until the traffic lights swung red lanterns, and she spoke cordially to the people she passed. And always she had this sense of being ethereal, unreal. She must hold to it. Because if she didn't she would be ill, very ill, far worse than she had been that day at the flying field when Jack's ship had crashed.

There wasn't anything true, stable, lasting. Nothing you hold to firmly and forever. Not ever that evasive, intangible substance called love. She must remember that now. Always. It would not be difficult. Surely one couldn't feel this way a second time, or if one could the pain would be easier. You would know that after a while it would go away. Everything went away.

She came to the church, and without conscious intent she opened the large outer door. She blessed the janitor who so often forgot to lock it. She went into the dark, shadowy auditorium, dropped down in the last pew, put her head on her arms on the seat in front of her.

"Dear God, please don't let it hurt so. Make me brave—braver than this. Give me pride, something to help. Don't let anyone know!"

She got up finally and crossed the lawn to the parsonage.

"Sarah Anne, where's Jack?" her mother called. "Come on and join us, dear. Miss Anne's just back from the drug store with some maple ice cream and Mattie tried a new walnut sauce. It's delicious."

Ice cream. People could still eat ice cream! But she dipped a silver spoon into the creamy concoction and forced it down her throat in slow bites. She must go on with the pattern of living — eating, sleeping, reading, teaching, telling stories, calling on the sick, playing the piano for Christian Endeavor. And never again would she feel the beating of wings and smile as her heart looked upward.

True, sharp pain was brief. But maybe the dull agony which followed was harder to bear. She did not know. She would find out.

She took a warm shower, then let the cold needles beat against her slim body. She brushed her hair until it was a dark halo, and finally sat down on the flower cushioned window seat to think a little while. She must plan tomorrow. First she would ask Bob to guard her secret. She could see his gray eyes lifted quizzically. But she would be matter-of-fact about it all.

"Both Judy and Jack have some inane idea that I'm putting my heart through romantic cartwheels for the young airman. It's stupid! We're just friends, but to get them together I had to tell them that I was head over heels in love with somebody else. Sorry, but you were the only reliable victim!"

Then he'd say, "Humph! Second helping, is it?" or something of the sort. "So you aren't carrying a torch for the lad? Good! Now I have a clear coast."

Anyway, he would be gay and bantering about it and help her.

Only, when she told him the next afternoon, sitting quietly in a white iron chair with her curls dark at the nape of her white neck, and a yellow tennis dress making her divide her age in two, he didn't answer the way she expected him to. He gave a long, low whistle. Then he said: "My dear Miss Arranger, is this going to be good! You bet I'll play up—don't look so scared, honey—but we are about to encounter a danger, a threat, in short, a galloping cyclone!"

Missionary Society Meets at Home of Mrs. Paul Kinsinger

Ladies of St. Johns Reformed Church Entertained at Grantsville

Grantsville, June 14.—Mrs. Paul Kinsinger entertained the ladies of St. John's Reformed church Missionary Society, and a few additional guests, last evening at her home near here. Mrs. Byron H. Bender, president, called the meeting to order and presided. Readings were given by Mrs. Floyd Durst and Mrs. Hobart Speicher, and Mrs. Benny Epstine continued her discussion of Basil Mathew's book, "The Church Takes Root in India." For this month's lesson she chose the chapter, "The Gateway Into a New Life."

The society decided to hold the annual picnic next month instead of the regular meeting. This outing will be held at Hi-Point Camp, about three miles west of Grantsville, Wednesday, July 12.

Refreshments were enjoyed during the social hour which followed the meeting. Twenty-two members and the following guests were present: Mrs. Mary Gnagey Horn, Broadhead, Wis.; Miss June Bittinger, Akron, O.; Miss Mary Kinsinger, Mrs. Joel Kinsinger, Betty Beachy and Marie Durst.

Teachers Reappointed

HIGH SCHOOL: Frank J. Getty, principal; Miss Emma Caulk, Mrs. Maurice S. Brookhart, Miss Mabel Schlossnagle, Mrs. Julius Renninger, W. E. Tarbell and William Grimm. Mrs. W. J. Glenn, head of the music department, Miss Jean Young, head of the department.

ELEMENTARY SCHOOL: Mrs. Benny Epstine, first grade; Miss Zeola Layman, second grade; Miss Ruth Keefe, third grade; Miss Eva Griffith, fifth grade; Miss Leona Clark, sixth grade, and Edwin Elias, seventh grade.

Mrs. Scott Holliday, who has been teaching the fourth grade for several years, has been granted a leave of absence and her successor has not as yet been definitely decided upon.

Remodel Store

For the past few weeks Broadwater Brothers have been remodeling their general store here. Instead of having an individual room for the dry goods, ready to wear, and grocery departments they have taken out partitions and made the store into one large room. They also added modern methods of displaying the merchandise by installing tables similar to those used in chain stores. These changes are quite an improvement and show the local merchants are keeping up with the times.

To Build New Room

Aa a recent meeting of the congregation of St. John's Reformed church, it was definitely decided to add a Sunday school room to the church building. Work is to be started immediately. The new addition will be of frame construction, 40x60 feet, and will also include a kitchen and a stage. This will provide convenience for the Missionary society as well as young people's activities. All materials will be purchased locally and labor for the excavation will be furnished by the members. Frank Wright, Addison., Pa., will do the carpentry work.

Brief Mention

Miss June Bittinger, Akron, O., has arrived to spend the summer with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Joel A. Beachy. Miss Bittinger is also a granddaughter of Mrs. Wilson Bittinger, Grantsville.

Blind Graduate To Claim Bride

Charleston Honor Student Will Open Office To Practice Law

Morgantown, W. Va., June 14. (AP)—He's blind but that didn't prevent 22-year-old Albert Good, of Charleston, from graduating at the head of his class at the West Virginia University Law School or keep him from election to Phi Beta Kappa, honorary scholastic fraternity or from achieving other high honors on the university campus.

His story has been one of achievement ever since his high school days. Albert was blinded while playing. A baseball bat which shattered, the splinters flying into the lad's eyes, put out the sight of one; a playmate, in another mishap, blinded the sight of the other. Albert then was in junior high school. He continued his studies with his mother reading his lessons. Schoolmates guided him to classes.

The same system continued through his high school days at Charleston although in time Albert was able to guide himself around the streets of the city. He graduated as valedictorian of his class and as a member of the high school orchestra.

Then on to college where things were slightly different. Friends, John Abbott, of Morgantown, and James Robinson, of Grafton, were his companions who studied orally with him, read all of his lessons and led him about the campus. Albert answered all of the questions on his typewriting and took his lecture notes in braille.

He organized a campus orchestra and paid part of his college expenses. And, in addition, he was elected a member of the university board of publications, to the Order of Coif, highest honorary society in the college of law and to several other honorary fraternities.

He's planning a wedding now to pretty Martha Walter, a teacher of home economics at the Morgantown high school. And then he's going to open a law office in Charleston.

Tree Planting on Farms Increases

Total Is Doubled Since 1935, Specialist Reports

College Park, June 14—Maryland has distributed 250,000 forest trees throughout the state since 1935 under the Clarke-McNary law, passed in 1924, which provides for allotment of federal funds to states matching such appropriations for carrying on fire protection work in forests and for furnishing forest seedlings for planting on farms.

According to C. F. Winslow, specialist in forestry for the University of Maryland Extension Service, the seedlings planted in this state cover approximately 205 acres of land and those planted in 1938 averaged ninety percent survival.

According to a recent report, farmers throughout the nation have more than doubled their tree planting activities since 1935. A total of 55,359,728 trees were distributed last year which was more than double the 26,150,197 trees distributed four years ago. The young trees are seedlings and transplants which farmers can plant at the rate of 500 to 1,000 per day.

According to the law, the tree distribution is made by the state forestry agencies, and the trees can be used only for forest plantings on farms. Expenditure by the federal government during the last year in this program was $75,286.33, while the states spent $306,910.33 on the cooperative project. States distribute the trees at cost or less in order to encourage farm forestry. The states spent an additional $363,135.25 on outside projects which include free distribution of trees for planting by community forests, 4-H Clubs, schools and similar oganizations.

Former Glass Worker Says Foreman Warned Employes against CIO

Fairmont, W. Va., June 14 (AP)—Owens-Illinois Glass Company employes were warned by a foreman against the CIO union, a witness testified today at a Labor Relations Board hearing on charges of unfair labor practices filed against the company.

Ray C. Morgan who said he worked for the company told the trial examiner that Ray Burchett, a foreman, had advised him and others concerning the union membership.

James Shaffer, a company tractor driver testified a company official asked him to act as a labor "spy," was called back to the stand today for cross examination.

Attorneys indicated they would recall Shaffer for further questioning tomorrow.

The company counsel, Henry Middleton, argued that men furloughed in 1937 would have been let off because of business conditions regardless of the existence of the CIO.

The men were more recently rehired, he asserted, because of an increase in orders.

Charges of unfair labor practices were filed by the Federation of Flat Glass Workers.

According to a recent report, farmers throughout the nation have more than doubled their tree planting activities since 1935. A total of 55,359,728 trees were distributed last year which was more than double the 26,150,197 trees distributed four years ago. The young trees are seedlings and transplants which farmers can plant at the rate of 500 to 1,000 per day.

According to the law, the tree distribution is made by the state forestry agencies, and the trees can be used only for forest plantings on farms. Expenditure by the federal government during the last year in this program was $75,286.33, while the states spent $306,910.33 on the cooperative project. States distribute the trees at cost or less in order to encourage farm forestry. The states spent an additional $363,135.25 on outside projects which include free distribution of trees for planting by community forests, 4-H Clubs, schools and similar oganizations.

Former Glass Worker Says Foreman Warned Employes against CIO

Fairmont, W. Va., June 14 (AP)—Owens-Illinois Glass Company employes were warned by a foreman against the CIO union, a witness testified today at a Labor Relations Board hearing on charges of unfair labor practices filed against the company.

Ray C. Morgan who said he worked for the company told the trial examiner that Ray Burchett, a foreman, had advised him and others concerning the union membership.

James Shaffer, a company tractor driver testified a company official asked him to act as a labor "spy," was called back to the stand today for cross examination.

Attorneys indicated they would recall Shaffer for further questioning tomorrow.

The company counsel, Henry Middleton, argued that men furloughed in 1937 would have been let off because of business conditions regardless of the existence of the CIO.

The men were more recently rehired, he asserted, because of an increase in orders.

A NECK AND NECK RACE

THE OPPONENTS of a No Trump declarer often are engaged in a race with him to see which can develop its quota of tricks the more rapidly. Many a time the declarer can see how to develop the nine tricks needed for game, but if the opponents take five before he gets nine, he has run his race too slowly, and there are not enough tricks left for him.

(Dealer: West. North-South vulnerable.)

At both tables of a team-of-four match, East got into 3-No Trumps on this deal. West bidding 1-Diamond, East 1-Spade, West 2-Diamonds and East 3-No Trumps. In each case South led the heart 10, which declarer could read as being probably from a holding containing the K and 9, so he came up with the Q in the dummy.

Both declarers then counted on seven tricks in the red suits, needing two in the black suits. One declarer elected to try for them in spades and led the J, which lost to the K, North returning his heart J. Declarer let this win, and took the next heart with the A. He then led another spade to the A and North shifted to a club to the A. South then cashing the setting heart.

The other declarer saw he could not afford to lose the lead twice, so, after winning the first trick, led the club 10, which was covered by the J, K and A. The declarer now had his two black tricks established in clubs, so made his game easily.

A NECK AND NECK RACE

THE OPPONENTS of a No Trump declarer often are engaged in a race with him to see which can develop its quota of tricks the more rapidly. Many a time the declarer can see how to develop the nine tricks needed for game, but if the opponents take five before he gets nine, he has run his race too slowly, and there are not enough tricks left for him.

(Dealer: West. North-South vulnerable.)

At both tables of a team-of-four match, East got into 3-No Trumps on this deal, West bidding 1-Diamond, East 1-Spade, West 2-Diamonds and East 3-No Trumps. In each case South led the heart 10, which declarer could read as being probably from a holding containing the K and 9, so he came up with the Q in the dummy.

Both declarers then counted on seven tricks in the red suits, needing two in the black suits. One declarer elected to try for them in spades and led the J, which lost to the K. North returning his heart J. Declarer let this win, and took the next heart with the A. He then led another spade to the A and North shifted to a club to the A. South then cashing the setting heart.

The other declarer saw he could not afford to lose the lead twice, so, after winning the first trick, led the club 10, which was covered by the J, K and A. The declarer now had his two black tricks established in clubs, so made his game easily.

Eating Too Much Overweight Cause

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

At a clinic in a medical school on the eastern seaboard I saw a very skilful experiment of making a patient prove that he was overweight because he ate too much. The patient was a boy about 15 years old and he was a whale.

The lecturer started in by asking him whether he didn't think he ate a good deal, and the boy said, "No." Then the lecturer proceeded to bring out the following facts:

He said, "Does your mother do the cooking at home?"

The boy said, "Yes," and added he believed his mother was the best cook on earth. He loved his mother's cooking.

"Well," said the lecturer, "what do you like to have for breakfast?"

The boy said he liked a couple of glasses of milk to start out with, and some fruit, preferably something like strawberries that he could put cream on. Then he had a pretty good-sized dish of oatmeal and put a good deal of cream and sugar on it. Then he had a couple of eggs and some bacon and toast.

The doctor asked him whether his mother made good wheat cakes. He said he thought his mother made the best wheat cakes of anybody in the world; and he usually asked her to make some every morning for breakfast because he felt he could do his school work better if he had some wheat cakes.

In reply to a question he said he put a good deal of maple syrup on because his father got some special maple syrup of which he was very fond, and after he had a plate or two of wheat cakes, he usually mopped up the maple syrup with some bread.

Was there any butter put on the wheat cakes?

Oh, yes! He had lots of butter on the wheat cakes.

In this way, talking mostly about his favorite dishes according to his mother's cooking, the lecturer brought out the fact that the boy was eating at three meals a day about eight times as much as he needed. This was to bring out the point which we have mentioned, that all overweight is due to too much food.

It seems an obvious and mathematical conclusion, but in spite of its logic, remember how regularly fat people insist that they don't eat any more than anybody else. They simply don't realize how much they do eat. This boy said he didn't eat any more than his sister. So they brought his sister in. She was about a year older than he was and weighed something like 50 or 60 pounds less. She gave the show away by telling what an enormous appetite he had and how much he ate. She also said he ate several little snacks in between meals.

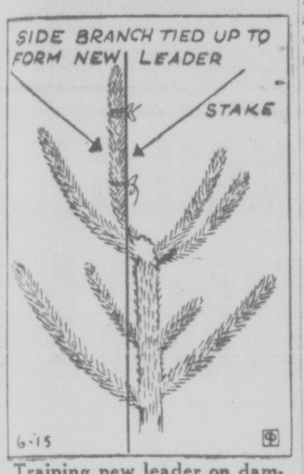

Whether children or grown people, whether they fool themselves or not by saying they don't eat any more than other people, the simple face is the mathematical one, that too much food is the cause of overweight.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

M. R. T.: "I have a baby 11 months old who seems to be developing knock knees. I would like to know whether this can be corrected."

Answer: Yes. It sounds as if the baby has rickets. Consult a doctor at once.

Today's GARDEN-GRAPH

By DEAN HALL DAY

When the main stem or leader on evergreens such as the spruce, fir and pine is broken or damaged the tree is apt to become misshapen unless a new leader is trained to take the place of the old one.

How to train a new leader for a damaged evergreen is shown in today's Garden-Graph. Use a top side branch, tie it to a thin stake placed upright through the center of the evergreens, as illustrated, and leave to grow into upright position.

In fastening the side branch to the stake use only cloth tape or a very soft cord that will not cut into the soft surface of the branch.

Rattlesnake Bites Kill Mountaineer

Logan, W. Va., June 14 (AP)—For fifteen years Lee Mooney awed more timorous citizens by strolling through town with rattlesnakes in his shirt bosom—today he is dead from a rattler's bite.

The 77-year-old mountaineer often entertained by "charming" newly captured rattlesnakes, tying them in knots and winding them about his body, and usually asked for one to add to the collection in his own home.

Monday "Snakes" gave an exhibition before the Logan county sportsmen's club and one of the snakes, just caught, bit him. He paid little attention and as usual went home with another one for his collection.

Mooney placed his dependence in a home remedy, but as he entered the hospital today he said:

"I guess it just wasn't mixed right."

Was there any butter put on the wheat cakes?

Oh, yes! He had lots of butter on the wheat cakes.

In this way, talking mostly about his favorite dishes according to his mother's cooking, the lecturer brought out the fact that the boy was eating at three meals a day about eight times as much as he needed. This was to bring out the point which we have mentioned, that all overweight is due to too much food.

It seems an obvious and mathematical conclusion, but in spite of its logic, remember how regularly fat people insist that they don't eat any more than anybody else. They simply don't realize how much they do eat. This boy said he didn't eat any more than his sister. So they brought his sister in. She was about a year older than he was and weighed something like 50 or 60 pounds less. She gave the show away by telling what an enormous appetite he had and how much he ate. She also said he ate several little snacks in between meals.

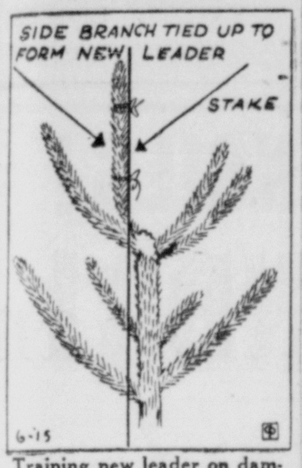

Whether children or grown people, whether they fool themselves or not by saying they don't eat any more than other people, the simple face is the mathematical one, that too much food is the cause of overweight.

Today's GARDEN-GRAPH

By DEAN HALL DAY

When the main stem or leader on evergreens such as the spruce, fir and pine is broken or damaged the tree is apt to become misshapen unless a new leader is trained to take the place of the old one.

How to train a new leader for a damaged evergreen is shown in today's Garden-Graph. Use a top side branch, tie it to a thin stake placed upright through the center of the evergreens, as illustrated, and leave to grow into upright position.

In fastening the side branch to the stake use only cloth tape or a very soft cord that will not cut into the soft surface of the branch.

Rattlesnake Bites Kill Mountaineer

Logan, W. Va., June 14 (AP)—For fifteen years Lee Mooney awed more timorous citizens by strolling through town with rattlesnakes in his shirt bosom—today he is dead from a rattler's bite.

The 77-year-old mountaineer often entertained by "charming" newly captured rattlesnakes, tying them in knots and winding them about his body, and usually asked for one to add to the collection in his own home.

Monday "Snakes" gave an exhibition before the Logan county sportsmen's club and one of the snakes, just caught, bit him. He paid little attention and as usual went home with another one for his collection.

Mooney placed his dependence in a home remedy, but as he entered the hospital today he said:

"I guess it just wasn't mixed right."

Prolonging Mother's Days

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Let me entreat my fellow parents to work out a summer program whereby each youngster who is old enough will have a regular list of home responsibilities from which he can't escape.

Many a mother could prolong her days were she to use her head more and her hands and feet less—her head to cultivate in children old enough to do so a spirit of co-operating in the home responsibilities. While promoting her own physical welfare, she can be building good qualities of character in her children.

How can our children grow spiritually unless they learn to help about the home? And how are they going to learn to help without proper guidance?

When you go visiting with your children this summer, see that they take certain responsibilities, that they exercise consideration for those visited, and that they help do some of the extra work their presence causes. It always has seemed to me very harmful morally for children over six or eight to visit with grandparents or other relatives or friends, as is likely during the summer, and prove a burden to these kind relatives and friends.

To Both Sexes

Let this principle apply alike to boys and girls. There is practically nothing about the home that a boy cannot learn to do as well as a girl can. It's all a matter of early training in right attitudes and habits.

And when your child, through lack of tidiness in respect to his own things, or through carelessness or destructiveness of property about the home visited, causes the hosts needless extra work and worry, there is, in addition to injustice to those being visited, very grave danger to the character of your child. Of course, we best train our children to do right away from home by training them to do right when at home.

New Hazards

Then there constantly arise new hazards to the toddler and runabout when you take them away from home. On arriving at a new place, first look about to discern the obvious dangers to your child, especially at a farm home, if you live in a city. The young child is inclined to explore. If there are dangers, he will be pretty sure to face them. Make clear to the child the few perilous places where he must not go and the dangerous things he must not do. Fortunate is the child who, from earlier training, will avoid these dangers without further warning. As you see, safety presupposes adequate early restraints and wholesome respect for authority.

A quiet period of one or two hours each afternoon will be desirable. At this time no playmates will be entertained and the children will be on the porch or lawn or indoors lying down, or reading, or engaging in quiet, non-exciting games. It will be quiet enough then for those who should sleep to do so.

Winter Will Come

By HELEN FOLLETT

YOUTH, skipping through life's spring time, seldom stops to think that autumn will eventually be on the way, that winter is bound to come. Youth is going places, dancing, having a grand time and that's as it should be. There are romances, thrilling experiences on the horizon. But youth is not made of wire and fiddle strings. Late hours, lack of sleep, wrong eating habits will bring a host of beauty griefs, and in the twenties tiny wrinkles may appear.

There's many a young worker who, after the gay evening, tags into the office with circles under her eyes, feet lagging. At lunch time she contents herself with a cup of coffee; at four o'clock she wilts like a flower in the sun. That night she's out again. That pace can't be continued without injury to the health, the nervous system and appearance. Nature has laid down laws; one must get plenty of sleep, keep well nourished or things are going to happen.

All the cosmetics in the world, all the treatments of the beauty works won't remove evidence of fatigue. And the tired girl cannot be charming. She's all in, eyes dull, complexion pale.

Health is fashionable. Men enjoy the company of girls who love outdoor life, whose spirits are lively, eyes bright, minds animated. To be topnotch one must be in form. We realize that health rules don't interest the youngsters, but we keep on harping just the same. Some seeds may fall on fertile ground.

Tree Bark Used as Piscatorial 'Mickey Finn'

Miami, Fla. (AP)—Two plants described as "fish killers" grow in Florida.

Dr. John C. Gifford, professor of forestry at the University of Miami, said the ground-up bark from the root of a Jamaica dogwood tree or the crushed seeds from a soapberry bush, lowered into a rock hole, will knock out any fish hiding there.

They float to the surface, but after five minutes recover and swim away. The plants also grow in South America, where uncivilized tribes use them to catch fish, Dr. Gifford reported.

DEAF ENED WOMAN HEARS CLOCK TICK

I was so deafened I could hear nothing. Now I can hear the clock tick, "writes Mrs. I. C. Goldsboro, N. C. If you are deafened, bothered by ringing, buzzing head noises, this may be caused or aggravated by imbedded wax or a septic condition. Try the treatment that thousands say has enabled them to hear well again. It is called Ourine, a Vienna specialist's antiseptic prescription. Used since 1895—over a million packages sold. Safe ingredients as listed in U. S. Pharmacopeia. Money refunded if not satisfied. Costs only a few cents daily. Ask about Ourine. Your druggist has or can get OURINE for you.

College Education Not a Guarantee Of Success in Life

Chicago, June 14 (AP)—This year's crop of collegians has received some frank advice today anent the facts of life in the world beyond the campus.

From President Robert M. Hutchins of the University of Chicago came the warning that a diploma carried no written guarantee of success.

From Dr. Samuel N. Stevens, Dean of the University College at Northwestern University, came the opinion that there was no future for the average woman in business whether she was a college graduate or left school at the end of the sixth grade.

"We know now that graduation from college does not carry with it the promise that the graduate will even be able to make a living, to say nothing of acquiring great wealth," said Dr. Hutchins in an address to 799 candidates for degrees at his school.

"We must recognize that you may never make a nickel that you would not have made if you had never come here, that your education will not hoist you by so much as a single rung up the social ladder, and that with the finest degree in America you may have to support yourselves by pushing buttons eight hours a day. x x x"

Aroused by Sirens

Then, adding a third siren to the uproar, an ambulance speeded toward the scene of an accident.

Sunlight is one of the world's greatest antiseptics; it is a powerful killer of bacteria.

Methodists Will Meet In W. Va. for Merger

Fairmont, W. Va., June 13 (AP)—Merger of West Virginia's Methodist churches will form one of the largest conferences in the new church with more than 175,000 members.

Bishop Adna Wright Leonard of the Pittsburgh district, said at Huntington between 1,200 and 1,300 persons will meet here September 5-8 to effect the merger.

The three present West Virginia conferences will meet separately and then unite as one huge organinzation.

Bishop Leonard said the number of lay and ministerial delegates will outnumber by 300 or 400 the number attending the uniting conference at Kansas City.

113 and Going Strong

Vancouver, Wash. (AP) — Vancouver's historic apple tree, planted 113 years ago — 63 years before Washington became a state, is blooming again and promises to yield a good crop. Two plant pathologists "mother" the aged tree, giving it special fertilizer feeding and insecticide baths. The men believe the tree has another 100 years of life left in it if it has proper care.

Vancouver, Wash. (AP) — Vancouver's historic apple tree, planted 113 years ago — 63 years before Washington became a state, is blooming again and promises to yield a good crop. Two plant pathologists "mother" the aged tree, giving it special fertilizer feeding and insecticide baths. The men believe the tree has another 100 years of life left in it if it has proper care.

Cleveland Trades Earl Averill to Detroit

Indians Receive Pitcher Eisenstat And 'Wad' of Cash

Speculation Is That Eisenstat Will Go to Browns for Heffner

Browns Send Thompson to Newark; Phils Sell Parmelee to Louisville

Cleveland, June 14 (AP)—Baseball's David Harums sent Earl Averill, Cleveland outfielder who has a lifetime big league batting average of .322, to the Detroit Tigers today for southpaw Harry Eisenstat and a wad of greenbacks — and threw in a couple of lesser deals for good measure.

Immediately there was speculation as to whether the Indians would beat the Major League trading deadline of midnight tomorrow and sell Eisenstat down the river to the St. Louis Browns for second baseman Don Heffner, long coveted by the Tribe.

The Browns optioned outfielder Rupert Thompson today to Newark of the International League — a deal said to have no connection with St. Louis' purchase yesterday of Joe Gallagher, Newark's hard-hitting outfielder.

In another deal the Louisville Colonels of the American Association purchased Leroy Parmelee, veteran right-hand pitcher, from the Philadelphia Athletics.

C. C. Slapnicka, Cleveland vice president, said the Indians still were trying to obtain infield strength — they had too many outfielders until they traded Averill—and remarked "well, if we can't get anybody, we have a couple of good boys over in Buffalo we can bring up."

The SPORT TRAIL

BY WHITNEY MARTIN

New York, June 14 (AP)—Oscar Vitt reckoned there's to be a hot time in the old town tonight—and he still hasn't got his infielder.

He was referring to the deal which sent Earl Averill, popular Cleveland outfielder, to Detroit for pitcher Harry Eisenstat and cash. The little skipper took a philosophical view of the transaction.

"We'll have a lot of explaining to do in Cleveland," he opined. "Earl's very popular. He's a fine player and very easy to handle, doing what he is told without question. He was late reporting and got off to a slow start. He'll help Detroit."

"I'll say he'll help Detroit," a listener chimed in. "And they're only three and a half games behind us and coming fast."

"And I still haven't got my infielder," moaned Vitt. "Yes, we hoped to make a deal even before the season started. Our infield sometimes gives the other team two or three runs a game, and you can't do that against a team like the Yankees. We've lost about six games that way.

"No, I think we came out all right on the deal. We had too many good outfielders and would have to keep one on the bench. Eisenstat is a young pitcher, but has lots of promise. He pitched the last game against us last year when Bob Feller struck out 18, but Detroit won."

It was suggested Eisenstat might be passed along to the Browns for an infielder. Vitt pursed his lips.

"Maybe," he ventured. "Maybe."

In his room the husky, aggressive Averill was busy packing his bags.

"I haven't heard anything official yet," he said. "But it's all right with me. I always said that if I had to leave Cleveland I'd rather go to Detroit than anywhere else. Of course I hate to leave.

"I don't know what I'll play with Detroit. Yes, I guess I could play any field, but I prefer center field. Sure, I bet they raise the dickens in Cleveland over the trade." This last remark was without conceit. Just a plain opinion.

The sideliners think that from the player standpoint the Tigers got the best of the deal. However, Eisenstat might win a few games, and there always is the possibility he might be good trading fodder for an infielder. Besides, as Vitt pointed out, there was no percentage in keeping a good outfielder sitting on the bench. And Bruce Campbell can fill in the outfield very nicely.

Wooderson's Trainer Promises Record Mile

(Released by North American Newspaper Alliance)

New York, June 14.—Rain washed Sydney Charles Wooderson off the cinder track at Princeton, along with some of the local flora and fauna, and gave England's fastest human, if he is human, a chance to speculate on next Saturday's mile of the century from an Armchair.

The chair would have held six like Sydney Charles Wooderson. He lays claim to 126 pounds, the featherweight limit, but my own guess is 116, when he takes off his glasses. Wooderson seems to be mostly all glasses and legs, and even his legs do not look so tough when sheathed in form-fitting socks and bon ton garters.

"What about Cunningham?" said this spoonful of old England.

"Yes, what about him?" said Mr. Al Hill, his trainer. "Is it a joke? He says he isn't ready to run Saturday. He says he will probably run last in the race. What about that?"

"I came over here to meet Cunningham," said Wooderson. "He's the man I want to beat. I hope he's in condition to give me a race. I was counting on him to make a fast pace and give one of us a chance to break the record. Now I hear that he is practically at death's door, even though he means to run. Is it true?"

Mr. Wooderson's suspicions are easy to understand. For years Mr. Glenn Cunningham, America's master miler, has been one of the shrillest wolf-criers in the world. He yelled about the rheumatism in his calves and the misery in his ankles and the cold in his chest, and the next day he would go out and run all the well men into the ground.

"When Cunningham says he don't feel good," Gene Venzke used to warn, "wach out! He's liable to bust the record and kill the men he's running against."

This rumor probably reached the ears of Wooderson, over in England, and he's not sure now whether Glenn is leveling about his rotten condition or whether the grass-lunged Kansas is setting a trap.

Your correspondent doesn't know whether Cunningham was just howling "wolf!" to hear the sound of his voice or not, but those who have watched this devious fellow lately consider him a sucker to run against Wooderson.

They say his roadwork on lecture tours out of the university of Kansas has been done excsusively by automobile. They say his legs are cramped and rusty. They say he will tie himself into knots if he tries to break 4:10 at Princeton Saturday.

"Well, I'm sorry to hear it," said Wooderson ruefully. "I thought he'd point for this race as I did. It means a lot to me. I've come a long way to see America and run against the best men in America. I wanted to beat Cunningham at his best. But perhaps the race will be a good one, anyway.

"It will," said Trainer Hill, who was Great Britain's foremost Olympic runner before the days of Wooderson and Jack Lovelock. Mr. Hill seemed extremely confident. "Don't worry about it. This lad here has the most beautiful sense of pace I ever saw, and, if I send him out to run 4:04, under good conditions, he'll probably do it running all alone, without a soul in the field."

Your correspondent assured Mr. Hill that there would be a couple of other souls in the field, even if Cunningham is left at the post. Chuck Fenske, of Wisconsin, currently the hottest distance runner in America, will be there, and so will Archie San Romani, Kansas's famous double winner (cornet and mile run). In fact, Mr. San Romani, though he has done little more training for the event that Cunningham, is full of beans and sass, and promises to run Mr. Wooderson right back to England, on foot.

"I'll win it," says this light-hearted hot trumpeter, who is the Dizzy Dean of the running racket. "That 4:04 mile is my dish."

Maybe we had better forget about the 4:04 mile for the time being. It will save us a lot of disappointment if the boys run a slow race, as they sometimes do in these miles of the century. Maybe We ought to settle for 4:10.

But Al Hill, the English trainer, refuses to compromise.

"This lad runs as advertised," said Mr. Hill, pointing so hard at Mr. Wooderson that he almost knocked him over. "He'll win the race in record time, mark my words."

Mark those words, Miss Fotheringale. Maybe we'll ask Mr. Hill to eat them, later on.

Jimmy Braddock Declares Louis Is All-Time Top

Former Champion Says Joe Is Fine Boxer and Great Puncher

Brown Bomber Can Box With Best and Hurt With Either Hand

By GRANTLAND RICE

Pompton Lakes, N. J., June 14—"Just how good is Joe Louis?"

I put this question to Jim Braddock, one of the gamest and one of the smartest ringmen of his time when it came to action inside the ropes. And that's where it counts.

"I'll tell you why I think Louis is the all-time top," Braddock said.

"There have been almost no other heavyweights who were both good boxers and hard punchers. Remember the day when Jim Corbett told us no fighter could be both. He had to make his choice. Jim said that day that he was once a hard puncher, but decided to become a boxer instead. Dempsey was the puncher. Tunney was the boxer. That's just one example.

"Now I'll tell you about Louis," Braddock continued. "He is first of all a fine boxer. That's his main foundation. I know what good boxing is, and Louis can box with any heavyweight I ever saw. If Louis was only a fair puncher, he would still be hard to outpoint in 15 rounds. He knows his stuff along this line.

The Additional Part

"Now we'll take Louis as a puncher," Braddock said, "and we'll just move along from there. Can he punch with his right hand or hurt you with his left. Dempsey had a killing left. Jeffries could hurt with that left-handed bear paw of his. But Louis can murder you with either hand. I know how it feels when you get in the ring with Louis. I've been there, so I'm not guessing.

"You know you can't outbox him. If he only had a good left or a good right you could swing away from either, just outjockey him as I did Max Baer. But Louis can hit just as hard with one hand as he can with the other. He hit me with both, so again I'm not guessing. That's what makes it tough. A fellow who knows the ring game, who uses his head, can keep away from a right or a left. But he can't keep away from both. I was looking for that left hook in Chicago when he hit me with a right that came near tearing my head off.

"So what can you do against a fellow who can outbox you and outhit you with both hands? Tell me the answer to that one."

The Point of Balance

"What gives Louis this double or triple combination?" I asked Braddock.

"Balance," Jim said. "I'm not much of a golfer, but any good golfer will tell you he must have balance through his swings. Balance is everything in sport. Louis is a flat-footed shuffler. But he's always in position to throw a sharp jab or to hit and hurt with either hand.

"Did you ever see Louis throwing a punch when you are going away? You never did. He nails you coming to him—and, boy, that's when it hurts most. It gives him almost double force. He hit me a short left jab when I was coming in that almost drove my mouth guard through my teeth. They tell me Bill Tilden had the same thing as a tennis player. He was always on balance."

(Note—Tilden has told me the same thing more than once. "A good tennis player should be on balance for every type of shot," Bill said. "No one has ever geen good enough to stroke off balance.")

"That's why I say that Joe Louis is the best all-around heavyweight that ever lived," Braddock said.

"Jim Corbett was the master boxer. We all know that. Jim Jeffries, in his prime, was the toughest and the most rugged. And he could hurt you with that left. Bob Fitzsimmons could box and punch. But Bob was 35 when he reached the top—too old and too brittle then. Dempsey was the fire ball. Jack had the greatest ring spirit of them all. But he always had trouble against boxers — Harry Greb in his training camp, Bill Brennan for 10 rounds before old Bill wilted, Tom Gibbons, and then Tunney. As great a fighter as Dempsey was—one of the greatest—he couldn't get very far against Gibbons and Tunney through 35 rounds.

"Tunney was a smart, cool boxer with only a fair punch. He was certainly no knockout killer as he showed against Greb, Risko, Dempsey and later Tom Heeney. Tunney had plenty on the ball.

"But here's a heavyweight who can box with the best boxers and hurt you with either hand. And when I say hurt, I mean trouble. Even if he doesn't catch you right he leaves a lump or a cut. Anyway, I'll say he doesn't help you a lot. Don't forget this. Louis is lightning fast with either hand. His punches come from nowhere. You can't even see some of them start. In his case I'd say the hand is certainly quicker than the eye.

"You fellows that cover boxing know that, when he starts one of those flurries. You fellows call them flurries. We fellows in there with him call them dynamite.

"Maybe Louis can't take it like Jeffries or Dempsey—or box with Corbett or think with Tunney. But when you add up the box score that tells all the story, I'll still ride with Louis."

Staged before a ladies' day crowd of 15,628, it was the Reds' 22nd victory in 29 starts and No. 2 for rookie Gene Thompson, who relieved starting hurler Paul Derringer in the fourth.

Gene Schott, a former Red, was charged with the loss.

Speculation Is That Eisenstat Will Go to Browns for Heffner

Browns Send Thompson to Newark; Phils Sell Parmelee to Louisville

Cleveland, June 14 (AP)—Baseball's David Harums sent Earl Averill, Cleveland outfielder who has a lifetime big league batting average of .322, to the Detroit Tigers today for southpaw Harry Eisenstat and a wad of greenbacks — and threw in a couple of lesser deals for good measure.

Immediately there was speculation as to whether the Indians would beat the Major League trading deadline of midnight tomorrow and sell Eisenstat down the river to the St. Louis Browns for second baseman Don Heffner, long coveted by the Tribe.

The Browns optioned outfielder Rupert Thompson today to Newark of the International League — a deal said to have no connection with St. Louis' purchase yesterday of Joe Gallagher, Newark's hard-hitting outfielder.

In another deal the Louisville Colonels of the American Association purchased Leroy Parmelee, veteran right-hand pitcher, from the Philadelphia Athletics.

C. C. Slapnicka, Cleveland vice president, said the Indians still were trying to obtain infield strength — they had too many outfielders until they traded Averill—and remarked "well, if we can't get anybody, we have a couple of good boys over in Buffalo we can bring up."

The SPORT TRAIL

BY WHITNEY MARTIN

New York, June 14 (AP)—Oscar Vitt reckoned there's to be a hot time in the old town tonight—and he still hasn't got his infielder.

He was referring to the deal which sent Earl Averill, popular Cleveland outfielder, to Detroit for pitcher Harry Eisenstat and cash. The little skipper took a philosophical view of the transaction.

"We'll have a lot of explaining to do in Cleveland," he opined, "Earl's very popular. He's a fine player and very easy to handle, doing what he is told without question. He was late reporting and got off to a slow start. He'll help Detroit."

"I'll say he'll help Detroit," a listener chimed in. "And they're only three and a half games behind us and coming fast."

"And I still haven't got my infielder," moaned Vitt. "Yes, we hoped to make a deal even before the season started. Our infield sometimes gives the other team two or three runs a game, and you can't do that against a team like the Yankees. We've lost about six games that way.

"No, I think we came out all right on the deal. We had too many good outfielders and would have to keep one on the bench. Eisenstat is a young pitcher, but has lots of promise. He pitched the last game against us last year when Bob Feller struck out 18, but Detroit won."

It was suggested Eisenstat might be passed along to the Browns for an infielder. Vitt pursed his lips.

"Maybe," he ventured. "Maybe."

In his room the husky, aggressive Averill was busy packing his bags.

"I haven't heard anything official yet," he said. "But it's all right with me. I always said that if I had to leave Cleveland I'd rather go to Detroit than anywhere else. Of course I hate to leave.

"I don't know what I'll play with Detroit. Yes, I guess I could play any field, but I prefer center field. Sure, I bet they raise the dickens in Cleveland over the trade." This last remark was without conceit. Just a plain opinion.

The sideliners think that from the player standpoint the Tigers got the best of the deal. However, Eisenstat might win a few games, and there always is the possibility he might be good trading fodder for an infielder. Besides, as Vitt pointed out, there was no percentage in keeping a good outfielder sitting on the bench. And Bruce Campbell can fill in the outfield very nicely.

Wooderson's Trainer Promises Record Mile

(Released by North American Newspaper Alliance)

New York, June 14.—Rain washed Sydney Charles Wooderson off the cinder track at Princeton, along with some of the local flora and fauna, and gave England's fastest human, if he is human, a chance to speculate on next Saturday's mile of the century from an Armchair.

The chair would have held six like Sydney Charles Wooderson. He lays claim to 126 pounds, the featherweight limit, but my own guess is 116, when he takes off his glasses. Wooderson seems to be mostly all glasses and legs, and even his legs do not look so tough when sheathed in form-fitting socks and bon ton garters.

"What about Cunningham?" said this spoonful of old England.

"Yes, what about him?" said Mr. Al Hill, his trainer. "Is it a joke? He says he isn't ready to run Saturday. He says he will probably run last in the race. What about that?"

"I came over here to meet Cunningham," said Wooderson. "He's the man I want to beat. I hope he's in condition to give me a race. I was counting on him to make a fast pace and give one of us a chance to break the record. Now I hear that he is practically at death's door, even though he means to run. Is it true?"

Mr. Wooderson's suspicions are easy to understand. For years Mr. Glenn Cunningham, America's master miler, has been one of the shrillest wolf-criers in the world. He yelled about the rheumatism in his calves and the misery in his ankles and the cold in his chest, and the next day he would go out and run all the well men into the ground.

"When Cunningham says he don't feel good," Gene Venzke used to warn, "wach out! He's liable to bust the record and kill the men he's running against."

This rumor probably reached the ears of Wooderson, over in England, and he's not sure now whether Glenn is leveling about his rotten condition or whether the grass-lunged Kansas is setting a trap.

Your correspondent doesn't know whether Cunningham was just howling "wolf!" to hear the sound of his voice or not, but those who have watched this devious fellow lately consider him a sucker to run against Wooderson.

They say his roadwork on lecture tours out of the university of Kansas has been done excsusively by automobile. They say his legs are cramped and rusty. They say he will tie himself into knots if he tries to break 4:10 at Princeton Saturday.

"Well, I'm sorry to hear it," said Wooderson ruefully. "I thought he'd point for this race as I did. It means a lot to me. I've come a long way to see America and run against the best men in America. I wanted to beat Cunningham at his best. But perhaps the race will be a good one, anyway.

"It will," said Trainer Hill, who was Great Britain's foremost Olympic runner before the days of Wooderson and Jack Lovelock. Mr. Hill seemed extremely confident. "Don't worry about it. This lad here has the most beautiful sense of pace I ever saw, and, if I send him out to run 4:04, under good conditions, he'll probably do it running all alone, without a soul in the field."

Your correspondent assured Mr. Hill that there would be a couple of other souls in the field, even if Cunningham is left at the post. Chuck Fenske, of Wisconsin, currently the hottest distance runner in America, will be there, and so will Archie San Romani, Kansas's famous double winner (cornet and mile run). In fact, Mr. San Romani, though he has done little more training for the event that Cunningham, is full of beans and sass, and promises to run Mr. Wooderson right back to England, on foot.

"I'll win it," says this light-hearted hot trumpeter, who is the Dizzy Dean of the running racket. "That 4:04 mile is my dish."

Maybe we had better forget about the 4:04 mile for the time being. It will save us a lot of disappointment if the boys run a slow race, as they sometimes do in these miles of the century. Maybe We ought to settle for 4:10.

But Al Hill, the English trainer, refuses to compromise.

"This lad runs as advertised," said Mr. Hill, pointing so hard at Mr. Wooderson that he almost knocked him over. "He'll win the race in record time, mark my words."

Mark those words, Miss Fotheringale. Maybe we'll ask Mr. Hill to eat them, later on.

Brown Bomber Can Box With Best and Hurt With Either Hand

By GRANTLAND RICE

Pompton Lakes, N. J., June 14—"Just how good is Joe Louis?"

I put this question to Jim Braddock, one of the gamest and one of the smartest ringmen of his time when it came to action inside the ropes. And that's where it counts.

"I'll tell you why I think Louis is the all-time top," Braddock said.

"There have been almost no other heavyweights who were both good boxers and hard punchers. Remember the day when Jim Corbett told us no fighter could be both. He had to make his choice. Jim said that day that he was once a hard puncher, but decided to become a boxer instead. Dempsey was the puncher. Tunney was the boxer. That's just one example.

"Now I'll tell you about Louis," Braddock continued. "He is first of all a fine boxer. That's his main foundation. I know what good boxing is, and Louis can box with any heavyweight I ever saw. If Louis was only a fair puncher, he would still be hard to outpoint in 15 rounds. He knows his stuff along this line.

The Additional Part

"Now we'll take Louis as a puncher," Braddock said, "and we'll just move along from there. Can he punch with his right hand or hurt you with his left. Dempsey had a killing left. Jeffries could hurt with that left-handed bear paw of his. But Louis can murder you with either hand. I know how it feels when you get in the ring with Louis. I've been there, so I'm not guessing.

"You know you can't outbox him. If he only had a good left or a good right you could swing away from either, just outjockey him as I did Max Baer. But Louis can hit just as hard with one hand as he can with the other. He hit me with both, so again I'm not guessing. That's what makes it tough. A fellow who knows the ring game, who uses his head, can keep away from a right or a left. But he can't keep away from both. I was looking for that left hook in Chicago when he hit me with a right that came near tearing my head off.

"So what can you do against a fellow who can outbox you and outhit you with both hands? Tell me the answer to that one."

The Point of Balance

"What gives Louis this double or triple combination?" I asked Braddock.

"Balance," Jim said. "I'm not much of a golfer, but any good golfer will tell you he must have balance through his swings. Balance is everything in sport. Louis is a flat-footed shuffler. But he's always in position to throw a sharp jab or to hit and hurt with either hand.

"Did you ever see Louis throwing a punch when you are going away? You never did. He nails you coming to him—and, boy, that's when it hurts most. It gives him almost double force. He hit me a short left jab when I was coming in that almost drove my mouth guard through my teeth. They tell me Bill Tilden had the same thing as a tennis player. He was always on balance."

(Note—Tilden has told me the same thing more than once. "A good tennis player should be on balance for every type of shot," Bill said. "No one has ever been good enough to stroke off balance.")

"That's why I say that Joe Louis is the best all-around heavyweight that ever lived," Braddock said.

"Jim Corbett was the master boxer. We all know that. Jim Jeffries, in his prime, was the toughest and the most rugged. And he could hurt you with that left. Bob Fitzsimmons could box and punch. But Bob was 35 when he reached the top—too old and too brittle then. Dempsey was the fire ball. Jack had the greatest ring spirit of them all. But he always had trouble against boxers — Harry Greb in his training camp, Bill Brennan for 10 rounds before old Bill wilted, Tom Gibbons, and then Tunney. As great a fighter as Dempsey was—one of the greatest—he couldn't get very far against Gibbons and Tunney through 35 rounds.

"Tunney was a smart, cool boxer with only a fair punch. He was certainly no knockout killer as he showed against Greb, Risko, Dempsey and later Tom Heeney. Tunney had plenty on the ball.

"But here's a heavyweight who can box with the best boxers and hurt you with either hand. And when I say hurt, I mean trouble. Even if he doesn't catch you right he leaves a lump or a cut. Anyway, I'll say he doesn't help you a lot. Don't forget this. Louis is lightning fast with either hand. His punches come from nowhere. You can't even see some of them start. In his case I'd say the hand is certainly quicker than the eye.

"You fellows that cover boxing know that, when he starts one of those flurries. You fellows call them flurries. We fellows in there with him call them dynamite.

"Maybe Louis can't take it like Jeffries or Dempsey—or box with Corbett or think with Tunney. But when you add up the box score that tells all the story, I'll still ride with Louis."

Cincinnati, June 14 (AP) — The league-leading Cincinnati Reds came from behind in two big innings today to pound out a 10 to 7 victory over Philadelphia in a game featured by ragged and classy fielding and extra base blows galore from a total of seven hurlers.

Staged before a ladies' day crowd of 15,628, it was the Reds' 22nd victory in 29 starts and No. 2 for rookie Gene Thompson, who relieved starting hurler Paul Derringer in the fourth.

Gene Schott, a former Red, was charged with the loss.

PUNK PLUG PICKER Alias Paddock Pete

Back in harness again! I ran a fair race last night, slithering hither and thither, but bowed a tendon in my elbow. If you like 'osses with dainty names, take a slice of Jelly Roll in the last at Delaware Park. He could make a cake walk out of that race, if he would. Maybe he will!

Dear P. P.:

If I wasn't so tied up trying to get "the boys" to ante up for the kids at the Day Nursery I'd take a run down to Charles Town to see if there is such a thing as a horse named "Elegant Dame." I'm thinking there ain't no such animal and if there is it can't be a horse . . . or much of a horse.

I get this one straight from Detroit F.O.B. . . . like a high geared car . . . and I hope she runs as rated . . . She's "Sister Jean" in the first and she may pay off at a pretty penny.

Indians Rally in Ninth To Down Yanks 4 to 2

Feller Wins His Tenth Game of Present Season

Error by Hemsley Almost Robbed Cleveland Ace of Victory

Yankees Are Held to Two Hits for First Seven Innings

New York, June 14 (AP)—Rallying three runs in the ninth inning, the Cleveland Indians gave Bobby Feller his tenth victory of the season 4 to 2 today after two unearned runs nearly took it away.

The Cleveland youngster, poised as a veteran, gave only two hits until the eighth, when two more singles, a walk, and an error by catcher Rollie Hemsley accounted for New York's runs.

Murphy was charged with the loss and Feller regained the victory, although removed for a pinchhitter during the rally.

Frostburg, June 14—Congregational tossers took first place in the Frostburg Church Softball League last week by trimming Presbyterian-Brethren 9-1 for their third consecutive victory.

In the other battles, English Baptist nosed out Welsh Baptist 11-10, Salem Reformed defeated Lutheran 16-7 and First Methodist won from Episcopal 15-2. The Southern Methodist-Eckhart game was postponed on account of rain.

The schedule for this week is Eckhart vs. Congregational, First Methodist vs. English Baptist, Episcopal vs. Welsh Baptist, Southern Methodist vs. Lutheran and Reformed vs. Presbyterian-Brethren. All games will be played on the Frostburg State College athletic field.

Balch Grocers Win Softball Twin Bill

The Balch Grocers softball team captured both ends of a doubleheader played Monday, trimming the North End Browns 15-4 and the Wilkinson Grocers 20-0. Against the Wilkinson ten, the Balch crew drove out 14 hits. The losers, held to a single blow, committed 11 errors.

Birds Sign College Hurler

Baltimore, June 14 (AP) — John Ogden, general manager of the Baltimore Orioles, announced last night he had added Joe Desmond, Villanova player, to his pitching staff. The twenty-one-year-old righthander, from Chester, Pa., scored five victories and two defeats for the college this season. The contract provides Desmond will receive a share of the sales price if sold to a major league team.

SOFTBALL SIDELIGHTS

Ed Widdows, who played third base for the N. E. Merchants in place of Alton Nave against Trozzo's Sunday, was considerable help, getting three for four and playing errorless ball.

Ed is probably the best third baseman in this section, and is the reason Posts is one of the top teams in the South End League.

x x x

"Diddy" Stitcher is one manager who doesn't mind putting himself on the "spot." He recently went in as a pinch-hitter in the ninth inning with the bases loaded, two out and his team behind, and then struck out.

x x x

The Trozzo Whirlwinds is not the team it was last year. Without Joe Geatz and Sam Deluca they are like a ship without a rudder.

x x x

Lacy's pitcher, Cramblit, seems to be a comer and the same goes for Wilhelm of Trozzo's.

x x x

Allan Sheetz must have been plenty "hot" the other night when he pitched ten innings without allowing a hit and struck out fifteen. This is the best pitching performance of the year in this section.

x x x

Billy Cumiskey, subbing at first for George Rice who is out with an eye injury has been flashing extra good form along with Snip Hause and Drink Skidmore.

x x x

Last Sunday's benefit games were played before the largest crowd ever to see a soft ball contest in this section, and many comments about being surprised that softball was so interesting were heard. This game probably did more to boost softball than anything that has happened here in many a moon.

x x x

Too bad the South End loop schedule runs so long as it prevents the winner from playing in any tournaments.

Hubbell Admits Arm Not Strong Enough

Erstwhile Giants' 'Meal Ticket' Calls Turn On His Condition

Chicago, June 14 (AP)—If Carl Hubbell winds up the current season in his customary spot among the National League's top pitchers no one will be more surprised than the lanky southpaw himself.

The 35-year-old erstwhile "meal ticket" of the New York Giants called the turn on his condition today by admitting his arm wasn't ready "to go the nine inning route."

"I seem to make out all right for four or five innings and then I begin to lose my stuff.

"I've come to the conclusion that winter operation on the elbow took a lot out of my arm and I think it's going to take me the better part of the season to make it strong again. I'm just going along pitching whenever I get a chance, hoping to bring the arm around gradually. But our pitching staff now is going good without me."

Hubbell, generally ranked as one of the great southpaws of all time, has won only one game and lost four this season—a far cry from the 35 victories he turned in the past two years against 18 defeats.

Leonard Hurls Senators To 3 to 0 Victory Over White Sox

Washington, June 14 (AP) — The Chicago White-Sox got but four singles today off Dutch Leonard's knuckle-ball pitching and Washington won 3-0.

The shut-out was the first by a Washington pitcher this year.

Joe Jacobs Decides To Change Training Base of Tony Galento

By SID FEDER

Asbury Park, N. J., June 14 (AP)—For two short hours today, Joe Jacobs, the old front-page mastermind, had the ballyhoo pot at brisk boil for the 15-round heavyweight title bout between his Tony Galento and Champion Joe Louis June 28.

But the New York Athletic Commission took him seriously and chilled the thing like last night's mashed potatoes.

Jacobs, who has been thinking up these "angles" for his fighters for twenty-five years, said he wasn't at all satisfied about the way Louis flattened Max Schmeling in a couple of minutes a year ago. As a precaution, he would demand a round-by-round examination of the Brown Bomber's gloves when he tangles with Tony, he announced.

The only trouble was Major General John J. Phelan, the Commission Chairman happened to be on hand to see Galento's training routine. The General pulled Jacobs to one side. Then Joe summoned the newspapermen, and announced:

"I'm withdrawing the charges."

The General didn't stop there, either. Before he walked out, he had the Commission physician, Dr. Edward Walker, examine Tony, and then, at Phelan's suggestion, Jacobs decided Galento's training base would be moved overnight from here to Madam Bey's Camp at Summit, N. J.

St. Louis Browns Given $100,000 by Ten Stockholders

Owners Disappointed at Team's Showing on Field and Financially

St. Louis, June 14 (AP) — Majojr stockholders of the St. Louis Browns, disappointed at the team's poor showing, both artistically and financially, have subscribed a fund of $100,000 to give the club resources to strengthen itself.

An informed source disclosed today that the Browns' ten directors, all wealthy business men, met last week and kicked in $5,000 each to refill the team's diminished treasury. President Donald L. Barnes then added an additional $50,000.

The first immediate result was the purchase yesterday of Joe Gallagher, hard-hitting young outfielder, from the New York Yankee system. The Browns gave up infielder Roy Hughes and probably about $20,000 in cash.

Thomas, W. Va., June 14 — The Thomas Cubs, after getting away to a slow start in the Eastern West Virginia Baseball League, seem to have hit their stride. The local nine has copped its last three loop starts by fairly wide margins, and holds second place in the circuit.

The Cubs began their winning streak June 4 when they stopped Belington 10-5 behind the slants of John Bennett. Last Saturday, Thomas met Valley Head in a postponed engagement and won 7-4. ## Balch Grocers Win Softball Twin Bill

The Balch Grocers softball team captured both ends of a doubleheader played Monday, trimming the North End Browns 15-4 and the Wilkinson Grocers 20-0. Against the Wilkinson ten, the Balch crew drove out 14 hits. The losers, held to a single blow, committed 11 errors.

Birds Sign College Hurler

Baltimore, June 14 (AP) — John Ogden, general manager of the Baltimore Orioles, announced last night he had added Joe Desmond, Villanova pitcher, to his pitching staff. The twenty-one-year-old right-hander, from Chester, Pa., scored five victories and two defeats for the college this season. The contract provides Desmond will receive a share of the sales price if sold to a major league team.

SOFTBALL SIDELIGHTS

Ed Widdows, who played third base for the N. E. Merchants in place of Alton Nave against Trozzo's Sunday, was considerable help, getting three for four and playing errorless ball.

Ed is probably the best third baseman in this section, and is the reason Posts is one of the top teams in the South End League.

x x x

"Diddy" Stitcher is one manager who doesn't mind putting himself on the "spot." He recently went in as a pinch-hitter in the ninth inning with the bases loaded, two out and his team behind, and then struck out.

x x x

The Trozzo Whirlwinds is not the team it was last year. Without Joe Geatz and Sam Deluca they are like a ship without a rudder.

x x x

Lacy's pitcher, Cramblit, seems to be a comer and the same goes for Wilhelm of Trozzo's.

x x x

Allan Sheetz must have been plenty "hot" the other night when he pitched ten innings without allowing a hit and struck out fifteen. This is the best pitching performance of the year in this section.

x x x

Billy Cumiskey, subbing at first for George Rice who is out with an eye injury has been flashing extra good form along with Snip Hause and Drink Skidmore.

x x x

Last Sunday's benefit games were played before the largest crowd ever to see a soft ball contest in this section, and many comments about being surprised that softball was so interesting were heard. This game probably did more to boost softball than anything that has happened here in many a moon.

x x x

Too bad the South End loop schedule runs so long as it prevents the winner from playing in any tournaments.

Hubbell Admits Arm Not Strong Enough

Erstwhile Giants' 'Meal Ticket' Calls Turn On His Condition

Chicago, June 14 (AP)—If Carl Hubbell winds up the current season in his customary spot among the National League's top pitchers no one will be more surprised than the lanky southpaw himself.

The 35-year-old erstwhile "meal ticket" of the New York Giants called the turn on his condition today by admitting his arm wasn't ready "to go the nine inning route."

"I seem to make out all right for four or five innings and then I begin to lose my stuff.

"I've come to the conclusion that winter operation on the elbow took a lot out of my arm and I think it's going to take me the better part of the season to make it strong again. I'm just going along pitching whenever I get a chance, hoping to bring the arm around gradually. But our pitching staff now is going good without me."

Hubbell, generally ranked as one of the great southpaws of all time, has won only one game and lost four this season—a far cry from the 35 victories he turned in the past two years against 18 defeats.

Joe Jacobs Decides To Change Training Base of Tony Galento

By SID FEDER

Asbury Park, N. J., June 14 (AP)—For two short hours today, Joe Jacobs, the old front-page mastermind, had the ballyhoo pot at brisk boil for the 15-round heavyweight title bout between his Tony Galento and Champion Joe Louis June 28.

But the New York Athletic Commission took him seriously and chilled the thing like last night's mashed potatoes.

Jacobs, who has been thinking up these "angles" for his fighters for twenty-five years, said he wasn't at all satisfied about the way Louis flattened Max Schmeling in a couple of minutes a year ago. As a precaution, he would demand a round-by-round examination of the Brown Bomber's gloves when he tangles with Tony, he announced.

The only trouble was Major General John J. Phelan, the Commission Chairman happened to be on hand to see Galento's training routine. The General pulled Jacobs to one side. Then Joe summoned the newspapermen, and announced:

"I'm withdrawing the charges."

St. Louis Browns Given $100,000 by Ten Stockholders

Owners Disappointed at Team's Showing on Field and Financially

St. Louis, June 14 (AP) — Majojr stockholders of the St. Louis Browns, disappointed at the team's poor showing, both artistically and financially, have subscribed a fund of $100,000 to give the club resources to strengthen itself.

An informed source disclosed today that the Browns' ten directors, all wealthy business men, met last week and kicked in $5,000 each to refill the team's diminished treasury. President Donald L. Barnes then added an additional $50,000.

The first immediate result was the purchase yesterday of Joe Gallagher, hard-hitting young outfielder, from the New York Yankee system. The Browns gave up infielder Roy Hughes and probably about $20,000 in cash.

St. Louis Wallops Brooklyn 9 to 2

St. Louis, June 14 (AP) — Lefty Bob Weiland checked the Brooklyn Dodgers on seven hits for his fourth victory today as his St. Louis Cardinal teammates clubbed three hurlers for 15 hits and a 9 to 2 triumph.

Terry Moore and Joe Medwick led the attack with three hits each, including a three-run homer by Moore in the fourth off Ira Hutchinson after Vito Tamulis had been chased in the third with three runs on a walk and four singles. Tot Pressnell worked the last two innings and gave two runs.

Thomas Second In Eastern W.Va. Loop

Thomas, W. Va., June 14 — The Thomas Cubs, after getting away to a slow start in the Eastern West Virginia Baseball League, seem to have hit their stride. The local nine has copped its last three loop starts by fairly wide margins, and holds second place in the circuit.

Last Sunday, the Cubs turned back Belington 10-2. Ray MacDonald gave the losers only four hits while Quatro, F. Suder and W. Suder featured Thomas' defense and offense.

The Cubs began their winning streak June 4 when they stopped Belington 10-5 behind the slants of John Bennett. Last Saturday, Thomas met Valley Head in a postponed engagement and won 7-4. This battle was featured by the classy hurling of Cecil Parsons and the heavy hitting of Nate Schilansky and "Swede" Johnson.

Reds Get 'Corner'

Stock Averages Off Slightly In the Smallest Turnover in Month

Resurgence of Worries over War Possibilities Given As Reason

BY FREDERICK GARDNER

New York, June 14 (AP)—Stock averages scaled slightly downward on a meagre market today, despite a last-hour rally which raised many issues above yesterday's levels.

For four hours the session operated in a mild fog of pessimism, withdrawals only testing trends. Then, suddenly, quotations turned upward by fractions, some leaders making up as much as three or four points.

Speculations, apparently, felt that prices had gone far enough in the reactionary swing and bought back shares which they earlier had sold.

Total transfers were among the smallest in a month—399,370 shares compared with 531,870 yesterday.

Observers readily attributed the timid attitude of traders to the labor situation in the automobile industry and to the resurgence of worries over war possibilities.

In the latter case, the Czecho-German-Polish and the British-Japanese situations, at opposite sides of the world, received the most attention.

Off fractions in a ragged curb market were Standard Steel Spring, Pantepec Oil, Gulf Oil and Lockheed. Royal typewriter lost 3½ on a single sale. Turnover of 92,000 shares compared with 95,000 Tuesday.

Freight Traffic In West Virginia Hits Low Levels

B. & O. Railroad Wants To Discontinue Several Trains

Charleston, W. Va., June 14 (AP)—With a parting admonition that freight traffic has dropped to low levels in Central West Virginia, the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad closed today testimony on its application to discontinue ten passenger trains.

The Public Service Commission ordered another session for July 11 and directed the railroad to produce then complete passenger information on persons carried between Elkins and Adrain Junction and Clarksburg.

This was done at the request of A. Spates Brady of Elkins, representing some of the 300 protestants to the proposed changes.

The final witness was C. W. Vanhorn, General Manager of the Eastern Division, who told the commission that the last few years had seen a noticeable decline in coal and lumber transportation in Central West Virginia and the railroad's revenues had suffered as a result.

Out-of-pocket losses were cited throughout the hearing as reasons for dropping the ten B. and O. trains and two others operated jointly with its subsidiary, The Western Maryland.

J. Edwards, Jr., Superintendent of the Monongah Division, spent more than an hour on the stand testifying on the small number of persons who use the trains involved — between Weston and Pickens, between Elkins and Adrian Junction, between Elkins and Grafton and between Clarksburg and Burnsville.

A train on a revised schedule, to operate between Grafton and Charleston, is proposed along with bus service to some points.

J. Z. Terrell, Manager of the West Virginia Transportation Company, the B. and O. Bus subsidiary, said some plan would be worked out whereby buses would serve all communities which would lose train service.

"Blackwell's Island" and "Boy Slaves" at Garden

You can't change the old, historic name of an institution or a place and make the new name stick. The public won't have it.

In New York City's East River there is a prison on an island long known as "Blackwell's Island." A few years ago some of the ultra-modern experts in penology decided that some of the curse of being imprisoned in Blackwell's might be taken off were the place called "Welfare Island." So it was officially christened—but it's still called by its old name by New Yorkers.

'The Gorilla' a Frightfully Funny Picture

You'll grip the arms of your chair in terror one minute and howl with glee the next when you go down to the Strand Theatre to see those mad, merry Ritz Brothers as three slap-happy sleuths on the trail of one rare beast in "The Gorilla," the 20th Century-Fox hit which struck town yesterday, and shows for the last times today.

"Calling Dr. Kildare" Now at Maryland Theatre

Lionel Barrymore, as the cantankerous but human old doctor, guides Lew Ayres through another tempestuous adventure in "Calling Dr. Kildare," second of the new medical-detective series, now playing at the Maryland Theatre.

Ayres, as young Dr. Jimmy Kildare, gets into trouble with the police when, infatuated by pretty Lana Turner, he hides and cares for a wounded murder suspect. So there's nothing to do but find the real murderer to clear the boy. He sets out to do it, solves the riddle, then finds he's lost the girl he did it for. The wild old Dr. Gillespie gets him out of his troubles in a deft dramatic twist.

Ayres, who rapidly rose to romantic prominence through the first "Kildare" picture, plays his character with ease and conviction. His scenes with Lana Turner, playing the girl who deceives him, are poignant. Barrymore extracts the last morsel of both comedy and drama from his role of the crippled old physician who tries to teach the boy to follow in his footsteps while there is still time. Harold S. Bucquet, who directed the first picture, handled this one with the same deft skill.

Witty Anecdotes In Lincoln Film

Besides being Henry Fonda's most important role, the name part in Darryl F. Zanuck's production of "Young Mr. Lincoln" is also his longest.

The popular young star has 67 pages of solid dialogue out of the 120-page script which Lamar Trotti prepared for this Cosmopolitan production ofr 20th Century-Fox, which opens at the Strand Theatre tomorrow evening with a grand prevue at seven p. m.

Fonda never had a single day off during the entire filming schedule. He appears in almost every scene of the picture—an almost unheard of footage for any star.

This stirring, human story presents a true, real picture of that other Lincoln—not the Great Emancipator, President in the critical days of the Republic, with the fate of the nation weighing him down—but the brawny, witty, romantic young jackleg lawyer, known to everybody in the backwoods town of Springfield, Illinois, who wrestled with the boys, told funny stories and was in love.

A thrilling highlight of the story is the famous "moonlight murder" trial which offered young Lincoln his first real test in which he won a mother's undying devotion by his galliant and brilliant defense of her two accused sons.

Tonight at nine Billy Purl will stage his second Jitterbug Contest. Twenty couples have entered to compete for the cash prizes to be awarded to the best Jitterbugs. Roy May's Orchestra will furnish the music and the popular "Billy" will act as master of ceremonies.

YES, HONEST ABE LINCOLN WAS ONCE IN LOVE

First Love! Lovely Ann Rutledge was the first love in the life of young Abe Lincoln and it was she who spurred him on to become the brilliant and witty lawyer depicted in Darryl F. Zanuck's production of "Young Mr. Lincoln." Below, Henry Fonda (in the title role) and Pauline Moore (as Ann) in a romantic scene from the Cosmopolitan production for 20t hCentury-Fox due to open Friday evening at seven, at the Strand Theatre.

Wage-Hour Law Interpretation Hit by Operators

Mine Owners Say Andrews' Ruling Will Lower Safety Standards

Morgantown, W. Va., June 14 (AP) —That an interpretation of the wage-hour law may lead indirectly to an increase in workmen's compensation rates for mine owners became a subject today for discussion by Northern West Virginia operators.

The Monongahela Valley Coal Mining Institute listened last night to Ralph Hartman, Workmen's Compensation Secretary, discuss the probable effect of a ruling of Wage-Hour Administrator Elmer Andrews that operators should pay the men for attending safety meets.

Hartman said Andrews' interpretation would likely result in a reduction in the number of mine safety meets, which in turn could bring about a lowering of safety standards.

Lowering of standards with any increase in the accident rate, Hartman said, probably would lead to higher compensation rates.

The commission secretary, who appeared at the institute in the absence of Commissioner A. G. Andrews, pointed to cancellation of the New River Company's annual safety meet, which had been scheduled for this Saturday. The New River Company has been holding its meets for nineteen years, he said.

The mine department at Charleston said the New River meet had been cancelled. Only one other company has listed a meet for this summer so far, although officials said they still expected others.

Last year there were nine company safety meets, as distinguished from district and state meets which are held by the department itself.

Resurgence of Worries over War Possibilities Given As Reason

BY FREDERICK GARDNER

New York, June 14 (AP)—Stock averages scaled slightly downward on a meagre market today, despite a last-hour rally which raised many issues above yesterday's levels.

For four hours the session operated in a mild fog of pessimism, withdrawals only testing trends. Then, suddenly, quotations turned upward by fractions, some leaders making up as much as three or four points.

Speculations, apparently, felt that prices had gone far enough in the reactionary swing and bought back shares which they earlier had sold.

Total transfers were among the smallest in a month—399,370 shares compared with 531,870 yesterday.

Observers readily attributed the timid attitude of traders to the labor situation in the automobile industry and to the resurgence of worries over war possibilities.

In the latter case, the Czecho-German-Polish and the British-Japanese situations, at opposite sides of the world, received the most attention.

Off fractions in a ragged curb market were Standard Steel Spring, Pantepec Oil, Gulf Oil and Lockheed. Royal typewriter lost 3½ on a single sale. Turnover of 92,000 shares compared with 95,000 Tuesday.

Freight Traffic In West Virginia Hits Low Levels

B. & O. Railroad Wants To Discontinue Several Trains

Charleston, W. Va., June 14 (AP)—With a parting admonition that freight traffic has dropped to low levels in Central West Virginia, the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad closed today testimony on its application to discontinue ten passenger trains.

The Public Service Commission ordered another session for July 11 and directed the railroad to produce then complete passenger information on persons carried between Elkins and Adrain Junction and Clarksburg.

This was done at the request of A. Spates Brady of Elkins, representing some of the 300 protestants to the proposed changes.

The final witness was C. W. Vanhorn, General Manager of the Eastern Division, who told the commission that the last few years had seen a noticeable decline in coal and lumber transportation in Central West Virginia and the railroad's revenues had suffered as a result.

Out-of-pocket losses were cited throughout the hearing as reasons for dropping the ten B. and O. trains and two others operated jointly with its subsidiary, The Western Maryland.

J. Edwards, Jr., Superintendent of the Monongah Division, spent more than an hour on the stand testifying on the small number of persons who use the trains involved — between Weston and Pickens, between Elkins and Adrian Junction, between Elkins and Grafton and between Clarksburg and Burnsville.

A train on a revised schedule, to operate between Grafton and Charleston, is proposed along with bus service to some points.

J. Z. Terrell, Manager of the West Virginia Transportation Company, the B. and O. Bus subsidiary, said some plan would be worked out whereby buses would serve all communities which would lose train service.

"Blackwell's Island" and "Boy Slaves" at Garden

You can't change the old, historic name of an institution or a place and make the new name stick. The public won't have it.

In New York City's East River there is a prison on an island long known as "Blackwell's Island." A few years ago some of the ultra-modern experts in penology decided that some of the curse of being imprisoned in Blackwell's might be taken off were the place called "Welfare Island." So it was officially christened—but it's still called by its old name by New Yorkers.

'The Gorilla' a Frightfully Funny Picture

You'll grip the arms of your chair in terror one minute and howl with glee the next when you go down to the Strand Theatre to see those mad, merry Ritz Brothers as three slap-happy sleuths on the trail of one rare beast in "The Gorilla," the 20th Century-Fox hit which struck town yesterday, and shows for the last times today.

"Calling Dr. Kildare" Now at Maryland Theatre

Lionel Barrymore, as the cantankerous but human old doctor, guides Lew Ayres through another tempestuous adventure in "Calling Dr. Kildare," second of the new medical-detective series, now playing at the Maryland Theatre.

Ayres, as young Dr. Jimmy Kildare, gets into trouble with the police when, infatuated by pretty Lana Turner, he hides and cares for a wounded murder suspect. So there's nothing to do but find the real murderer to clear the boy. He sets out to do it, solves the riddle, then finds he's lost the girl he did it for. The wild old Dr. Gillespie gets him out of his troubles in a deft dramatic twist.

Ayres, who rapidly rose to romantic prominence through the first "Kildare" picture, plays his character with ease and conviction. His scenes with Lana Turner, playing the girl who deceives him, are poignant. Barrymore extracts the last morsel of both comedy and drama from his role of the crippled old physician who tries to teach the boy to follow in his footsteps while there is still time. Harold S. Bucquet, who directed the first picture, handled this one with the same deft skill.

Witty Anecdotes In Lincoln Film

Besides being Henry Fonda's most important role, the name part in Darryl F. Zanuck's production of "Young Mr. Lincoln" is also his longest.

The popular young star has 67 pages of solid dialogue out of the 120-page script which Lamar Trotti prepared for this Cosmopolitan production ofr 20th Century-Fox, which opens at the Strand Theatre tomorrow evening with a grand prevue at seven p. m.

Fonda never had a single day off during the entire filming schedule. He appears in almost every scene of the picture—an almost unheard of footage for any star.

This stirring, human story presents a true, real picture of that other Lincoln—not the Great Emancipator, President in the critical days of the Republic, with the fate of the nation weighing him down—but the brawny, witty, romantic young jackleg lawyer, known to everybody in the backwoods town of Springfield, Illinois, who wrestled with the boys, told funny stories and was in love.

A thrilling highlight of the story is the famous "moonlight murder" trial which offered young Lincoln his first real test in which he won a mother's undying devotion by his gallant and brilliant defense of her two accused sons.

Tonight at nine Billy Purl will stage his second Jitterbug Contest. Twenty couples have entered to compete for the cash prizes to be awarded to the best Jitterbugs. Roy May's Orchestra will furnish the music and the popular "Billy" will act as master of ceremonies.

ADOLPHE MENJOU

Adolphe Menjou in "King of the Turf," opening Monday at the Maryland with Dolores Costello in the co-starring role.

YES, HONEST ABE LINCOLN WAS ONCE IN LOVE

First Love! Lovely Ann Rutledge was the first love in the life of young Abe Lincoln and it was she who spurred him on to become the brilliant and witty lawyer depicted in Darryl F. Zanuck's production of "Young Mr. Lincoln." Below, Henry Fonda (in the title role) and Pauline Moore (as Ann) in a romantic scene from the Cosmopolitan production for 20t hCentury-Fox due to open Friday evening at seven, at the Strand Theatre.

Wage-Hour Law Interpretation Hit by Operators

Mine Owners Say Andrews' Ruling Will Lower Safety Standards

Morgantown, W. Va., June 14 (AP)—That an interpretation of the wage-hour law may lead indirectly to an increase in workmen's compensation rates for mine owners became a subject today for discussion by Northern West Virginia operators.

The Monongahela Valley Coal Mining Institute listened last night to Ralph Hartman, Workmen's Compensation Secretary, discuss the probable effect of a ruling of Wage-Hour Administrator Elmer Andrews that operators should pay the men for attending safety meets.

Hartman said Andrews' interpretation would likely result in a reduction in the number of mine safety meets, which in turn could bring about a lowering of safety standards.

Lowering of standards with any increase in the accident rate, Hartman said, probably would lead to higher compensation rates.

The commission secretary, who appeared at the institute in the absence of Commissioner A. G. Andrews, pointed to cancellation of the New River Company's annual safety meet, which had been scheduled for this Saturday. The New River Company has been holding its meets for nineteen years, he said.

The mine department at Charleston said the New River meet had been cancelled. Only one other company has listed a meet for this summer so far, although officials said they still expected others.

Last year there were nine company safety meets, as distinguished from district and state meets which are held by the department itself.

Idle West Virginia Miners Will Receive Commodities

Federal Surplus Corporation To Make Distribution

Central Warehouse Set up In Beckley by Federal Officers

Beckley ,W. Va., June 14. (AP)—A central warehouse, from which will be distributed surplus commodities to miners who did not return to work under union contracts, was set up in Beckley today by the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation.

Harold Elmore, representing the corporation, said supplies for the warehouse were expected in a "day or two" and would be distributed through the Works Progress Administration.

The State Department of Public Assistance has steadfastly declined to provide the machinery of arssisting men termed "voluntarily unemployed" through failure to return to work under a United Mine Workers contract.

Communities Not Listed

Elmore did not list the communities to be served but said the foodstuffs would be distributed in Fayette, Raleigh and McDowell counties.

In those counties are mines of the Kingston-Pocahontas Coal Company, McKell Coal and Coke Company and Raleigh Coal and Coke Company which did not sign the "union shop" contract and have remained idle since a majority of other mines in the state reopened May 15.

United Mine Workers headquarters at Charleston estimated there are between 3,500 and 4,000 workers at the idle mines, or considering five to a family, between 15,000 and 20,000 persons who would receive the commodities.

The Carter Coal and Coke Company in McDowell county kept its four mines down for a time but resumed last week under an agreement with the union.

Will Certify Families

Elmore said that the WPA certification division would certify the families in need and distribution to them would be handled "as we do 40,000 other cases in West Virginia."

From the start of the Appalachian coal shutdown April 1 the state declined to furnish relief to miners idle through lack of a contract because they were "voluntarily unemployed."

Governor Holt in telegrams last week to Milo Perkins, president of the FSCC, and WPA Administrator F. C. Harrington accused "the inside organization" of the UMWA of trying to "shift to the state and federal governments" the task of caring for "idle persons, who, at the direction of such leaders, refuse to work themselves and endeavor to keep others from working."

Van A. Bittner, vice president of UMWA District 17, replied next day that the governor "would destroy the United Mine Workers of America and leave the miners and their families at the mercy of the coal operators."

Martin J. Breighmer, Cumberland, driver of the car, said he did not see the crossing watchman's warning signal. The woman, after considerable hesitation, said her name was Alice Glenn, 452 Brooklyn avenue, Rochester, N. Y., but failed to produce any means of identification.

W.Va. Will Have More Peaches This Year

Charleston, W. Va., June 14 (AP)—More peaches than last year and average yields from other orchard crops were predicted today for 1939 by the state cooperative crop reporting service.

The peach crop was estimated at 315,000 bushels, about 20,000 below average but far in excess of the 184,000 bushels in 1938.

The service said:

"All parts of the state suffered from lack of rainfall during May but the situation has been somewhat relieved by general rains since June 1."

Apples on June 1 were about fifty-four per cent of a full crop, compared with thirty-nine per cent on the same date last year and fifty-five per cent for a ten-year average.

"The May drought, combined with late grazing last fall and too early grazing this spring, cut pasture conditions to sixty-five per cent of normal on June 1, the same as on that date in the drought year of 1936," the report added.

"The Eastern part of the state has fared well but the Western section was beginning (before the rains) to show serious results of the drought."

New Law May Stop Hauling of WPA Men in Trucks

Motor Act Requires that Common Carriers Carry Liability Insurance

Charleston, W. Va., June 14 (AP) —The question was raised today whether insurance provisions of the State's Motor Carrier Act may have a retarding effect on WPA and other public works projects but a clause in the law indicated there is a way out.

George M. Brase, Secretary of the Central West Virginia Automobile Club at Clarksburg, said there that WPA workers could not be hauled to and from work in trucks after July 1, effective date of the amended act which brings vehicles of less than two tons under Public Service Commission jurisdiction.

The Motor Carrier Act requires liability insurance of common carriers who haul passengers. Brase said no insurance firms had been found in Clarksburg who would handle insurance for the truckers who have been in the habit of transporting the workers daily.

May Waive Insurance

There is a clause in the act, it was pointed out here, stating the commission may for due cause shown waive the strict insurance provisions of the act. It was said this already had been done in a few instances.

Commission members said informally that the matter of the WPA trucks had not been brought before them officially but they would be willing to discuss the subject with anyone directly interested.

Brase said that in Harrison county about thirty-five trucks used on WPA and 15 on NYA and other projects would be affected.

Pair Plead Guilty To Stealing Auto and Having Machine Gun

Elkins, W. Va., June 14. (AP)—Transporting a stolen automobile across state lines and possession of a sub-machine gun were admitted in federal court today by two men captured in Wheeling by officers they disdained as "country cops."

The guilty pleas were entered by Edward Montgomery, 40, of Pittsburgh ,and David Rogers, 30, of Detroit. Two companions arrested May 1 by Wheeling city police pleaded innocent and their trials were set for June 27.

Montgomery and Rogers were not sentenced.

The two men, Thomas Booth, 21, Bloomfield, N. J., and Delores Castle, 28, of Tulsa, Okla., were indicted yesterday by a grand jury of charges of stealing a car from John W. Fox near Kirby, Pa.

Wheeling police charged the submachine gun was in the hotel room where the four were arrested.

Federal Judge William E. Baker refused to permit the Castle woman and her three companions to be extradited to Oklahoma on Federal charges including bank robbery.

Baker held the evidencge set forth in the extradition papers was insufficient.

Three Men Seek Rotary Office

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., June 14 (AP)—The names of three men considered virtually certain to be nominated for President of Rotary International at the Cleveland convention next week came up today in the conversations of delegates to the International Assembly.

A high source in the civic organization named Dr. Amos Squire of Ossining, N. Y., Richard C. Hedke of Detroit and Walter D. Head of Montclair, N. J., as those who will be officially nominated from the convention floor.

The same source said there probably would be no other candidates nominated.

Although no names were mentioned, it was reported there are approximately a dozen candidates for three vice president posts.

Dr. Squire, an author and lecturer as well as medical examiner of Westchester County, N. Y., addressed the assembly, which has gathered to plot the year's program and report to the International convention.

He told the 500 delegates from the United States and foreign countries that the problems facing youth all over the world are the same, regardless of geography.

"Youth, whether American or foreign, faces the future with some apprehension but with courage and force, without cowardice."

Frostburg Will Have Washington Street Extended

Extension Will Run From Lumber Yard to New High School

Frostburg, June 14—One of the first steps taken towards having Washington street extended from its present dead end at the Sleeman Lumber yard to the new Frostburg high school site was taken this week when City Engineer Maxwell Mathias estabilshed streets grades for Sleeman Brothers who recently purchased two lots from the Consolidation Coal Company adjoining lots they already own on Washington street.

A new picket fence is now being built along the alley bordering the Sleeman Mill and the huge piles of lumber will be moved from city property on Washington street to the two lots recently purchased by the Sleeman Brothers. The removal of the lumber will clear the way for the extension of Washington street to the new school site.

Sleeman Brothers stated today they will request the mayor and city commissioners to name the present alley intersecting East Main and Washington street Redwood street. Many people, they say, now call it Mill Alley, but since there is a Mill street in the town, Redwood street is considered preferable to avoid confusion.

Idle West Virginia Miners Will Receive Commodities

Federal Surplus Corporation To Make Distribution

Central Warehouse Set up In Beckley by Federal Officers

Beckley ,W. Va., June 14. (AP)—A central warehouse, from which will be distributed surplus commodities to miners who did not return to work under union contracts, was set up in Beckley today by the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation.

Harold Elmore, representing the corporation, said supplies for the warehouse were expected in a "day or two" and would be distributed through the Works Progress Administration.

The State Department of Public Assistance has steadfastly declined to provide the machinery of arssisting men termed "voluntarily unemployed" through failure to return to work under a United Mine Workers contract.

Communities Not Listed

Elmore did not list the communities to be served but said the foodstuffs would be distributed in Fayette, Raleigh and McDowell counties.

In those counties are mines of the Kingston-Pocahontas Coal Company, McKell Coal and Coke Company and Raleigh Coal and Coke Company which did not sign the "union shop" contract and have remained idle since a majority of other mines in the state reopened May 15.

United Mine Workers headquarters at Charleston estimated there are between 3,500 and 4,000 workers at the idle mines, or considering five to a family, between 15,000 and 20,000 persons who would receive the commodities.

The Carter Coal and Coke Company in McDowell county kept its four mines down for a time but resumed last week under an agreement with the union.

Will Certify Families

Elmore said that the WPA certification division would certify the families in need and distribution to them would be handled "as we do 40,000 other cases in West Virginia."

From the start of the Appalachian coal shutdown April 1 the state declined to furnish relief to miners idle through lack of a contract because they were "voluntarily unemployed."

Governor Holt in telegrams last week to Milo Perkins, president of the FSCC, and WPA Administrator F. C. Harrington accused "the inside organization" of the UMWA of trying to "shift to the state and federal governments" the task of caring for "idle persons, who, at the direction of such leaders, refuse to work themselves and endeavor to keep others from working."

Van A. Bittner, vice president of UMWA District 17, replied next day that the governor "would destroy the United Mine Workers of America and leave the miners and their families at the mercy of the coal operators."

W.Va. Will Have More Peaches This Year

Charleston, W. Va., June 14 (AP)—More peaches than last year and average yields from other orchard crops were predicted today for 1939 by the state cooperative crop reporting service.

The peach crop was estimated at 315,000 bushels, about 20,000 below average but far in excess of the 184,000 bushels in 1938.

The service said:

"All parts of the state suffered from lack of rainfall during May but the situation has been somewhat relieved by general rains since June 1."

Apples on June 1 were about fifty-four per cent of a full crop, compared with thirty-nine per cent on the same date last year and fifty-five per cent for a ten-year average.

"The May drought, combined with late grazing last fall and too early grazing this spring, cut pasture conditions to sixty-five per cent of normal on June 1, the same as on that date in the drought year of 1936," the report added.

"The Eastern part of the state has fared well but the Western section was beginning (before the rains) to show serious results of the drought."

The same source said there probably would be no other candidates nominated.

Although no names were mentioned, it was reported there are approximately a dozen candidates for three vice president posts.

Dr. Squire, an author and lecturer as well as medical examiner of Westchester County, N. Y., addressed the assembly, which has gathered to plot the year's program and report to the International convention.

He told the 500 delegates from the United States and foreign countries that the problems facing youth all over the world are the same, regardless of geography.

"Youth, whether American or foreign, faces the future with some apprehension but with courage and force, without cowardice."

Frostburg Will Have Washington Street Extended

Extension Will Run From Lumber Yard to New High School

Frostburg, June 14—One of the first steps taken towards having Washington street extended from its present dead end at the Sleeman Lumber yard to the new Frostburg high school site was taken this week when City Engineer Maxwell Matthias established streets grades for Sleeman Brothers who recently purchased two lots from the Consolidation Coal Company adjoining lots they already own on Washington street.

A new picket fence is now being built along the alley bordering the Sleeman Mill and the huge piles of lumber will be moved from city property on Washington street to the two lots recently purchased by the Sleeman Brothers. The removal of the lumber will clear the way for the extension of Washington street to the new school site.

Sleeman Brothers stated today they will request the mayor and city commissioners to name the present alley intersecting East Main and Washington street Redwood street. Many people, they say, now call it Mill Alley, but since there is a Mill street in the town, Redwood street is considered preferable to avoid confusion.

New Law May Stop Hauling of WPA Men In Trucks

disclosed no refusal to write insurance here.

Brase quoted Commissioner Alex M. Mahood that hauling of WPA workers would be illegal, but Mahood said Brase was "evidently confused."

Mahood Makes Statement

Mahood added:

"What Mr. Brase was told is: 'That if a person was hired for the purpose of transporting men by motor vehicles to and from work, and was paid for that transportation service, such person was not in my opinion exempt from provisions of the act since he would be transporting passengers for hire over the highways of this state and would be either a common or contract carrier.' "

Mahood added that "motor vehicles operated by the United States of America or any department thereof are specifically exempt from the provisions of the act."

The commissioner said his conversation with Brase was purely informal and not a commission ruling.

Brase said later that the Harrison county truck operators in question were paid to carry the workers and seemingly came under the interpretation of the law made by Mahood.

No One Round Kayo When Louis Meets Nova, Says Scribe

Barely Possible Alameda Adonis Might Lift Crown In Bout

By DILLON GRAHAM
AP Feature Service Sports Writer

New York, June 14 (AP)—Joe Louis's string of one-round knockouts will be scissored the night he fights Lou Nova.

That's the state of the heavyweight division today. The highest endorsement a contender can be given is to say that he will last more than one heat.

From his victory over Maxie Baer, I think Nova has a better chance of beating Louis than any other heavyweight. But I wouldn't give a sou for his chances.

It is barely possible that the Alameda Adonis might whip Louis in 1940 but as for next September—well, gas would be an easier avenue of suicide, and a sight less bloody.

The way Nova took Baer's supposedly lethal right hand wallops without going down and the speedy manner in which he recuperated after a flurry of punches dented his chin convince me Louis won't be able to stop him in one stanza as he did Schmeling, Lewis and Roper.

The Yankee Stadium brawl showed one of two things: Either Baer has lost some of his punch or Nova has a tough chin. Maybe the fight showed a little of both. Baer's blows had Nova groggy on several occasions, but Maxie never had the strength to pursue his advantages. Louis will be different. He is the quickest finisher the ring has ever known.

Lou is Cocksure

Nova is a stubborn, cocksure sort of a fellow, in a modest way. He proved that against Baer. He had instructions to box Baer but he was disdainful of Maxie's dangerous right and believed in his own ability to slug it out with Madcap Maxie.

He slugged with Baer several times and held his own. But it would have been a much easier triumph if he had followed advice and been content to outpoint the backalley swinger.

I think Nova is game enough, and foolish enough, to slug with Louis. And he might just possibly get in the one blast that would bring him the heavyweight championship. Joe's chin is no granite jaw. A lucky, or well-placed, kiss on the button might be the undoing of Mr. Barrow.

Lou's chant is "bring on Louis" but he'll be pretty smart if he just rocks along for another year, perhaps taking on Bob Pastor. He should catch the Tan Terror when Joe is a year older.

Joe likely paid little attention to the preliminaries of the Baer-Nova show but his eventual conqueror may have fought that night. I mean Pat Comiskey, the Hammering Harp. He kayoed Jim Quigley in two rounds.

Pat Has Punch

Pat has the one thing that Nova doesn't own, and never will — a murderous right-hand punch. If he improves as much in the next year as he has in the last six months I'd rather have him against Louis than Noxa.

Sure, this is a long shot guess—but remember, you'd have said the same thing if, after Preliminary Boy Jim Braddock beat Corn Griffith on the Baer-Carnera card. I had said that Jim would win the championship from Baer a year later, as he did.

Johnstown Is Near Track-Record Time In Trial At Aqueduct

New York, June 14. (AP)—From the way the three stars are training, the Dwyer Stakes at Aqueduct next Saturday seems to be shaping up as the year's biggest 3-year-old battle, although the purse is only about $14,000, as compared to the $50,000 and more for the Kentucky Derby, the Preakness and the Arlington classic.

The Dwyer is expected to bring together Johnstown; his Preakness conqueror, Challedon, and the Saratoga Stable's Volitant, winner of the Shevlin last Saturday, with possibly a few others to chase them home.

Mrs. F. A. Clark's speedy Lovely Night is eligible, but may run in the Carter against older horses instead.

Johnstown turned in his final test, stepping a mile in 1.36 4-5, within a second of the Aqueduct track record. Challedon, which reached the Long Island course Monday, worked a mile in 1.41 2-5 at Delaware Park recently.

Haas Maintains Lead In Southern Tourney

Nashville, Tenn., June 14 (AP)—Tall, smooth-stroking Freddie Haas, Jr., 23-year-old son of a New Orleans golf professional, won medalist honors of the Southern Golf Championship for the second time today in a sub-par exhibition that topped the field by two shots.

Haas could be thankful for not being tied in the 36-hole qualifying test because a couple of short putts on the 18th green failed to drop for Stewart (Skip) Alexander of Burlington, N. C. Duke University captain.

Haas, a former National Intercollegiate Champion, Walker Cup player and winner of the southern crown in 1934 and 1937, took the 18-hole lead with 69 shots.

New Law May Stop Hauling of WPA Men In Trucks

disclosed no refusal to write insurance here.

Brase quoted Commissioner Alex M. Mahood that hauling of WPA workers would be illegal, but Mahood said Brase was "evidently confused."

Mahood Makes Statement

Mahood added:

"What Mr. Brase was told is: 'That if a person was hired for the purpose of transporting men by motor vehicles to and from work, and was paid for that transportation service, such person was not in my opinion exempt from provisions of the act since he would be transporting passengers for hire over the highways of this state and would be either a common or contract carrier.' "

Mahood added that "motor vehicles operated by the United States of America or any department thereof are specifically exempt from the provisions of the act."

The commissioner said his conversation with Brase was purely informal and not a commission ruling.

Brase said later that the Harrison county truck operators in question were paid to carry the workers and seemingly came under the interpretation of the law made by Mahood.

No One Round Kayo When Louis Meets Nova, Says Scribe

Barely Possible Alameda Adonis Might Lift Crown In Bout

By DILLON GRAHAM
AP Feature Service Sports Writer

New York, June 14 (AP)—Joe Louis's string of one-round knockouts will be scissored the night he fights Lou Nova.

That's the state of the heavyweight division today. The highest endorsement a contender can be given is to say that he will last more than one heat.

From his victory over Maxie Baer, I think Nova has a better chance of beating Louis than any other heavyweight. But I wouldn't give a sou for his chances.

It is barely possible that the Alameda Adonis might whip Louis in 1940 but as for next September—well, gas would be an easier avenue of suicide, and a sight less bloody.

The way Nova took Baer's supposedly lethal right hand wallops without going down and the speedy manner in which he recuperated after a flurry of punches dented his chin convince me Louis won't be able to stop him in one stanza as he did Schmeling, Lewis and Roper.

The Yankee Stadium brawl showed one of two things: Either Baer has lost some of his punch or Nova has a tough chin. Maybe the fight showed a little of both. Baer's blows had Nova groggy on several occasions, but Maxie never had the strength to pursue his advantages. Louis will be different. He is the quickest finisher the ring has ever known.

Lou is Cocksure

Nova is a stubborn, cocksure sort of a fellow, in a modest way. He proved that against Baer. He had instructions to box Baer but he was disdainful of Maxie's dangerous right and believed in his own ability to slug it out with Madcap Maxie.

He slugged with Baer several times and held his own. But it would have been a much easier triumph if he had followed advice and been content to outpoint the backalley swinger.

I think Nova is game enough, and foolish enough, to slug with Louis. And he might just possibly get in the one blast that would bring him the heavyweight championship. Joe's chin is no granite jaw. A lucky, or well-placed, kiss on the button might be the undoing of Mr. Barrow.

Lou's chant is "bring on Louis" but he'll be pretty smart if he just rocks along for another year, perhaps taking on Bob Pastor. He should catch the Tan Terror when Joe is a year older.

Joe likely paid little attention to the preliminaries of the Baer-Nova show but his eventual conqueror may have fought that night. I mean Pat Comiskey, the Hammering Harp. He kayoed Jim Quigley in two rounds.

Pat Has Punch

Pat has the one thing that Nova doesn't own, and never will — a murderous right-hand punch. If he improves as much in the next year as he has in the last six months I'd rather have him against Louis than Noxa.

Sure, this is a long shot guess—but remember, you'd have said the same thing if, after Preliminary Boy Jim Braddock beat Corn Griffith on the Baer-Carnera card. I had said that Jim would win the championship from Baer a year later, as he did.

Johnstown Is Near Track-Record Time In Trial At Aqueduct

New York, June 14. (AP)—From the way the three stars are training, the Dwyer Stakes at Aqueduct next Saturday seems to be shaping up as the year's biggest 3-year-old battle, although the purse is only about $14,000, as compared to the $50,000 and more for the Kentucky Derby, the Preakness and the Arlington classic.

The Dwyer is expected to bring together Johnstown; his Preakness conqueror, Challedon, and the Saratoga Stable's Volitant, winner of the Shevlin last Saturday, with possibly a few others to chase them home.

Mrs. F. A. Clark's speedy Lovely Night is eligible, but may run in the Carter against older horses instead.

Johnstown turned in his final test, stepping a mile in 1.36 4-5, within a second of the Aqueduct track record. Challedon, which reached the Long Island course Monday, worked a mile in 1.41 2-5 at Delaware Park recently.

Haas Maintains Lead In Southern Tourney

Nashville, Tenn., June 14 (AP)—Tall, smooth-stroking Freddie Haas, Jr., 23-year-old son of a New Orleans golf professional, won medalist honors of the Southern Golf Championship for the second time today in a sub-par exhibition that topped the field by two shots.

Haas could be thankful for not being tied in the 36-hole qualifying test because a couple of short putts on the 18th green failed to drop for Stewart (Skip) Alexander of Burlington, N. C. Duke University captain.

Haas, a former National Intercollegiate Champion, Walker Cup player and winner of the southern crown in 1934 and 1937, took the 18-hole lead with 69 shots.

Governor Calls Mayor Koon to Annapolis Today

O'Conor To Give Mayor the Dope On Appointment

Dr. Koon Insists Final Confirmation Has Not Come Yet

Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor yesterday telephoned Mayor Thomas W. Koon asking him to come to Annapolis today to talk over the question of Dr. Koon's appointment to the State Tax Commission.

Gov. O'Conor, who recently stated that he would announce his new appointments "forthwith," called Dr. Koon around 10 a. m. yesterday at his office at City hall.

In a brief chat, Gov. O'Conor asked Dr. Koon if he could come to Annapolis today "to talk things over."

Dr. Koon replied that he could come and made an appointment to meet the governor in his office between 10 and 11 a. m. today.

Mayor Noncommittal

Interviewed yesterday, Dr. Koon remained as noncommittal as ever regarding his possible appointment to the tax commission. Asked if his appointment had been confirmed, Dr. Koon replied that it had not.

The mayor said he would drive to Annapolis this morning as the governor had requested and would plan to be in Gov. O'Conor's office as soon after 10 a. m. as possible.

Mayor Koon declined to state whether his appointment was to be announced today declaring that "I have simply been asked to confer with the governor regarding the matter and that is all I am able to tell you. That is all I know about it."

Little Known of Call

Although the call received by Dr. Koon yesterday would ordinarily have created a new buzz of speculation at City Hall and in Cumberland political circles, the so-called grapevine was unusually quiet yesterday compared to the wave of rumors that engulfed downtown Cumberland several weeks ago.

Actually, yesterday's call from the governor's office was what might be termed the first concrete inkling regarding the appointment to arrive in Cumberland since speculation first started.

Although the fact that the governor called Mayor Koon was known yesterday by a number of persons, it either failed to get around or the information was carefully guarded.

Only O'Conor Knows

One reliable source declared last night that "it's all settled. We have it straight right out of the feed bag."

Another man who generally has his ear to the ground remarked "I guess it's all settled this time."

Others, and this group included Mayor Koon, declared that the only man who actually knows what the score is is Gov. O'Conor.

John J. Meyers Named To State Position

John J. Meyers, one of the O'Conor wheelhorses in the county in the recent elections, has been appointed an inspector in the state insurance office, it was learned authoritatively yesterday.

Meyers, who is a salesman for the Cumberland Office Supply Co., declined to discuss the reports of his appointment to the state job last night. The first word in the matter would have to come from the governor, he said.

Service Club Launches New Club To Keep Red-Blooded Boys Busy

The Exchange club yesterday launched a program of friendship for boys which is designed to provide them with wholesome recreation and a chance to make some money of their own.

Their idea is that boys with a chance for some rough and tumble fun under proper supervision and friendly guidance will grow up to be better citizens.

Their program is the organization of what they have decided to call the Boys Opportunity League.

School authorities and Mayor Thomas W. Koon are cooperating wholeheartedly with the program, according to John C. Maginnis, chairman of the committee in charge, and names of some 300 potential members, boys who would like the club's activities and be benefitted by them, have been furnished by school teachers.

To Swim Free

Arrangements have already been completed for the boys of the club to have free and exclusive use of the new Constitution park pool on Monday and Wednesday mornings from 9 a. m. to 12. Arrangements have also been made for the boys to use the Fort Hill high school playground two days a week.

Money for equipment will be raised by a series of public dances sponsored by the Exchange club, the first of which will be held at the Shrine country club June 29, with Jay Van and his orchestra playing.

The Exxchange club also announced plans to open an employment service in a vacant office downtown, where the boys can tend their own phone and citizens can phone in their odd job needs, giving the boys an opportunity to pick up some spare change.

The club also plans to open work shop where the boys can make bird houses and similar articles for sale.

Nearly fifty boys turned out for the first meeting at the playground yesterday afternoon, signed up for their membership cards, and enjoyed a round of softball and volleyball games. Serving of free pop topped off the afternoon.

Assisting Chairman McGinnis on the committee in charge are Henry C. Gregory, Fort Hill teacher, and Dr. Frank E. Stamp. Other members of the new service club are taking an active part in working up this new program for boys.

Couple Off for Fair After Wedding Here

Officer and Mrs. John Powers, of Cumberland, yesterday stood up with Mr. Powers' brother-in-law, Charles L. Albright, of Mt. Savage, when he was married to Miss Zella Merrill, also of Mt. Savage, at the First Presbyterian church.

The marriage took place at high noon with the newlyweds leaving shortly after the ceremony for the World's Fair in New York where they will spend their honeymoon. The bride was dressed in blue and carried orchids.

Mr. and Mrs. Albright will make their home in Mt. Savage upon their return from New York. Mr. Albright is engaged in the real estate business.

Got Girl Drunk, Given 18 Months

Frostburgers Sentenced On Charge of Girl, 14

Three Frostburg men were sentenced yesterday to eighteen months in the House of Correction on charges of getting a fourteen-year-old Frostburg girl drunk.

The sentences were meted out by Juvenile Magistrate Elizabeth R. Menefee to Donald Giles, 28-year-old WPA worker; Walter Evans, 26; and Raymond Ream, 34-year-old miner.

Specifically, the men were charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor. There was no testimony that any of the men had mistreated the girl.

Frostburg police testified that the men gave the girl several drinks of liquor near the Frostburg Community Swimming Pool Monday night. They said they found her sitting on a bench in a "dazed" condition about 9 p. m.

Earlier, Ream had been arrested near the pool for drunken driving. He was convicted Monday night, and must serve a sixty-day sentence in the county jail on the charge before being transferred to the House of Correction.

Vote Supervisors Name Appointees

Ryan Chosen Attorney, L. A. Hewitt, Clerk

The new county Board of Election Supervisors held its first meeting last night at the court house, electing James E. Kenney, of Westernport, as its chairman.

Other members of the board, who are appointed by the governor and who got their commissions June 1, are H. A. Powell and Stanley Hamilton, both of Cumverland.

The board last night made the following appointments:

Edward J. Ryan, of Frostburg, attorney to the board.

Laurence A. Hewitt, of Cumberland, clerk to the board.

Thomas E. Stephens, of Mt. Savage, messenger.

To Hold Pie Social

The Ladies Auxiliary of Townsend Club No. 2 will hold a pie social at 7:30 o'clock tonight at Third and Seymour streets, opposite the South End fire station.

Cresaptown Votes On Incorporation

Citizens of the community of Cresaptown will go to the polls today to decide whether this historic old settlement, now a bustling residential village for Celanese workers, shall be incorporated or not.

Votes will be cast from 7 a. m., to 7 p. m., in Fireman's Hall.

Celanese Worker Set Home Afire While Family Slept, Is Charge

An 18-year-old Cresaptown girl who saved her home from going up in flames while her mother slept in an upstairs bedroom, today was scheduled to be the star witness against a 21-year-old Celanese employe charged with attempting to set their house on fire.

William L. McKenzie, of Potomac Park, a roomer at the home of Mrs. Stella B. Longerbeam, in Cresaptown, yesterday was taken into custody by Detective B. Frank Gaffney and Sergt. Raymond R. Johnston following an investigation by County Investigator Terrence J. BVoyle.

Gets Hearing Today

County Investigator Boyle stated last night that McKenzie would be given a hearing today at 10 a. m. in Trial Magistrate's Court on charges of attempting to burn up the home.

According to the county investigator, McKenzie returned to the Longerbeam home between 12 and 1 o'clock one night last May and went down cellar presumably to start a fire in the hot water heater.

Although Mrs. Longerbeam had retired for the night, Mrs. Longerbeam's daughter, Mary, heard McKenzie come in.

Girl Heard Him

Miss McKenzie told officers that McKenzie came home singing and went down cellar. Curious regarding what he might be doing in the basement so late at night, Miss McKenzie listened and reported that she heard their boarder "tearing up newspapers."

When she smelled smoke, she screamed. McKenzie then ran up the cellar stairs and bolted outside, she said.

Awakened by her daughter's cry, Mrs. Longerbeam hurried downstairs. When she went to the basement she found a chair and a bunch of torn-up newspapers burning.

A roomer who had been sleeping upstairs also woke up and hurried to the basement where he helped Mrs. Longerbeam and her daughter extinguish the flames.

Wanted a Bath

When officers picked up McKenzie, the youth declared that 'I went down there to start a fire in the hot water heater. I wanted to take a bath."

However, the Longerbeams reported that the hot water heater had not been lighted, and that they were at a loss to explain what reason their boarder would have for starting a fire in the basement.

Admitted Drinking

Pressed by investigating officers, McKenzie admitted that he had been drinking prior to returning to the Longerbeam home the evening of the conflagration.

Other than the fact that McKenzie had admittedly been drinking prior to the occurence at the Longerbeam home, officers said yesterday that they had not unearthed any concreate motive for McKenzie's attempting to burn the house up.

on High Roads Low Roads and By-Ways

The governor's phone call telling the mayor to come down to Annapolis and talk over the question of his appointment to the tax commission has City hall and the surrounding territory all stirred up again.

Our guess, which is as good as yours, is that the mayor is going to get the job. A natural pessimist would say, however, that the governor may want to tell the mayor in a friendly sort of way why he has to appoint someone else.

At any rate, the suspense and the shouting should all be over by sundown today.

If and when the mayor moves on to greener pastures, the real excitement will start around City hall. Nothing like good hot politics to make us forget the summer heat.

—o—

We would like to see the mayor stay in the Cumberland saddle long enough to dedicate the new swimming pool, because, as we have already said, the pool is the mayor's baby. The dope is, however, that he would resign immediately the state appointment comes through. On second thought, there is no reason why he couldn't officiate at the pool dedication as a tax commissioner instead of a mayor. It was taxes that paid for the pool — or will pay for it.

—o—

The Exchange club has tackled a mighty big problem in attempting to provide recreation and wholesome activity for a couple hundred Cumberland boys.

There has been a lot said here and there about the value of giving these boys something worthwhile to do to keep them out of mischief.

We are glad to see the Exchange club go ahead and get a program started. We hope the Exchangites haven't bitten off more than they can chew. They've got the right idea, and with lots of hard work and unselfish devotion to the job they can put over a great community project. Power to them.

—o—

The Exchange club, as part of their program for helping these couple of hundred boys have some fun, have arranged for members of their club to swim free in the new park pool on Mondays and Wednesdays.

That's great. But where will the girls come in? They like to swim, too.

It may be practical, and it may not, but it would be a good idea for some community group to look into the possibilities of sponsoring a girls' swimming club for girls who ordinarily wouldn't get to swim in the city's pool.

—o—

Yesterday's Evening Times said that County Kerry is in England. Mrs. William H. Blake called up last night to tell us it's in Ireland. We don't know, but Mrs. Blake ought to. She's been there.

It sounds Irish, and so does the story, which tells about how the villagers of Killorglin crown a goat king at the fair every year commemorating the day in ancient times when the bleating of a goat warned the town of approaching enemies.

The story was nothing more than one of those little items, often startling, which pop up from somewhere to fill the ends of columns. But if County Kerry has been moved to England the Irish evidently want to know what's coming off over there. Re-making the map may be all right in Central Europe, but not Ireland.

Youth Drowns, Friend Save

Stirring Spectacle of Patriotism Climaxes Fort Hill Commencement

The destiny of 184 graduates of Fort Hill high school was dramatically linked with the future democratic America last night in a thrilling climax to the annual commencement exercises.

As the exercises neared their cose, the orchestra struck up "The Star-Spangled Banner," and the curtains behind the graduates parted.

Audience Moved

Then, as the audience arose spontaneously to its feet, Old Glory was majestically run up the staff and soon was unfurled to a breeze ingeniously created by the stage crew.

Bathed in a soft light, it was a scene that stirred the audience of neary 2,000 persons, into deafening applause.

There was a hush then, broken by the voice of the Rev. S. R. Neel, who closed the ceremony with a benediction calling for the Lord to bless the America for which the Stars and Stripes stands.

As the lights went on, men and women were seen weeping unashamedly at the patriotic spectacle they had witnessed.

Gunter Speaks

Earlier, William A. Gunter, president of the board of education, in a brief address before presenting the diplomas, had called attention to the coincidence of the ceremony's falling on Flag Day.

"But coincidence or not," he declared, "it is fitting that these graduates should enter on a new life on the anniversary of the flag's creation.

"On this same day—June 14, 1777—162 years ago, the Continental Congress decreed that the new American nation should be represented by a flag of thirteen alternate red and white stripes and thirteen stars in a field of blue.

"The stars signified that a new constellation had appeared in the heavens—democratic America.

"And today, a new constellation—of 184 stars—appears in the persons of the graduates of Fort Hill high school."

There was a roar of applause as he concluded with an excerpt from the American's Creed:

"I therefore believe it is my duty to my country to love it; to support its Constitution; to obey its laws; to respect its flag; and to defend it against all enemies."

The flag displayed in the dramatic climax to the exercises was that presented to the school by Cumberland Lodge No. 63, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, during Americanization Week several weeks ago.

Distler Main Speaker

The principal speaker at the ceremony was Dr. Theodore Distler, dean of Lafayette college.

Dr. Distler told the graduates that America today needs men and women "good for the long pull" and urged them not to succumb to the modern mania for speed.

"The simpler things of life are escaping us," he warned. "The tempo of life is too swift today — there is too much hustle and bustle."

Calling for "less haste and less waste," he asserted that there was "too much speed in our national life" in many phases, including government. He referred briefly to New Deal reforms which he said had to be discarded because they were not practical or because they were outlawed by the courts.

Back of their abandonment he saw the hasty manner in which they were drawn.

The future of America depends on today's youth, Dr. Distler declared, pleading for "an eye to the future" and "no hasty achievements."

Also on the program was an address, "After High School—What?," written by Dorothea Willison and delivered by William L. Bruce.

Awards presented by Principal Victor D. Heisey included the following:

William L. Bruce and Jane Showacre were presented "Welcome Home Prizes", gold medals awarded annually to the seniors judged by the members of the class and approved by the faculty to be the most representative senior boy and girl, based on the requirements of scholarship, loyalty, service, character, and leadership. The boy's medal is donated by the First National Bank; the girl's, by the Cumberland Savings Bank.

Prizes Awarded

Lorraine Everett was awarded a cash prize of five dollars by the South Cumberland Planing Mill Company for the highest average in mathematics during the high school course.

Jack Lanich, a junior, was presented the Citizenship Medal, donated annually by Washington Camp No. 62, Patriotic Order, Sons of America, to the under-classman writing the best essay on the subject of "Citizenship." The judging committee consisted of Morris Baron, Edgar Reynolds, Frank A. Wolfhope.

Perry Wilson was given the National Thespian Prize, awarded annually to a senior for "outstanding dramatic performance."

Harley Messman was the recipient of the Cumberland Music and Arts Club Prize, given annually to the senior attaining the highest number of points for outstanding musical performance during the high school course.

Wins Science Medal

William L. Bruce was presented a "certificate of award" by the Readers Digest Association, entitling him to a complimentary subscription to The Readers Digest.

Twenty-five seniors were honored for their attendance records.

Mary Hall and Irma Stallings received the plaudits of the audience when Principal Heisey announced they had maintained perfect attendance records for twelve years—throughout their elementary and high school education.

Other attendance honors went to the following: Glendon Zimmerman, eleven years; Betty J. Breakiron, Helen Moss, and Harry Smith, ten years; Jane Showacre, eight years; Charles Feeser, Nellie Johnson, Harley Messman, and Carl Rice, four years; and William Allee, Donald Golden, William Lewis, Loretta Miller, Maxine Newcomb, Robert McCracken, and Norman Wallace, three years.

Music on the program was furnished by the school orchestra, the Cantabile Club, the male chorus, and the A Capella Choir. Invocation and benediction were by the Rev. S. R. Neel, pastor of Trinity Methodist church.

Dr. Distler was introduced by Superintendent of Schools Charles L. Kopp.

Governor Calls Mayor Koon to Annapolis Toda

Dr. Koon Insists Final Confirmation Has Not Come Yet

Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor yesterday telephoned Mayor Thomas W. Koon asking him to come to Annapolis today to talk over the question of Dr. Koon's appointment to the State Tax Commission.

Gov. O'Conor, who recently stated that he would announce his new appointments "forthwith," called Dr. Koon around 10 a. m. yesterday at his office at City hall.

In a brief chat, Gov. O'Conor asked Dr. Koon if he could come to Annapolis today "to talk things over."

Dr. Koon replied that he could come and made an appointment to meet the governor in his office between 10 and 11 a. m. today.

Mayor Noncommittal

Interviewed yesterday, Dr. Koon remained as noncommittal as ever regarding his possible appointment to the tax commission. Asked if his appointment had been confirmed, Dr. Koon replied that it had not.

The mayor said he would drive to Annapolis this morning as the governor had requested and would plan to be in Gov. O'Conor's office as soon after 10 a. m. as possible.

Mayor Koon declined to state whether his appointment was to be announced today declaring that "'I have simply been asked to confer with the governor regarding the matter and that is all I am able to tell you. That is all I know about it."

Little Known of Call

Although the call received by Dr. Koon yesterday would ordinarily have created a new buzz of speculation at City Hall and in Cumberland political circles, the so-called grapevine was unusually quiet yesterday compared to the wave of rumors that engulfed downtown Cumberland several weeks ago.

Actually, yesterday's call from the governor's office was what might be termed the first concrete inkling regarding the appointment to arrive in Cumberland since speculation first started.

Although the fact that the governor called Mayor Koon was known yesterday by a number of persons, it either failed to get around or the information was carefully guarded.

Only O'Conor Knows

One reliable source declared last night that "it's all settled. We have it straight right out of the feed bag."

Another man who generally has his ear to the ground remarked "I guess it's all settled this time."

Others, and this group included Mayor Koon, declared that the only man who actually knows what the score is is Gov. O'Conor.

John J. Meyers Named To State Position

John J. Meyers, one of the O'Conor wheelhorses in the county in the recent elections, has been appointed an inspector in the state insurance office, it was learned authoritatively yesterday.

Meyers, who is a salesman for the Cumberland Office Supply Co., declined to discuss the reports of his appointment to the state job last night. The first word in the matter would have to come from the governor, he said.

Service Club Launches New Club To Keep Red-Blooded Boys Busy

The Exchange club yesterday launched a program of friendship for boys which is designed to provide them with wholesome recreation and a chance to make some money of their own.

Their idea is that boys with a chance for some rough and tumble fun under proper supervision and friendly guidance will grow up to be better citizens.

Their program is the organization of what they have decided to call the Boys Opportunity League.

School authorities and Mayor Thomas W. Koon are cooperating wholeheartedly with the program, according to John C. Maginnis, chairman of the committee in charge, and names of some 300 potential members, boys who would like the club's activities and be benefitted by them, have been furnished by school teachers.

To Swim Free

Arrangements have already been completed for the boys of the club to have free and exclusive use of the new Constitution park pool on Monday and Wednesday mornings from 9 a. m. to 12. Arrangements have also been made for the boys to use the Fort Hill high school playground two days a week.

Money for equipment will be raised by a series of public dances sponsored by the Exchange club, the first of which will be held at the Shrine country club June 29, with Jay Van and his orchestra playing.

The Exxchange club also announced plans to open an employment service in a vacant office downtown, where the boys can tend their own phone and citizens can phone in their odd job needs, giving the boys an opportunity to pick up some spare change.

The club also plans to open work shop where the boys can make bird houses and similar articles for sale.

Nearly fifty boys turned out for the first meeting at the playground yesterday afternoon, signed up for their membership cards, and enjoyed a round of softball and volleyball games. Serving of free pop topped off the afternoon.

Assisting Chairman McGinnis on the committee in charge are Henry C. Gregory, Fort Hill teacher, and Dr. Frank E. Stamp. Other members of the new service club are taking an active part in working up this new program for boys.

Couple Off for Fair After Wedding Here

Officer and Mrs. John Powers, of Cumberland, yesterday stood up with Mr. Powers' brother-in-law, Charles L. Albright, of Mt. Savage, when he was married to Miss Zella Merrill, also of Mt. Savage, at the First Presbyterian church.

The marriage took place at high noon with the newlyweds leaving shortly after the ceremony for the World's Fair in New York where they will spend their honeymoon. The bride was dressed in blue and carried orchids.

Mr. and Mrs. Albright will make their home in Mt. Savage upon their return from New York. Mr. Albright is engaged in the real estate business.

Frostburgers Sentenced On Charge of Girl, 14

Three Frostburg men were sentenced yesterday to eighteen months in the House of Correction on charges of getting a fourteen-year-old Frostburg girl drunk.

The sentences were meted out by Juvenile Magistrate Elizabeth R. Menefee to Donald Giles, 28-year-old WPA worker; Walter Evans, 26; and Raymond Ream, 34-year-old miner.

Specifically, the men were charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor. There was no testimony that any of the men had mistreated the girl.

Frostburg police testified that the men gave the girl several drinks of liquor near the Frostburg Community Swimming Pool Monday night. They said they found her sitting on a bench in a "dazed" condition about 9 p. m.

Earlier, Ream had been arrested near the pool for drunken driving. He was convicted Monday night, and must serve a sixty-day sentence in the county jail on the charge before being transferred to the House of Correction.

Vote Supervisors Name Appointees

Ryan Chosen Attorney, L. A. Hewitt, Clerk

Other members of the board, who are appointed by the governor and who got their commissions June 1, are H. A. Powell and Stanley Hamilton, both of Cumverland.

The board last night made the following appointments:

Edward J. Ryan, of Frostburg, attorney to the board.

Laurence A. Hewitt, of Cumberland, clerk to the board.

Thomas E. Stephens, of Mt. Savage, messenger.

To Hold Pie Social

The Ladies Auxiliary of Townsend Club No. 2 will hold a pie social at 7:30 o'clock tonight at Third and Seymour streets, opposite the South End fire station.

Cresaptown Votes On Incorporation

Citizens of the community of Cresaptown will go to the polls today to decide whether this historic old settlement, now a bustling residential village for Celanese workers, shall be incorporated or not.

Votes will be cast from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m., in Fireman's Hall.

Celanese Worker Set Home Afire While Family Slept, Is Charge

An 18-year-old Cresaptown girl who saved her home from going up in flames while her mother slept in an upstairs bedroom, today was scheduled to be the star witness against a 21-year-old Celanese employe charged with attempting to set their house on fire.

William L. McKenzie, of Potomac Park, a roomer at the home of Mrs. Stella B. Longerbeam, in Cresaptown, yesterday was taken into custody by Detective B. Frank Gaffney and Sergt. Raymond R. Johnston following an investigation by County Investigator Terrence J. BVoyle.

Gets Hearing Today

County Investigator Boyle stated last night that McKenzie would be given a hearing today at 10 a. m. in Trial Magistrate's Court on charges of attempting to burn up the home.

According to the county investigator, McKenzie returned to the Longerbeam home between 12 and 1 o'clock one night last May and went down cellar presumably to start a fire in the hot water heater.

Although Mrs. Longerbeam had retired for the night, Mrs. Longerbeam's daughter, Mary, heard McKenzie come in.

Girl Heard Him

Miss McKenzie told officers that McKenzie came home singing and went down cellar. Curious regarding what he might be doing in the basement so late at night, Miss McKenzie listened and reported that she heard their boarder "tearing up newspapers."

When she smelled smoke, she screamed. McKenzie then ran up the cellar stairs and bolted outside, she said.

Awakened by her daughter's cry, Mrs. Longerbeam hurried downstairs. When she went to the basement she found a chair and a bunch of torn-up newspapers burning.

A roomer who had been sleeping upstairs also woke up and hurried to the basement where he helped Mrs. Longerbeam and her daughter extinguish the flames.

Wanted a Bath

When officers picked up McKenzie, the youth declared that 'I went down there to start a fire in the hot water heater. I wanted to take a bath."

However, the Longerbeams reported that the hot water heater had not been lighted, and that they were at a loss to explain what reason their boarder would have for starting a fire in the basement.

Admitted Drinking

Pressed by investigating officers, McKenzie admitted that he had been drinking prior to returning to the Longerbeam home the evening of the conflagration.

Other than the fact that McKenzie had admittedly been drinking prior to the occurence at the Longerbeam home, officers said yesterday that they had not unearthed any concreate motive for McKenzie's attempting to burn the house up.

on High Roads Low Roads and By-Ways

The governor's phone call telling the mayor to come down to Annapolis and talk over the question of his appointment to the tax commission has City hall and the surrounding territory all stirred up again.

Our guess, which is as good as yours, is that the mayor is going to get the job. A natural pessimist would say, however, that the governor may want to tell the mayor in a friendly sort of way why he has to appoint someone else.

At any rate, the suspense and the shouting should all be over by sundown today.

If and when the mayor moves on to greener pastures, the real excitement will start around City hall. Nothing like good hot politics to make us forget the summer heat.

—o—

We would like to see the mayor stay in the Cumberland saddle long enough to dedicate the new swimming pool, because, as we have already said, the pool is the mayor's baby. The dope is, however, that he would resign immediately the state appointment comes through. On second thought, there is no reason why he couldn't officiate at the pool dedication as a tax commissioner instead of a mayor. It was taxes that paid for the pool — or will pay for it.

—o—

The Exchange club has tackled a mighty big problem in attempting to provide recreation and wholesome activity for a couple hundred Cumberland boys.

There has been a lot said here and there about the value of giving these boys something worthwhile to do to keep them out of mischief.

We are glad to see the Exchange club go ahead and get a program started. We hope the Exchangites haven't bitten off more than they can chew. They've got the right idea, and with lots of hard work and unselfish devotion to the job they can put over a great community project. Power to them.

—o—

The Exchange club, as part of their program for helping these couple of hundred boys have some fun, have arranged for members of their club to swim free in the new park pool on Mondays and Wednesdays.

That's great. But where will the girls come in? They like to swim, too.

It may be practical, and it may not, but it would be a good idea for some community group to look into the possibilities of sponsoring a girls' swimming club for girls who ordinarily wouldn't get to swim in the city's pool.

—o—

Yesterday's Evening Times said that County Kerry is in England. Mrs. William H. Blake called up last night to tell us it's in Ireland. We don't know, but Mrs. Blake ought to. She's been there.

It sounds Irish, and so does the story, which tells about how the villagers of Killorglin crown a goat king at the fair every year commemorating the day in ancient times when the bleating of a goat warned the town of approaching enemies.

The story was nothing more than one of those little items, often startling, which pop up from somewhere to fill the ends of columns. But if County Kerry has been moved to England the Irish evidently want to know what's coming off over there. Re-making the map may be all right in Central Europe, but not Ireland.

Youth Drowns, Friend Save

Stirring Spectacle of Patriotism Climaxes Fort Hill Commencement

The destiny of 184 graduates of Fort Hill high school was dramatically linked with the future democratic America last night in a thrilling climax to the annual commencement exercises.

As the exercises neared their cose, the orchestra struck up "The Star-Spangled Banner," and the curtains behind the graduates parted.

Audience Moved

Then, as the audience arose spontaneously to its feet, Old Glory was majestically run up the staff and soon was unfurled to a breeze ingeniously created by the stage crew.

Bathed in a soft light, it was a scene that stirred the audience of neary 2,000 persons, into deafening applause.

There was a hush then, broken by the voice of the Rev. S. R. Neel, who closed the ceremony with a benediction calling for the Lord to bless the America for which the Stars and Stripes stands.

As the lights went on, men and women were seen weeping unashamedly at the patriotic spectacle they had witnessed.

Gunter Speaks

Earlier, William A. Gunter, president of the board of education, in a brief address before presenting the diplomas, had called attention to the coincidence of the ceremony's falling on Flag Day.

"But coincidence or not," he declared, "it is fitting that these graduates should enter on a new life on the anniversary of the flag's creation.

"On this same day—June 14, 1777—162 years ago, the Continental Congress decreed that the new American nation should be represented by a flag of thirteen alternate red and white stripes and thirteen stars in a field of blue.

"The stars signified that a new constellation had appeared in the heavens—democratic America.

"And today, a new constellation—of 184 stars—appears in the persons of the graduates of Fort Hill high school."

There was a roar of applause as he concluded with an excerpt from the American's Creed:

"I therefore believe it is my duty to my country to love it; to support its Constitution; to obey its laws; to respect its flag; and to defend it against all enemies."

The flag displayed in the dramatic climax to the exercises was that presented to the school by Cumberland Lodge No. 63, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, during Americanization Week several weeks ago.

The spectacle was engineered by next year's student stage crew under the direction of Harry R. Vogtman, member of the Fort Hill faculty. Student assistants were William Sheetz, James Kave, and Jack Carnell.

Distler Main Speaker

The principal speaker at the ceremony was Dr. Theodore Distler, dean of Lafayette college.

Dr. Distler told the graduates that America today needs men and women "good for the long pull" and urged them not to succumb to the modern mania for speed.

"The simpler things of life are escaping us," he warned. "The tempo of life is too swift today — there is too much hustle and bustle."

Calling for "less haste and less waste," he asserted that there was "too much speed in our national life" in many phases, including government. He referred briefly to New Deal reforms which he said had to be discarded because they were not practical or because they were outlawed by the courts.

Back of their abandonment he saw the hasty manner in which they were drawn.

The future of America depends on today's youth, Dr. Distler declared, pleading for "an eye to the future" and "no hasty achievements."

Also on the program was an address, "After High School—What?," written by Dorothea Willison and delivered by William L. Bruce.

Awards presented by Principal Victor D. Heisey included the following:

William L. Bruce and Jane Showacre were presented "Welcome Home Prizes", gold medals awarded annually to the seniors judged by the members of the class and approved by the faculty to be the most representative senior boy and girl, based on the requirements of scholarship, loyalty, service, character, and leadership. The boy's medal is donated by the First National Bank; the girl's, by the Cumberland Savings Bank.

Prizes Awarded

Lorraine Everett was awarded a cash prize of five dollars by the South Cumberland Planing Mill Company for the highest average in mathematics during the high school course.

Jack Lanich, a junior, was presented the Citizenship Medal, donated annually by Washington Camp No. 62, Patriotic Order, Sons of America, to the under-classman writing the best essay on the subject of "Citizenship." The judging committee consisted of Morris Baron, Edgar Reynolds, Frank A. Wolfhope.

Perry Wilson was given the National Thespian Prize, awarded annually to a senior for "outstanding dramatic performance."

Harley Messman was the recipient of the Cumberland Music and Arts Club Prize, given annually to the senior attaining the highest number of points for outstanding musical performance during the high school course.

Wins Science Medal

Jane Showacre received the Bauch and Lomb Honorary Science Medal for "the greatest progress in science" during the high school course.

William L. Bruce was presented a "certificate of award" by the Readers Digest Association, entitling him to a complimentary subscription to The Readers Digest.

Twenty-five seniors were honored for their attendance records.

Mary Hall and Irma Stallings received the plaudits of the audience when Principal Heisey announced they had maintained perfect attendance records for twelve years—throughout their elementary and high school education.

Other attendance honors went to the following: Glendon Zimmerman, eleven years; Betty J. Breakiron, Helen Moss, and Harry Smith, ten years; Jane Showacre, eight years; Charles Feeser, Nellie Johnson, Harley Messman, and Carl Rice, four years; and William Allee, Donald Golden, William Lewis, Loretta Miller, Maxine Newcomb, Robert McCracken, and Norman Wallace, three years.

Music on the program was furnished by the school orchestra, the Cantabile Club, the male chorus, and the A Capella Choir. Invocation and benediction were by the Rev. S. R. Neel, pastor of Trinity Methodist church.

Dr. Distler was introduced by Superintendent of Schools Charles L. Kopp.
